er arrives first on the scene. A dispatch from Tacoma says that estimates made by local shipping men show that about 15,000 men are intending to reach Cape Nome by the first steamers from Puget Sound and Daw-son. Two-thirds of this number will go from Tacoma, Seattle, San Francisco and the balance will go down the Yukon from Dawson and other Yukon towns. A great prospective race is in sight beween these two contingents. First arrivals will secure the best part of the beach, which will be in the greatest demand because beach claims may be worked without flumes or machinery. According to latest advices over half of Dawson's population will head for

Cape Nome as fast as the Yukon steamers wintering on the upper river can follow the outgoing lee down stream. Dawson miners have great hopes of reaching their Mecca first, and to accomplish this are even pre-pared to leave the steamers below Nulato and make a portage of 200 miles across the Tundra. Nearly thirty steamers, each carry-
