SENATE. The inundation Relief Bill. Washington, 5.—The committee on appropriations reported back the bill appropriating $90,000 for the sufferers by the overflew in Louisiana and Mississippi, with an additional section appropriating an additional $69,000 for the issue of temporary supplies of food and temporary supplies of food and lothing.

Edmunds moved an amendment Hmiting the operation of the law to the 1st of September.

Alcorn urged the necessity of care in the distribution, as the negroes were already refusing to work, saying that the U.S. was going to feed and clothe them. The Secretary of War should have the exclusive control of the fund. He deflow was the defective state of the levees, and he argued that the best means of relief would be for the U.S. to take control of the levees, and hire poor speeple to work and repair them properly, so as to prevent a recurrence of such disasters.

After further debate, Sargent moved to re-commit the bill, which was agreed to, which pointed Tipton's remark that the discussion had already been so prolonged that the sufferers must be dead, and the appropriation thad better be for the funeral expenses. The Senate resumed the consideration of the civil rights bill, and Gordon gave notice of an amendment striking out the clause relative to equality in schools. Adourned.
