BREVITIES.
Prussia can count 144 millionaires.
Five hundred persons die annually of tremens in England.
Money is said to make the man, now-days, and dress the gentleman.
"Sambo, did you ever see de Caskill mountains?" "No, Clem; but I've seen cats kill mice."
It costs the United States nearly $1,000 to educate every cadet who graduates from West Point.
Salt and Mrs. T. Thumb's sister are making a match. They have made a quarter of a million between them.
George Wallacot, an English groom, has lately been sentenced to five years' penal servitude for poisoning a race horse.
Young fellows who generally sing "we won't go home till morning," if they keep on, will have mourning enough without singing it.
One of the new judges for the English bench just appointed by the Disraeli government is a Roman Catholic—Mr.
Sergeant Hayes.
A party of Italian brigands recently captured two English and three American tourists, and threatened to kill them if not ransomed.
There is a negro 108 years of age living near Longbranch, New Jersey, who has been a widower for seventy years.
Dedicated codfish canned, is now an article of sale. It is freed from all skin and bone, and one Philadelphia concern puts up three tens daily.
Make friends of your creditors, if you can, but never make a creditor of your friend. It only gives him another excuse for being disagreeable.
A "worthy citizen recently deceased" is spoken of by a Texas paper as "a man of great energy who had a Roman nose with strong religious tendencies." A sister of John Allen, the "wicked-est man," has been twice married and now divorced from the same man in Chicago, and now she wants a second divorce.
Dr. Bock, of Leipzig, wages war against patent medicines by analyzing each new nostrum as it appears, publishing its ingredients and the cost to the manufacturers.
A physician stopped at the shop of a country apothecary and inquired for a pharmaceutical. "Sir," said the apothecary, "I know of no such farmer living about these parts."
The Young Men's Christian Association of San Francisco pays the postage on letters dropped in the postoffice of that city without having stamps affixed to prepay them.
Lord Bacon beautifully said, "if a man is gracious to strangers, it shows that he is a citizen of the world, and that his heart is not islanded out off from the other land, but a continent that joins it."
The Paris papers record the death of a cantiniere, 88 years of age, named Jeanne Hanchel, who went through all the campaigns of the Republic, the Empire and the Restoration. She also figured at the battles of Eylau, Wagaram, and Friedland.
"What's that picture on?" said a countryman in our hearing, the other day in a picture store, to the proprietor, who was turning over some engravings.
"That, sir," said the dealer, "is Joshua commanding the sun to stand still."
"Do tell! Well, which is Josh, and which is his son?"
In the early display of Garrick's powers at Drury Lane, a tragedy was brought forward, in which he sustained the principal character, of an aged king.
Though there was nothing particularly brilliant in the play, it proceeded without opposition till the fifth act, when the dying monarch bequeaths his kingdom to his two sons in this line: "And between you I bequeath my crown." "Ye gods! He's given them half a crown apiece!" The house was immediately thrown into such a state of comic convulsion that not another word of the piece could be heard.
"There are," says an observant English physiological writer, "some people who are so peculiarly constituted that matters the most harmless to the mass of mankind act upon them in the most distressing manner. For instance, some persons cannot eat a lobster salad without its having a curious effect upon their complexion. We know a lady who once indulged at supper time in a salad of this kind, and upon her return to the ball room her face and neck immediately became covered with spots, obliging her to retire. Cookies and strawberries have the like effect upon persons thus peculiarly constituted. A medical friend tells us that eating veal gives a lady of his acquaintance the nettle rash, and that orange peel has produced great nervous excitement.
Figs, again, give rise in some people to what is termed fermentation, or a sensation like the tickling movement of ants upon the palate. The most extraordinary example of the adverse influences of a common article of food upon the human stomach is related by a surgeon of a public hospital. He says that a patient of his cannot touch rice without the most extreme discomfort. On one occasion, when at a dinner party, he felt the symptoms of rice poisoning come on, and was, as usual, obliged to retire from the table, although he had not partaken of any dish ostensibly containing rice. It appeared, on investigation, that some white soup, with which he had commenced his dinner, had been thickened with some ground rice.
