THE JAPANESE "HURRAH." It is not infrequently to find men appreciating as to the origin of the now familiar "hurrah," and we believe that a general impression of this excellent character among the inventions of modern Japan, quite recently, indeed, we heard a learned Japanese pundit declare confidently that the late Prof. Toyama was the originator of the word as the Japanese equivalent of "hurrah." But the truth is that "hurrah" belongs to a very much earlier date. History shows that it was used certainly as long ago as the year 486 A. D., and probably it was not an innovation even then. In the "Chronicles of Japan"—a work published, as is well known, in the year 820 A. D.—it is related that in the spring of 486 A. D. the Emperor Woke, remembered by posterity as "Kensu, Temmu," repaired to the park of the summer hall and there held revel by "the winding streams." His guests were a concourse of ministers and of high officials, known at that epoch under the titles of omi, murai and miyako. When the feast was at its height the guests, we read, "raised repeated cries of hurrah." It may fairly be assumed that this formula of gratulation did not originate then, but at any rate it undoubtedly was in Japan more than 14 centuries ago. It is not possible to say of the credit of having invented it.—Japan Mail.
