Neighbors were soon aroused who formed a bucket brigade and confined the fire to the building in which it originated, although a barn filled with hay was only about a rod distant. The Y. M. M. I. A. of Cache Stake have made arrangements with the B. Y. College for the inauguration and maintenance of a M. I. course similar to the one that has been so successful at the Provo Academy. In addition to the benefits to be derived from this course, one scholarship for any regular college course will be given each association in the Stake, entitling one pupil to a twenty weeks' course. The attendance at the B. Y. College will be so large this year that additional class and lecture rooms have been secured outside of the College building. On Friday, a week ago, similar sheep sold for as low as $2.25 per head. On Monday of this week they brought from 75 cents to one dollar above that figure. All depends upon the demand, and, said Mr. McBride today, two or three days make a great deal of difference, as in the instance cited.

Mr. McBride will take the flock through himself. They number something over 3,000 and will fill eighteen cars. They were summered on the Sanpete mountains and are in good condition.

There was a bad runaway Monday morning. It appears that Mr. A. Fox, an employe of the copper works in North Salt Lake, came into town to attend to some business. He left his horse hitched to a post outside Jenkins's harness store on east Second South street. The animal became frightened at a passing street car, broke the hitching strap and headed westward on a mad run. At the intersection of Second South and East Temple he caused a lively scattering of pedestrians. Unfortunately Mrs. Snell, a lady of sixty, and her daughter, Mrs. Newman, were unable to get out of the way, and the animal knocked them down and ran completely over Mrs. Snell,
