COL. SQUIRES INTRODUCED. Without any effort at oratory he introduced Col. Squires, the temporary chairman. The latter was greeted with applause. Col. Squires said in part

"Fellow Republicans-that sounds good to me-in the campaign we have before us we are only fighting the preliminary skirmish of the great battle of 1908. We have opposed to us an alert, vigilant and resourceful enemy. the old Democratic party, which may live for ever, but which, friends, will surrender soon. It will surrender this year and go down to defeat in 1908. We call them our enemies because we never can be friends for the Democratic policy is unalterably opposed to ours The speaker then went back 50 years and proceeded to review the history of the Republican party, which, at intervals, was punctuated with applause. The protective tariff came in for considerable attention at the hands of the temporary chairman.

Incidentally he touched up the "two" years of Democratic administration "two years of Grover the great." as he Cleveland's affirmed-yes, two years. chief claim to credit during his admin-istration, he asserted, was the fact he held the record for sitting at his desk and vetoeing pension claims.

After the administration of Cleve-land, said the speaker, the people saw another light and in due season electmominate Mr. Greenwald's faction." the United States. President McKinley of an occasion on which he candidate where he was not elected." This sentiment woke up the delegates considerably. Today, said the speaker President Roosevelt as president of the United States, ranks higher than any earthly potentate, king, emperor

The administration then came in notice. The rate bill, pure food and cattle inspection bills were touch. ed upon briefly. "Boys, you cannot get any passes out of the state." the chairman with the suspicion of a tear in his voice, "if you do you will go to jall.

Thirty-two thousand rural delivery routes now in operation throughout the country were pointed to with pride as another great accomplishment of Republican administrations, Col. Squires on the topic of pensions, raised considerable hilarity by fervently stating that in five days from date he would be 62 years old and entitled to a pension of $6 a month as a direct result of wise Republiresult of wise Republican administration. 'Good critics of public administration agree." he said, "that the work of this fifty-ninth Congress has accomplished more real good than any previous administration in the history of American politics."

BIG FIGHT AHEAD.

The speaker dwelt carnestly on this as an off year, but nevertheless he asserted with every man doing his duty the Republicans would win. The en emy was alert, he affirmed, and there was the fight of their lives on hand from now until election day next November.

You've got the fight of your lives right here in Utah this fall. There are many faces that were wont to be with us who are not here now. The enemy is very wide awake. They will have lots of money to use against us. We need every man who is a member of the party to be up and doing. "It is with regret that I learn that my very dear friend, whom I admire and hold in reverence, and look up to, is forced to retire from this fight on account of ill health."

In closing, Col. Squires assured th convention of a square deal. H He promised every man an equal chance, "even if it keeps us in session here all night," and then called for the further pleasure of the convention CONVENTION CALL READ. Temporary Secretary Rudolph Kuchler then read the temporary organiza-tion and call for the convention. Chaplain W. C. Parkinson offered prayer, after a short passage of words tween Harry Joseph, Alma Eldredge and W. D. ivingstone on the question of naming the state committeemen with the other committees, Joseph was ruled out on a point of order, and the naming of committees was proceeded with, motion of Daniel Harrington of 00 Salt Lake.

After the naming of these commit-tees, the convention adjourned, to assemble again at 3 o'clock.
