For California.—Yesterday afternoon John W. Young and W. W. Riler, Esq., started on a business trip to California. They anticipated being absent only a short time.

Hard to Please.—Residents on the upper lands are rejoicing because of the fine refreshing rains, while some of those located lower down are complaining of a super-abundance of water.

The Concert.—The musical entertainment given by the Union Glee Club, in the 14th Ward Assembly Rooms, last evening, was, in many respects, a flattering success.

This vocal organization have been before the public at various times, leading their effective aid to the furtherance of charitable objects; and having determined to give a concert themselves, it is a pleasing sign of appreciation that the public turned out in such encouraging numbers to require them.

Although there were several productions, during the evening, which detracted from the effect of the exhibition, the general feeling of those present was, that the Glee Club and those who kindly assisted them, had accomplished a decided success.

Probably the least amusing performance of the evening were the catches by the four gentlemen, while the choruses "The Serenade," "Comrades in Arms," etc., the singing of Misses Swan and Olsen, the instrumental accompaniments of Messrs. Croxall, Daynes and Hedger, the comic songs of Mr. Gardner, and the admirable overtures of the theatrical orchestra were the principal events of the evening.

Prof. Thomas, the conductor, a gentleman always heartily interested in the cultivation of music and musical tastes among the people of this country, can score one more mark to his already augmented list of successes.

Valuable Newspaper Directory.—Rowell's Newspaper Directory for 1877 is out, and a copy has been received at this office. It is the most complete work of the kind in the United States. It is published, annually, at five dollars per copy. To business men who advertise extensively this work is invaluable. It contains a vast amount of information concerning all the most important newspapers in the country.

The aim of the publishers is, undoubtedly, to present an accurate account of the status, circulation and general influence of all the journals in the land worthy of notice. Most of the matter is trustworthy and reliable. Occasionally, publishers who furnish Rowell & Co. with items for this work, exaggerate facts in relation to their papers.

We commend the work as a carefully prepared epitome of newspaperdom in the United States, and advise those who desire to obtain useful knowledge on the subject of the work, to send $5.00 to Geo. F. Rowell & Co., 41 Park Row, N. Y.

Theatre.—To-morrow evening Mr. J. C. Graham, the popular local comedian, takes a benefit at the Theatre, when he will produce Watts Phillips' great sensational play entitled "Fettered," which will be put on the stage in superior style. Mr. Graham will assume the character of "Tom Tit," a role suited to his peculiar abilities and style. Miss Colebrook appears as "Florence," Mr. Lindsey as "Jasper Blythe," Mr. Harris as "Nathaniel." The remaining characters by the company. Mr. B. W. Carington volunteers to sing the descriptive song, "Will O' the Wisp." The performance concludes with a new and original farce, written expressly for Mr. Graham, by Mr. H. L. A. Culmer of this city, and entitled "Bulldozing."

Y. M. M. I. A.
TOQUERVILLE, June 4, 1877.
Editor Deseret News:
Dear Sir.—A meeting was held here on the 13th of May, to re-organize the Y. M. M. I. A. The following officers were elected: President, Alma P. Spilbury; First Vice-President, Joseph J. Clawson; Second Vice-President, Orval M. Allen, Jr.; Secretary, Augustus M. Slack; Assistant Secretary, James Duffin.

We have held one meeting since the organization, with good attendance. There are forty names enrolled at present, and they all seem willing to go ahead and do all they can to help the institution along.

Yours respectfully,
A. M. SLACK, Sec'y.

Lightning Franks.—The following came this morning per Deseret Telegraph.
Beaver, June 8, 1877.
As a man named Stoddard was riding horseback near Minersville, on Tuesday, June 5th, the horse and rider were struck by the ground. The horse escaped, and has not been found. Stoddard was not seriously injured.

George S. Jenner had his horse knocked from his shoulder the distance of a rod.

A ball of lightning entered the Minersville telegraph office, stripped the covering from a small copper wire, and melted the wire into a hundred round balls, the size of duck shot. It then passed to the operator's table and badly burned the oil-cloth covering. The report was like a cannon.

A span of horses took fright and ran away, but did no damage.

The lightning in the Beaver office resembled a blaze of fire. A small wire was burned in two.

Supreme Court.—June 7th, afternoon.
John Gray et al vs. A. Howe et al argued and submitted.

Friday, June 8th, morning.
The application of Charles W. Stainer for admission to practice in this Court, presented by J. L. Rawlins, Esq., was referred to a committee, consisting of Messrs. Rawlins, Bennett and Rosborough.

Stephen W. Taylor, respondent vs. Salt Lake County, appellant, argued by Snow for appellant and J. G. Sutherland for respondent, submitted and taken under advisement.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Abundance of it.
SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., June 7, 1877.
Editor Deseret News.

I was formerly struck with the inconsistency of the sensationalists on the "uprising question," on making a recent visit to the prosperous town of Bountiful. While looking at their broad acres of waving grain, their beautiful orchards, their thriving condition generally, their peaceful quietude, I asked myself the question, "What object would these unassuming people have in the midst of a prosperity which depends on peace, and whose greatest enemy would be war, what object could they have in rebellion to the Government of the United States or its authority and courts?" Let common sense answer.

In peace and quietness they hold their wealth, for it consists of immense crops not yet matured; in lands which they have recently purchased from the Government, and which in case of disturbance would sink to a mere nominal value. Their improvements they could not carry with them, hence with the exception of what stock and wages they might possess, an outbreak would involve the sacrifice of every available means of support, besides the domestic felicity by which they are surrounded, to say nothing of the large amount of now valuable property, in these lands, crops, orchards, houses and improvements, which would to them be utterly wasted.

Is it probable that such a catastrophe would be precipitated by their own act? Not much! It is owing to this very state of things that the Government has endeavored so much from their enemies, and plodded on in silence, trusting in the great future to show what industry and forbearance may produce.

Labored under the grossest injustice, misrepresentation, and knavery they work steadily on. Their apricot and peach crop bids fair to be excellent, but their apples and plums will be scarce, the latter they impute to the large crop of plums last year. The recent rains have made every farmer look joyous, for the labor saved in irrigation will be inestimable.

Their co-op. store is prosperous and in spite of sensation and malignant epithets all things seem to smile at least upon this beautiful and happy region.

CONSISTENCY.
All Chinamen are honest once a year—at New Year. Then every Chinaman is particular to pay his debts, if he steals the money to do it. He differs from many "Christians" in this, that they will steal at New Year, but will not pay their debts.

DIED.
At Plain City, Sunday evening, June 3rd, of apoplexy, ELIZABETH BROOKS, wife of John Spier, widow of Thomas Virgo, deceased was born in Avon, near the forest of Dean, Gloucestershire, England, Feb. 14th, 1823. At seventeen years of age she married to Thomas Virgo, who died in 1844; emigrated to America in the fall of 1844, and to Utah in 1862. Her husband became insane several years before his death, during which time she was a great and tireless being, frequently threatened with violence, and occasionally suffering abuse, all of which she bore with patience, and feeling great kindness in relieving all his wants.
