

MANY FISHERS DISAPPOINTED

FLY-CASTING WAS USELESS.

The Best Results Were Obtained by Use of Angle Worm Bait-On The Cottonwood.

The fishing season was ushered in yesterday morning under rather adverse conditions. Scores of Isaak Walton's disciples left the city Saturday and Sunday for the and three days' fishing in the canyons, and when they return some fairly good catches may be recorded. While large crowds went up the canyons, hordes of fishers visited the streams close to the city.

CONCERT LONG BUT SUCCESSFUL

All Halls College Music Program a Brilliant One.

RECEIPTS EXCEED $2,000.

Dr. Browne's Organ Playing a Feature That Will Be Long Remembered—Work Was All High Standard.

Another notable local musical triumph was the concert given last night in the Tabernacle, as the closing exercise of the All Halls College commencement.

The appreciation of the big audience was evidenced in the applause for the heavier and strictly classical numbers, which is a source of encouragement to those desirous of lifting the standards of the divine art from the mediocre to the sublime, more intelligent and more soul satisfying.

DR. BROWNE'S FINE WORK.

Dr. Browne was, of course, the center of attraction and when he mounted the organ seat, to use an exaggeration, the eyes of the audience were turned towards the mighty instrument, and the great artist who was placing the Rheimsberger sonata score on the music rack, seemed never to leave that seat.

At the close of the sonata number, Dr. Browne presented with a large and beautiful floral piece.

Compositions requiring an entirely different order of interpretation were the Nevin songs. The performer here showed a respect for the peculiar, naive, taking spirit and unique genius with which all of Nevin's compositions are written and whose works are never played without a foot-musical should, like the great Purcell have been carried off in the flower and the promise of his youth.

WHEN LEE AND GRANT MET.

"It was nearly 38 years ago," said a St. Louis paper recently, "that Gen. Robert E. Lee received from Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, his generous conqueror, a reply to his note offering to surrender, and to rapidly by the village of Appomattox Courthouse to see the representative of the Federal forces." W. C. B. Gillespie, of Macon, who claims to be a student for the truth of history, has detected one error in this statement, and writes to Gen. Lee, he declares, did not ride rapidly. He was in no great hurry to surrender. "It so happened," says Mr. Gillespie, "that I was riding along the road on which Gen. Lee was coming from his camp, in plain view of Appomattox, riding on his iron-hooped steed, at what I supposed was the regular walking gait of the horse, sitting erect in his saddle, his white hair somewhat long and having that fine commanding appearance for which he was noted. He was coming to fill an appointment with Gen. Grant, accompanied by Gen. Marshall, his chief of staff, and an orderly in the rear. But he was not riding rapidly, he was not running a race with time, but was letting his horse move at its regular pace, his face rather sorrowful looking, as was natural under the circumstances, but not downcast. I stopped while he passed and gave him the military salute, which he recognized."—Washington Times.

MISS RAMSEY'S SONGS.

Miss Ramsey sang in happiest time and tune. Her rich and thoroughly trained voice is becoming familiar to concert goers in this city, and her reputation was deservedly hearty. Miss Ramsey's voice seems well suited to Dr. Browne's songs. These compositions are sui generis, worthy of the talented composer who wrote them, of a charming and glowing melody and extremely artistic in treatment of theme. They are worthy of a high place in the songs of the day, and their value was more fully understood last night, because clearly understood the best concert numbers ever given in the Tabernacle. It was a musical gem, and the participants, Miss Ramsey, Mr. Kent, Master Pedersen, Prof. McClellan and Dr. Browne, all did justice to the work.

THE CONFESSION OF A WIFE.

"I Would Have Been in My Grave Long Ago Had it Not Been for Paine's Celery Compound."

This is the closing sentence of a thankful and grateful letter of testimony written by Mrs. P. Hoffman, of Kyrtown, Pa. A complication of liver trouble, biliousness and stomach neurosis resisted the best treatment of an able and experienced family physician. When all seemed dark and gloomy, a kind Providence directed an anxious husband to have his wife make use of the medicine that saves even at the eleventh hour. Paine's Celery Compound gloriously triumphed. It removed the most distressing and dangerous symptoms from the blood, toned every organ and nourished the weakened system.

For about four years I suffered from liver and kidney troubles and neuralgia of the stomach. My doctor would do nothing for me. My husband read nothing but Paine's Celery Compound, and bought some for me. After using one-half bottle I was able to get out of bed. I used two bottles and can now do my own housework. Paine's Celery Compound is the best medicine in the world, and I recommend it to all sufferers. Had I not been for Paine's Celery Compound, I would have been in my grave long ago.

AN ESKIMO ROMANCE.

The duke of the Abruzzi has brought back with him from his Polar expedition a number of Eskimo stories.

One of these concerns a young Eskimo who loved the daughter of an explorer. The two hits of these persons were close together, but one night the terrific cold ripped a great crevasse in the ice, and the young man's house was left isolated. A gorge 100 feet deep and 20 feet wide separated it from the igloo or hut, containing the girl, but there was, it is true, a narrow bridge of ice left across the crevasse, and this, the young man found, would bear his weight.

Eskimos sleep in bags. The lover decided that he would, that night, cross the ice bridge, steal the girl, and break down the bridge, so that he and she together might enjoy their honeymoon unmolested.

He planned very successfully. He crept, in the dead of night, into his enemy's hut, he snatched up the maiden in her sack, without awakening any one, he bore her over the ice bridge safely and then he opened the sack to embrace his bride. But, holding its contents, he gave a loud cry. It was not the maiden, but her father, that he had stolen.

"SECRET FOR SECRET."

In the day of Louis XIV even warriors banded epigrams with one another.

The marshal de Grammont had taken a fortress by siege.

"I will tell you a secret," said his military governor, after surrendering. "The reason of my capitulation was that I had no more powder."

"And, secret for secret," returned the marshal, suavely, "the reason of my accepting it on such easy terms was that I had no more balls."—Youth's Companion.

AN APPROPRIATE TOMBSTONE.

"I was strolling through an Oklahoma cemetery one Sunday afternoon with a native of this town," says the editor of the Ponca City Courier, "and we came across a new tombstone. On top of the marble slab was a hand, with the index finger pointing upward. My guide stopped and looked at it, and then looked at the name on the face of the monument. 'Well, well,' he declared, 'if that isn't just like old Thompson. He never did order more than one beer at a time.'—Kansas City Journal.

THE BEST TONIC

In S. S. S. Nature has provided a tonic suited to every requirement of the system when in a debilitated, run down condition. It contains no strong minerals or drugs, but is a pleasant vegetable preparation. You can find no better remedy for toning up the nerves and bringing refreshing, restful sleep when in a low state of health, or sick and worn out with work or worry.

S. S. S. improves the appetite, aids the digestion, and reinforces the system, and its good effects are seen almost from the first dose. It acts promptly in cases of chronic dyspepsia, indigestion and all stomach troubles, and does away with the uncomfortable fullness, nausea, shortness of breath, drowsiness and dizziness that so often come after eating.

S. S. S. is not only the best tonic but possesses alterative or purifying properties, and if there is any taint, humor or poison in the blood it searches it out, and removes it. Many times a low state of health is due to a bad condition of the blood and can only be remedied by a blood purifier and tonic combined, or such a remedy as S. S. S.

If you suffer from debility, insomnia, nervousness, loss of appetite, bad digestion, or any of the symptoms of a disordered blood, nothing will so soon put your blood in good condition, invigorate and tone up the system as S. S. S.
