The State House at Fillmore.—Its architectural magnificence.—At the State Conference.

Corporations Doing Business.

Salt Lake City, June 2, 1893.—On Sunday and Monday, May 21st and 22d, I attended the Millard Stake quarterly conference, held in Hinckley ward. Elder R. H. Bush was the only representative of the general authorities of the Church present. Good instructions were given during the conference, and the hearts of the assembled saints were made to rejoice under the abounding influence of the Holy Spirit which ruled open both speakers and hearers throughout all the meetings. Considering that the Hinckley ward is situated off in one side, and that some of the localities had to come a distance of nearly forty-five miles to attend conference, there was a good attendance every ward in the Stake having several representatives present. The bulk of the emigration, however, consisted of the families residing in the Hinckley.

Diseases and Quarantine.

During my absence I have visited all the wards in the Stake, and have held special meetings in Lexington, Oak Creek, Holden, Fillmore, Kamas, Mound and Nephi. I have also been successful in obtaining data and exact information as to health in each locality.

The Millard Stake of Zion comprises all of Millard county, Utah, and embraces most of the great Parowan valley, which consists chiefly of a barren desert, situated to the west of the mountains, a few miles from the base of the mountains on the east where most of the settlements are situated on the small mountain streams, which have been diverted from their natural course entailing laborious tasks, have up to the time of my visit been the only settlements in Millard county and are probably cases in the desert; and at this time of the year when the trees, appearance of the leaves and growths, and the vegetation generally are dead, the deserts in spring's benignity appear to the eye, they put to rest the eye for in a most effective manner the differences between that part of our Utah which has been redeemed from the desert and that part which is yet to be.

The Millard Stake of Zion consists of two fully organized Wards, with a total membership of 300 souls, numbered 181 families. There are one Ward church, 104 members, 12 High Priests, 21 Deacons, 127 Teachers, 202 Disciples, and Disciples, 191 members, all 1803 churchmen under eight years of age. Ira N. Hinckley, of Fillmore, is President of the Stake, and Daniel Thompson, of Nephi, his first and Daniel Christian Anderson, who also presides over the High Priests' quorum; Joseph D. Daniels, formerly Bishop of Fillmore, is the Stake Patriarch.

Logan, the first capital of Utah Territory, and now the county seat of Millard county and headquarters of the Millard Stake of Zion, is pleasantly situated on Chalk creek, near the base of the mountains, which divide the valley lying eastward.

Of the principal public buildings of Fillmore may be mentioned the old state house erected at the expense of the government in 1852-53, and in which the first annual session of the Legislature was held in the winter of 1852-53.

This is a solid two-story rock structure, and of late years it has been used for school purposes.

The county court house situated in the southeast corner of the state house square, is a building built out of the last stone meeting house, standing near the center of an aqueduct, long and deep enough which flows a number of small streams in Fillmore.

Mountain Ward embraces all the Saints residing on Meadow Creek, which is situated in the middle west of the Stake. It contains about 100 souls, a strong little village, in which the comparative and most residents are more or less in the midst of beautiful orchards with which the place is covered. The population of the Ward is 1,000 souls, and the town contains a population of 170 souls, or 47 families. The place was first settled in 1857.

We can well imagine the men of Kamas and the other smaller towns in the Stake, who had to travel over the rugged Oak Creek, after the rains, to secure their crops as mentioned. It was not until Kamas and the other smaller towns were more or less established that the people began to move toward the east side of the town of Fillmore. The city of Fillmore has several yards back.

The town of Fillmore, the largest in the Stake, is situated on the upper portion of the valley of the Pine Creek, which flows into the Colorado River, and is a mile and a half above the mouth of the Pine Creek. The town of Fillmore has a population of 1,000 souls, or 250 families.

Holden, formerly known as Cedar Springs, is situated on the middle south of Fillmore. This latter interesting settlement, over which Anthony Thompson presides as Bishop, is located on the eastern side of the valley, and is a mile and a half above the mouth of the Pine Creek. The town of Holden has a population of 1,000 souls, or 250 families.

Hinckley ward, the smallest in the Stake, is situated on the middle south of the valley of the Pine Creek.

The town of Hinckley has a population of 1,000 souls, or 250 families.

Lexington, formerly known as Cedar Springs, is situated on the middle south of Fillmore.
