AL SULLING OF N

Claim That They Were Over Jordan -Myriads Drowned in the Lake.

From reports received from the district lying west of the Jordan river it seems that there were a great many more butterflies in that section yesterday than there were in the city, notwithstanding the fact that they were very numerous here. Speaking of the matter today, Mr. E. S. Lovesy, the pioneer bee man, said to the "News":

"I was across the river yesterday and I did not see millions of butterflies, as many Salt Lakers said they saw, but I am sure that I saw billions of them. In some places there would have been enough to obscure the sun had they flown high enough, but they did not. They kept close to the ground and were making their way westward. It was a little hard for me to tell whether they were small butterflies or large moths. In any event the sight was a most interesting one and one that I will never forget.'

It is stated that millions of the insects attempted to fly across the lake, but soon fell into the briny waves where they perished even as did myriads of grasshoppers many years ago. The "News" endeavored to ring up Saltair this afternoon with a view t confirming the report, but was unable to do so. The low lands of the city had quite as many of the pests today as yesterday, if not more.

J. T. RIDDOUGH FINED $25. Failed to Report Scarlet Fever in His Family.

This afternoon John T. Riddough, of 550 West Third South, was tried and convicted in Judge Timmony's court on the charge of failing to comply with the health ordinance by reporting to the board of health a case of scarlet fever in his family.

The prosecution was conducted by Assistant City Attorney Stewart. The first witness was Dr. Whitney who testified that he discovered that one of Riddough's children, a little girl, was Riddough's children, a little ghrl, was ill with the disease and he made an investigation of the case. He said that at the time he called at the Riddough residence Mr. Riddough was not at home, and Mrs. Riddough told him that her husband had gone away as a safe guard against spreading the dis-ease. He said that the child had a very pronounced case and that some of the pronounced case and that some of the other children were allowed to attend school at the time. Dr. J. C. S. King testified that he saw the case and it was scarlet fover. Also that it had never been reported to him or the health hoard except by Dr. Whitney. Riddough claimed that he was ignorant of the fact that his child had the discuse but admitted that he left home until he was sure. and that there were other cases in the immediate neighborhood.

Judge Timmony gave the defendant a good lecture and fined him $25.

about town as to the condition of the theater, but many of Mr. Clarke's friends were in attendance and they gave him a handsome reception and some lively curtain calls. The main interest centered on the appearance of Miss Levy and Miss Clawson, both of acted naturally, and both whom whom received hearty encores for their interpolated songs. They certainly ranked with the best of the other la dies. The support, while not brilliant, was capable and comprised two or three quite clever people. If there were no decided hits, it is the fault more of the play than the players. The best instances of acting were the sons of Mr. Graham, the Daisy of Miss Hathaway, and the Miss Tomkins, of Leona Frankel. The same bill goes tonight and tomorrow night with a souvenin matinee tomorrow afternoon. The Henry Miller sale is now going on at the theater. The opening occurs Monday night, and a big engagement is looked for.

The repairs on the theater lean-to have already commenced. The scene room will be taken down entire and rebuilt with brick, but it is likely that the part devoted to the green room will be found to be uninjured.

The dates of the appearance here of Norris & Rowe's trained animal shows are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings next. Their tent will pitched on Fourth South between State and Main.
