makes the control of it a public as well as a private trust in every hand that holds it, whether the hand be chosen by a court or otherwise. This truth has been too long neglected and storm signals are flying. Let it be understood that there are no favors going, open or secret, but that it is fare and fare alike all around. And if the property and business commit-ted to me by the courts shall suffer from this cause, either at the nands of public officials or those of rival lines, the reason will be plain to a wayfaring man and the lesson will be worth to the country all it costs." I think many did not at first take me seriously. Commercial ideas had too long prevailed. You are all free to makes the control of it a public as I think many did not at first take me seriously. Commercial ideas had too long prevailed. You are all free to deal or refuse to deal, to buy as cheap and sell as dear as you can. You, may have wholesale and retail prices. You can give discounts and make con-cessions. A railroad must serve eve-ry one that asks and charge all alike for the same service.

ry one that asks and charge all alike for the same service. Failure to observe this difference was the chief cause of the trouble, and the shippers must take their share of the blame, for railway officers are like other men. They give up nothing un-less they are tempted or compelled. This does not apply to officials who are interested in the products to be carried over their lines. I recommend that such interest be forbidden by the recent law as well as that of the rail-road companies themselves, but it is not done. I think personal is much stronger than official interest, and it is worldly as well as spiritual wisdom storage by paying demurrage charges, Both you and the railroads would be guilty under the law if you should make such a bargain. Those charges are not rentals, but merely penalties to make you prompt. They are not a tithe of what the cars would earn in freight and a still less part of the loss you are reflecting on your neighbors by what is simply a misuse of property devoted to public service. The railroads have just fixed the charges against each other for failure to return cars so high that greater promptness is assured. The same must be done with like charges against ship-pers. Nobody wants you to pay them, but just to release the cars. That is the only object, not revenue.

RECIPROCAL DEMURRAGE. RECIPROCAL DEMURRAGE. This is not understood by the advo-cates of what is miscalled "reciprocal demurrage" with respect to car supply. The shipper has a car in his possession which he will not load or unload promptly so as to set it free for other service. A per diem charge is made against him-a penalty for not doing what he ought to and can do. So, they say, the railroad should be made to pay the like amount when it does not promptly furnish a car to the shipper when requested.

the like amount when it does not promptly furnish a car to the shipper when requested. If the railroad had a car which it could furnish and would not, the cases would be alke and a charge might be called "reciprocal." But the very life of a railroad is in getting empty care londed. It would be subcide to with-hold them from shippers. We do not fine people for not doing what they wish to do, but cannot. If the penalty is to be for not having constantly on hand cars enough to meet all requests, then say so, but do not call it "reciprocal demurrage." Reciprocity would be this: If you make the railroad pay the shipper when it has no car for his load, then a reciproca charge would be to make the shipper pay the railroad when he has no load for its car, as is often the case when crops fail or trade is dull, and surely nobody would pro-pose that. PEOPLE THE LAWMAKERS.

PEOPLE THE LAWMAKERS.

PEOPLE THE LAWMAKERS. The people in this country are the real lawmakers. All they need is to under-stand the facts and their laws will be just. On such matters as I have men-tioned, bodies like this are leaders of public thought and action. The farm-ers and workmen and small dealers are too numerous to meet and consult as you do, but they are prompt to approve what they see to be proper and right. You know what is fair and wise. You know your interest is the same as that of all citizens, though the extent of it may be individually greater. So the re-form of abuses in railroad management and conduct appeals to your best thought, while you are better qualified than most men to see that the knite cuts to cure and not to injure or do-stroy.

JUDSON HARMON

As a Lawyer in the Management of Them.

Cincinnati, May 9 .- Responding to a toast on "Some Experiences of a Lawyer in the Railroad Business," at a banquet of business men here tonight, Judson Harmon of this city gave a frank statement of some of his views on the conduct of a railroad without breaking existing laws. He : bica

HE WAS SURPRISED.

I was surprised to find myself, late in 1905, almost without notice, in sole charge, under court orders, of 3,500 miles of railway, running through miles of railway, funning through four states and the province of On-tario. After a year and a half I am still alive and out of jall. The monthly pay was close ahead when I took charge and I soon learned that con-sternation reigned all over the lines. I realized for the first time what it meant even to raise a doubt about the payment of wages and salaries on railroads. My roads were not among the largest, yet they had nearly 17,-600 employes. With their families there were several times as many more. Then there were dealers in hundreds of towns, and hamlets who furnish them supplies, and the churches, schools and societies they help support. To withhold or even delay payment would be cruel. But almost $800,000 to pay and no money. These men had no experience with receivers. The very name was omin-ous of taking in and not giving out. One of the pleasures of my life was to while a message which reached clear down to the section men that all should have their pay, on the nall if I had to borrow it, as I did. PRAISES MEN UNDER HIM. four states and the province of On-

PRAISES MEN UNDER HIM.

Since then I have been all over the Since then I have been all over the roads asd met these men, met them in many ways which test and reveal character, including discussion of re-quests for more pay and less work. And I know that better, more capable and earnest men never lived than those who in darkness and day, storm and sunshine, lean times and fat, la-hor to keep the track smooth, the wheels turning and the cars full. I was surprised at the large num-her of men and women all over the country who had dnyested in the

The of men and women all over the country who had invested in the stocks and bonds of these railroads, many of them persons of small means to whom the failure of the company was a serious matter. I have had let-ters from such holders from as far sway as New England and the Pa-clific coast. Sorry I was that I could not help them as I did the men. When I assumed command the sub-ject of further railroad legislation was just beginning to attract general at-tertion. This was true also of the merely fixed penalties for the violation of the common law which has applied to public carriers for centuries. RAILROADS AND LAWS.

RAILROADS AND LAWS.

had always maintained that railreads could be conducted without breaking these wholesome laws, so at the very start I said: "The public character of a railroad

The events of the past few weeks seem to have culminated today in the voluntary withdrawal, without stipulation, of all opposition and in the complete demon-stration that the Republicans of Ohio are solidly for Taft for president, and the movement will go forward now with every prospect of his nomination." worldly as well as spiritual wisdom to keep men out of temptation. MY POLICY.

MY POLICY. I was met by many outeries as I proceeded to enforce my policy by dis-carding all old arrangements which I thought conflicted with it and refusing to make new ones. But there was the law. The old question, "What is the Constitution between friends and its later form?" "What is the Con-stitution when one knows something to ask because the Constitution pro-vides no penalities for its violation. But leaws always wind up with unpleasant clauses—so much or so long, or bott. When the people found I was really in earnest and that all were treated fairly and alike, they loyally support-ed me. There are always some human porkers to whom things taste better under ground in the dirt, but there are hot many of them among our people. I special favors are going they ally ways content with an even chance. If lost business by the course I took, there was no evidence of it. Then it was my luck, perhaps I might claim a slight share of credit for it, that the general awakening shortly came to mean formed more cars were media my aid. NEED FOR CARS. I soon found more cars were needed and I secured authority to get them. I asked for bids from builders. They said they had no space. "Space," I said, "I have plenty of space. I want cars to run through it." Then the railroad tenderfoot found they meant room on the list of orders. At last I got 4,000 new box cars. I could have loaded every one right where they were built. But no, I sent them all e empty to home stations and divided them as fairly as I could among wait-ing shippers. In two weeks they were scattered all over the Union and the ory was still for more. I coaxed and threatened and did all I could to get them back, but those that came were right off again as before. A region which produces more shipped articles that it consumes, of course, sends out more loaded cars than it receives. So I cars tend to accumulate on trutk lines and in the great commercial centers. And when cars are scance the tempta-tion is to load them, wherever they are found, for no matter where, instead of loading so as to start them home-ward.

COUNTRY'S COMMERCIAL UNITY.

So I have had set before my eyes the commercial unity of our country which the railroads have brought about. Practically all railroad trans-portation is now interstate so that all have the advantage of the widest mar-ket, both to sell and to buy. And the interests of the carriers as well as their duty is to enable shippers, by good service, at reasonable rates, to reach as far as it is possible. This enormous and growing com-merce depends mainly upon railroad transportation, and the proper conduct and regulation of that presents the most important and at the same time the most delicate economic problem of our times. DUTY OF SHIPPERS. So I have had set before my eyes the

DUTY OF SHIPPERS.

DUTY OF SHIPPERS. Now a word about the shippers' part in this distressing matter of car short-age. Although the ownership and con-trol of railroads are private, their busi-ness so concerns the public that it may be regulated by law with due regard to the interest of the owners, and ser-vice on fair and equal terms is a right common to all people. Then are you not doing a public wrong when you take as long as you please to load and unload cars? You do not get the right to use cars for London, May 10.—Announcement is made that a free pardon has been granted to George Edaiji, the youry Birmingham lawyer who was convieted four years ago of mutilating neighbors' horses and cattle, and sentenced to sev-en years' penal servitude. Investiga-tions led by Henry Labouchere and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who become in-terested in the case, have, it is stated, established Edaiji's innocence and demonstrated that the police blundered. Recently Sir Conan Doyle, after a personal investigation, pronounced the case similar in many respects to that of Capt. Dreyfus.

Taft, said: "I am here in accordance with the program for a conference in regard to the candidacy of Sery, Taft, and also in the interest of the primary reform movement. The pronunciamentos from Cincinnati and Toledo mean that Ohio will be for Taft for president and I am very glad of that. In Washington, in promoting Seev. Taft's candidacy, the greatest obstacle I met was the ques-tion 'Why, he won't have his own state, will he?' or a question as to whether the state will be divided. As long as things remain in that condition. I would have insisted upon the pri-mary in order that Ohio should ex-press her choice. I now feel that the necessity for neimarice has here alignessity for primaries has been eliminuted.' WHAT DICK SAYS.
