

The Train to Louisiana

The troubles in Louisiana, as well as in Alabama, South Carolina and other parts of the South, arise primarily from the reconstruction policy of Congress, or, more properly speaking, from the policy of the dominant radical republican party. In disfranchising the intelligent and leading men of the South, and in creating the wholesale of ignorant negroes to political power, we find the cause of the present deplorable state of things. The object, as is well known, was to secure the votes of the Southern States so as to perpetuate the rule of the radical republican party. This might be considered altogether unfair in a strictly party political sense, and it may be that any other party would have used the same advantage for a like purpose. Nevertheless, this feeling has proved disastrous. The policy cannot be governed by ignorance. The attempt to govern the South through the mass of ignorant blacks, who were just emancipated from slavery and who were not at all prepared for civil duties, has proved a lamentable failure, a every statesman must have seen it would. But to make matters worse, the dominant party, in carrying out its policy, hoodwinked the Southern States with carpet baggers, with men of no means or conscience and no feeling of abiding interest in that section of the country. These unscrupulous and needy adventurers were placed in positions of power and trust, while those who belonged to and had a deep interest in the peace and welfare of the South were ostracized. The "unscrupulous scramble" that President Grant speaks of for the spoils of office is among these very adventurers. Still the Federal government appears to adhere to its original policy, notwithstanding the frightful consequences that have resulted from it. We have seen the effect of this policy in Louisiana and in Alabama, which are in accord with the party spirit at Washington, regardless of the will of the people, the right of local self government, or the forms of State law.

Such corruption and anarchy as exist now in the South are not only injurious to that section; not only check the progress and material interests, and, therefore, prove damaging to the business interests of the North, but they are infectious, and must in the end demoralize the whole Republic. It is, in fact, a long step toward centralization, despotism and military rule. It is the way in which all nations have marched the liberties and institutions of which have been subverted or overturned.—N. Y. Herald.

UNION SAFETY LAMP.

It is asserted by all who have seen it to be the best thing of the kind ever put in the market.

The lamp is constructed with two tubes, the outside one intended only for the attachment of the burner, and the inside one to contain oil and receive the light. As there is no communication between these tubes it will be seen that there is no possibility of communicating any heat to the oil, and the oil in the lamp can be kept perfectly cool there is, of course, no chance for an explosion.

The lamp is strongly and well made, attractive in appearance and containing a very new and novel feature. It will be a valuable addition to any household. With all of these advantages it combines cheapness, and from present indications it is destined to become very popular.

In case of accident, the lamp is in no danger of being blown over, or of catching fire. The lamp is all that we claim for it, and we can truly say that it is the most reliable and safe lamp ever put in the market.

This lamp can be filled from the front, or the top of which is a screw.

The lamp can be attached to any Chandelier or Bracket made.
