fairs.

Senator Brown. Senator Brown's life was prolonged for several hours by the injection of salt solution and by administering oxy-gen. Dr. Charles White, superinten-dent of the hospital. declared that Sen-whether he had attempted suicide. Tally notified the police, and Mr. Brown was taken to the emergency tospital, and Mrs. Bradley turned over to the officers.

Mr. Talty correborated the maid's ustimony and added that Senator

Brown, pointing at Mrs. Bradley, said:

Detective Burlingame testified that Mrs, Bradley told him at the station house that she fired the shot. "She told me that she was the mothof two of Brown's children, and of his refusal to marry her," said the deactive. "She rehearsed the facts of ber connection with Brown."

Dr. White, superintendent of the mergency hospital, stated that at one ine during his illness, Brown said that he did not intend to prosecute Mrs. Budley in the event of his recovery. After further evidence of a corrowative nature, the fury returned the flowing verdict:

Arthur Brown came to his death Me. 13, 1906, at the emergency hosplal, from a gunshot wound in the bladder. Said gunshot wound was caused by a pistol, fired by Anna M. Bradley. We hold said Anna M. Bradby for the action of the grand jury." When the verdict was read, Mrs. Bradley collapsed, and for a time was in a serious condition. As soon as she was able to make the trip she was removed to jail. Throughout the inquest Mrs. Bradley had been composed and apparently unconcerned.

That the life of Arthur Brown is at an end is not surprising to the public which has followed the reports that have been telegraphed from Washington and printed in the evening and morning press for several days past. It was known all the time that he was in the very shadows and that there was scarcely a chance in a thousand for his recovery.

It was just midnight, the dispatches say, when the last spark of his life went out and the most dramatic chapter in his tragic career was closed. Of course, there will be other chapters in the sequel that will surely come when Mrs. Bradley faces the demands of the law on a charge of murder. His body will be brought home for burial, and it was further stated in the morning dailles that his remains are to be escorted by Mrs. Annie Adams. Many people, even Mrs. Adams' own relatives are at a loss to know why she should do so. They are also surprised at another matter, a refort to the effect, made by close assoclates of Brown, that there is every reason to believe that his proposed meeting with Mrs. Adams in New York was for no less a purpose than to lead her to the altar. It is also stated that Mrs. Bradley without question knew of this intention and that it figured trongly as an actuating motive in the sanguinary results that followed. Mrs. Adams could not be reached by matter of Senator Brown's estate is being discussed today. Not long ago it amounted to nearly $200,000, according to the figures of attorneys who were then in his confidence. Since that time Senator Brown is said by those who knew him best to have reform a large measure from former habits of drinking.

In his name are valuable blocks mining stocks, a home on east South Temple street, and he owns a number of other pieces of Salt Lake real estate. The big ranch at Hailey, Ida., on which Senator Brown spent over $100,-000, was sold several months ago, and the proceeds used to getting the estate into shape.

MADE MANY WILLS.

Senator Brown told friends before leaving for Washington that his will would be found in the safe, should anywill thing happen. Some of his friends delare today that he should have said 'wills" for some of them say they have seen at least a dozen of such documents.

At one time he made a will deeding Mrs. Bradley the Idaho ranch, at another time deeding her the South Temple street home, and at still another time, setting aside a maintenance for young Arthur Brown Bradley, who is said to much resemble Senator Brown, It was his habit, it seems, to strike off a will in some particular mood one day, and the very next day, repudiate it with another document. From apparently reliable sources it is learned that the last document cuts off Mrs. Bradley and her two children without a cent, while Max Brown, of whom Senator Brown was very fond, declaring him often to be a boy after his own heart, receives the largest bequests. Local attorneys do not consider that Mrs. Bradley will fare so well before Washington courts as she would in Utah. They declare that in Washington the local sympathy with Mrs. Bradley will not be felt, that the case will be prosecuted especially hard because they do not wish to encourage women to journey down to the capital to shoot states-men against whom they have a grudge, and the ophico is prevalent that a and the opinion is prevalent that long sentence will be the outcome, Mo of the witnesses will have to be summoned from Utah.

WON'T OPEN THE SAFE.

Archie Livingston, who has been in the office of Arthur Brown since March, 1897, was seen today by the "News" with reference to the will, Mr. Livingston said: "No person knows the combination of that safe but me. I want to say that the safe will not be opened for anybody or for any reason whatever until the boy arrives. I received a telegram from Max Brown this morning stating that he would leave tonight with the body he would leave tonight with the body of his father. As to the contents of the will abso-

Mrs. Bradley is on the verge of col-lapse, and her physicians say that it may be several days before she will may be several days before she will be able to be arraigned in court. ### MRS. ADAMS INFORMED.

Mrs. Anna C. Adams, mother of Maude Adams, the actress, was notified Maude Adams, the actress, was nothed of Senator Brown's death by Dr. White. She will arrive in Washington tomor-row and will accompany the body to Salt Lake City. Mrs. Adams' name has been brought into the case in connection with letters which she wrote to Brown and were found in the possession of Mrs. Bradley when she was arrested. The former senator's son says Mrs. Adams has been a long personal friend of the family. It was to appear as counsel before the supreme court of the United States on Monday on a mining case, that Sen-ator Brown came to Washington, where he was followed by Mrs. Bradley, who, it is said, learned of his appointment to meet Mrs. Adams in New York after he had a peared before the suprema court. She left for Washington immediately and registered at the Hotel Raleigh as "Mrs. Anna Brown" and was assigned to a room near Senator Brown's apart-ments. According to a statement made hy Senator Brown shortly after he by Senator Brown shortly after he was taken to the hospital, he found Mrs. Bradley in his room going through his private papers. She demanded that he marry her at once and when he refused, she fired the shot which proved fatal. There was no eye-witness of the trag-

MRS. BRADLEY GETS NEWS.

M'as

Mrs. Bradley received the news of the death of her victim with composure. She had retired abuot 9 o'clock and soon fell asleep. Shortly after midnight she was awakened by the ringing of the telephone by persons who desired to know whether or not the fact of Mr. Brown's death had been communicated Brown's death had been communicated to her. She arose and called to the police sergeant in charge, asking him to telephone to the hospital and ascer-tain the condition of Mr. Brown. An attempt was made to keep the news from her, but she learned the facts from conversation which she heard out-side her cell. When some one re-marked "Sanator Brown died at mid. side her cell. When some one re-marked, "Senator Brown died at midnight," she sank back upon her cot with a low moan. The matron entered to comfort her, but Mrs. Bradley soon regained her composure, and said, "Well, I expected it: I feit that he would not be able to live." She made no attempt to say anything more, but returned to her bed. She did not weep, and appeared to have full control of her feelings. WHAT MRS. ADAMS SAYS. Mrs. Annie Adams, mother of the

ous theatrical star, Maude Adams, and herself an eminent actress, today told for the first time the secrets that caused the shooting of former United States Senator Arthur Brown last Saturday by Mrs. Anna Bradley, in his rooms in the Hotel Raleigh, Washington

GREATLY SURPRISED

"I was in Philadelphia at the time of the shooting, and, of course, was great-ly surprised. I came here to await developments and will go to Washington if the senator recovers sufficiently to send for me, or I will go there in the event of his death, which seems prob-"In either event I shall issue a statement that will fully explain the con-tents of the letters from me found in Senator Brown's room. I can fully ex-plain every passage and will show that nothing more than a close and warm personal friendship existed between the senator and myself.

"I could undoubtedly have prevented he shooting had I had the chance. if the Mrs. Bradley had come to me and asked for my service, I would have been able to have made Senator Brown do what she wished. I could have made him marry her and give to her and his children his name

"Mrs. Bradley's grievances were not imaginary; they were real. Had I known that the matter was so desperate and that such a stage in their relations had been reached. I would have insist-ed on a settlement of the matter satisfactory to Mrs. Bradley and her children.

THINKS HER INSANE.

"But Mrs. Bradley did not seek my services. I did not know that she followed Mr. Brown to Washington from Salt Lake City. If I had known that she was following him, I would have taken steps to see her. It is all too bad. The poor woman must have been insane

"I first met Mr. Brown 25 years ago in Salt Lake, when he was settling up the affairs of my father's estate. We became good friends and had met occasionally and corresponded irregularly ever since until last summer. Then we inet again in Salt Lake City and be-came very good friends. The senator came very good friends. The senator was very kind to me. At that time I did not know of any love affairs he might have had. "He later told me of the affair with

Mrs. Bradley, and it seemed to worry him greatly. He spoke to me frequently of it and I know that he was in a regretful mood." The dispatches from Washington just after the shooting on Saturday, said that Senator Brown had cast off Mrs. said Bradley some time last summer, did not mention Mrs. Adams, T The said that the shooting was the result of the senator's failure to maintain the attitude he had formerly borne to her.

THEIR NEW YORK MEETING. "During the summer and fall I saw the senator very often," Mrs. Adams continued, "and when I started out on the road again late in the fall, we had arranged to meet in New York this week. I was playing in Miss Barry-more's 'Captain Jinks' company, which closed in Philadelphia. Then I was to lay off here in New York until after the holidays, while the rest of the pany put on 'Alice. Sit by the Fire' in Chicago. The senator and I had planned to spend the holidays together in New York.

While I am very anxious about m letters found in Senator Brown's desk, I want to say that while I can explain all of them. I would hate to see a wrong inetrpretation put upon them by the public

"I am convinced that I am the cause "I am convinced that I am the cause of the shooting, but innocently so. Mrs. Bradley evidently knew of the friendship of the senator for me and became jealous. I only wish that I could have seen Mrs. Bradley before she went to Senator Brown's room to shoot him."

Mr. Morthis which thally ended his life. Mr. Mor-ris was a good deal of a pioneer in many ways. He went up to Sweet-water, Wyo., when gold was discov-ered there in 1874, and took up claims. As an instance of his independence and pertinacity, it is related of him while there that he was held up at a toll bridge by the keeper demanding an exhorbitant toil, and rather than exhorbitant toll, and rather than it, he rounded up his friends and an pay it, he rounded up his over which built a bridge of his own, over which they crossed the stream.

FRIEND OF THE MORMONS.

The deceased was ever a warm friend and champion of the Mormon people many of whose leaders he knew inti mately. In days that were dark his es could always be counted upon and they were the more appreciated from the fact that they were always volunteered. The man who berated the saints and the authorities of the Church in his presence could always count on an argument, and no false statement about them, that fell on his ears went unchallenged. He knew them, their customs and intentions an well, perhaps, as anyone not of their faith and seidom failed to put his op-ponents and theirs to rout. When the news of his death came it was a shock to many "News" readers, few of whom had heard that he was seriously fill; and now that his earthly career is over it will be the universal hope of them of that he will be seried to be them all that he will be repaid in imperishable rewards for every good act of his busy life. !

ORTHODOX HEBREW.

He was a strong Orthodox Jew, and when the Monteflore Congregation wanted to build a synagogue, and had but $1.12 in the treasury, he went out and rustled up $12,000 for them, and the Synagogue was built. He was also a very charitable man, and in a most unostentatious way assisted many of the worthy and deserving poor, and people who were temporarily in distress. ASSAILS SENATOR SMOOT.

As to Senator Smoot, he said, it made no difference whether he was or was not a polygamist. The senator was a fillar in the church and in control of its temporal, spiritual and political poi-icles, and was selected for the senate icles, and was selected for the senate because of this position in the Church. "Smoot," he said, "represents the Church and not the state, and would do the bidding of the Church before he would serve the real interests of the state or the nation. By being an apostle of the Church, Smoot is if mem-her of this high conspiracy. He is one ber of this high conspiracy. He is one of the chief conspirators, and by his acquiescence supports the plans and aims of the conspiracy." • The breaking down of the influence of the Church in politics, Mr. Dubols asserted, would do more than anything else to put a stop to polygamy.

IDAHO CAMPAIGN.

Turning his attention to the cam-paign preceding the recent election, Mr. Dubois read the press dispatches of Oct. 22, which stated that the president had sent Secy. Taft to Idaho in order to speak in advocacy of law and order. At that time, Mr. Dubois said, he had telegraphed to the president that the only issue in Idaho was the desire of the Mormon hierarchy to continue to dominate the polities of the state and that the president had been misled if he thought there was any other issue. The Republican state platform, he said, was absolutely slient regarding law and order, and notwithstanding the Democratic platform had denounced the murder of Gov. Steunenberg and demanded the conviction of the guilty party, none of the Democratic speak-ers had discussed any subject save Mormonism, hence there was no other issue in the Idaho campaign.

CITES PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGES

Mr. Dubois referred to messages of Presidents Buchanan, Johnson, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur and Cleveland, citing what he termed "the menace of Mormonism," and proceeded: "I call attention to the messages of the presidents for two purposes; one to indicate the views of our former executives; the other to mark the contrast between them and the present occupant of the White House. Mormonism is more insiduous, more daugerous and a greater menace to our government and civilization today then it was at any particular period when these messages were addressed to Congress. Yet President Roosevelt roes not deem the sub-fect worthy of mention in a message filled with suggestions. A majority of a great committee of the senate, after patient and exhaustive research, have reported that Reed smoot is not entitled to his reat as a senator. It was not a partisan report. It should not be a partisan subject. No president heretofore has made it a matter of partisan poli-tics. President Roosevelt has.

SORE OVER TAFT.

"When Gov. Gooding of Idaho and the chairman of the Republican state committee were engaged in institug inw breaking and law-defying Mormons to additional lawlessness, the president of the United States sent his secretary of war to idaho to plead with the people to stand by Gov. Gooding in order to maintain law and order in Idaho

"The non-Mormon citizenshi, of Utah and Idaho think they are entitled to the support of law abiding citizens everywhere in their efforts to maintain American citizenship in these Mormon states, and if they cannot receive that. they have the right to demand that the president of the United States shall not use the great power vested in him in the interest of these law defying and un-American organizations in their de
