witness through a line of examination which dealt a great deal with tempera-tures in the bag house. Witness testi-fied that the hand roasters, which were abandoned because they made too much sulphuric acid, which in turn ate the bugs of the bag house, were operated at a temperature of 207 degrees C, which is a great deal hotter than the new converter furnaces, the latter kind not being to the temperature at which sulphuric acid, ecases to be a liquid and evaporates as a gas. The witness was asked many questions tending to show that this merely meant that the new roasters did away with the problem of sulphuric acid, by allowing it to pass off as sulphur dioxide, instead of heat-ing it to a temperature where it would ing it to a temperature where it would absorb more oxygen and become sul-phuric acid, thus attacking the bags

CASE IN POINT.

While trying to get Prof. Ebaugh to admit that it was highly improb-able that the gas would settle in one spot long enough to do any damage, on account of the varying winds, Judge Dickson secured this statement from him:

from him: "In the summer of 1906 there was a period of a week when south winds and steady rainfall caused the gas to sweep a wide path in which it did more destruction than in all the rest of the year combined. The gas seems to form sulphuric acid within the plant cell by absorbing oxygen from the pro-toplasmic mass, or other cell ingredi-ents." ents.

toplasmic mass, or other cell ingredi-ents." The attempt to prove, however, that the volume of sulphur gas, when loos-ei upon open fields, and with vary-ing wind currents could not settle in one place long enough to damage, how-ever, was the chief one the smelter at-torneys were developing this morning, and they put on another witness to bring out this item. The witness was Chemist Benedict of the U. S. Smelter. He testified that for 1905 and 1906, he had made tables of the direction of wind currents from all eight points of the compass. In 1906 9.44 per cent of the winds had blown southwest. In 1905 6.52 per cent had blown south, and 36 per cent north. At the conclusion of his testimony the measure of sulphur dioxide will be purther investigated, to prove it harm isothe easters of the respective sides.

Street Car Company Getting Ready To Clear the Highway.

In the matter of last night's action by the city council on the trolley pole question on east Second South street, Utah Light & Railway officials say Utah Light & Rahway ometais say the curb standards were ordered long ago from the lilinois Steel company, and should have been here before this. At the same time their delay in ar-riving does not affect street traffic: there is no real obstruction, as in the case of the telegraph poles. But it is claimed the Western Union could move the 8 or 10 poles that are in the way, with very little trouble and expense, as suggested by General Superintendent suggested by General Superintendent Summers of the Bell Telephone com-pany; and it seems there is rally no reason why it should not be done.
