Ogden, May 23 .- The beautiful 18-foot high metal monument which is to be erected in honor of Capt. James Brown, the founder of Ogden city, will be placed on the city hall square at a point directly north of the north entrance to the city hall and about midway be-tween the building and the Twenty-fifth street walk. This site was selected yes-terday afternoon by the public build-ings and grounds and the law commit-tees, and will be set apart for that pur-pose by the city council. The monu-ment will bear the inscription: "Sacred to the memory of Captain James Brown. Born Sept. 30, 1801, North Carolina. Died Sept. 20, 1803, Ogden. Utab. Death is eternal life, why should we weep." In 1847 Capt. Brown came to what is now known as Ogden city. When the Mormon Battailon was formed at Council Bluffs. Was formed at Control Blues, Id., Mr. Brown, together with his two sons, Jesse and Alexander, became members of company "C." On his return to the valley of the Great Salt lake in 1848, he brought $10,000 with him. He came to what is now Weber county and pur-chased the Goodyear title, which com-prised the whole of the county, at a cost of $3,000. Of the vast tract of land he retained only 300 acres for himself and family, giving to his comrades in the army and friends the remainder, which was the commencement of Ogden city. Besides securing the title to the land, he was the first man to break the soil and to plant the first grain. His memory is deserving of honor and the erection of the monument. He was a man of honor and uprightness, ever looking to the welfare of his friends and associates. His son Alexander is still living in Ogden city on Second street.
