MURDERED MAN'S IDENTITY DOUBTED

Many Conflicting Circumstances
Enshroud the Tragedy in Mystery.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETING

Wyoming Man Dies in Hospital—
Wedding—Operation for Appendicitis—News Briefs.

Considerable mystery seems to surround the identity of the man found murdered in a box car in the depot yards on Tuesday evening. So many conflicting circumstances have developed during the last 24 hours that it seems impossible to explain them except on the theory that there were two men named Fred Scott. It is pretty well established, however, that the murdered man is not Fred Scott of Hatch, Ida., although one of the neighbors of the Hatch family, Joseph Cook, called at the undertaking parlors yesterday and gave as his opinion that the dead man was the Fred Scott of Hatch.

Yesterday an O. S. L. brakeman named Harrison told the officers that he had boarded the train at Cache Junction Tuesday last and rode at least a part of the distance toward Ogden. This train was the one that brought the car in which the dead body was found into this city. He said that the man was intoxicated and his description fitted the dead man exactly, even to a crippled hand and a rag on his finger.

A number of employees who worked with Scott on the sewer claim that the dead man worked with them, but he was employed there only a short time, and it is possible that they might have been mistaken.

Recent information was furnished by W. C. Howarth of the W. O. Kay company which employed Fred Scott at Cache Junction loading grain. He is quite positive that the dead man is not Scott, and does not resemble him at all. Howarth saw Scott for the last time a week ago last Monday.

A post mortem examination made last night showed that the bullet had not passed through the heart as at first supposed, although it had passed near it. It would therefore have been possible for the man to have been shot after leaving Cache Junction and to have died some time before the body was found. This would account for the body being warm when turned over to the undertaker. The physicians making the autopsy found no food in the stomach, which is a strong indication that this man is not the Scott who left the hotel with Stone about 2 o'clock the day of the murder.

Another circumstance tending to show that the dead man had not been in Ogden long was the bit of paper found under the sweatband of his hat. This paper was a portion of the Salt Lake Herald, first edition of Oct. 30. The first edition was informed that the man was not in Ogden, but that he was in Idaho and Cache county only. It therefore seems probable that there were two men named Scott. Stone, the man arrested for the murder, and who admitted that he was with Scott at 2 o'clock on the day of the crime, was yesterday taken to the undertaker's parlors and shown the dead body. He immediately said that that was not the Scott he knew, that he had never seen this man before. The officers are now convinced that he is telling the truth, and he will likely be released in a day or two.

Another clue is furnished by trainmen, who say that the man answering the description of the dead man told them at Cache Junction that his name was James Lynch, that he had worked in a livery stable at Ananda, and that several years ago he was coachman for Walker brothers in Salt Lake.

DIED IN HOSPITAL.

Harry Simpson of Rawlins, Wyo., died Thursday night at the Ogden general hospital of pulmonary troubles. He was manager of the railroad hotel at Rawlins, and arrived in Ogden only a day or two ago, coming here for treatment. He was promoted to the position of manager of the Rawlins hotel some time ago from a position in the commissary department of the company hotel in Ogden. Mr. Simpson was well known and popular among the railroad men.

FUNDRAISING SERVICES.

Impressive funeral services over the remains of Seymour A. Ekins, the 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Ekins who was found dead in his bed Wednesday morning, were held yesterday afternoon at the Slaterville ward meetinghouse, Bishop Slater presiding. Some sweet music was furnished by the ward choir. Comforting and consoling addresses were made by Elder George Stagner, Bishops McFarland, Slater and Martin. The services were largely attended and a large funeral cortege followed his remains to their last resting place in the Ogden City cemetery. The grave was dedicated by Pastor George W. Larkin.

PUBLIC NIGHT SCHOOL.

The board of education considered the following matters at its regular meeting last night:

Supt. Allison stated to the board that a number of the teachers have been considering the advisability of establishing a night school for the coming winter. That they have decided that if it meets with the approval of the board they will establish such a school in the basement of the Dee building, will give their time to the work gratis, giving the young people an opportunity to gain an education after working hours and a place to spend their evenings to an advantage. The matter was referred to the teachers' committee.

Miss Wainwright, culture instructor, was present and outlined to the board a plan for giving physical culture instructions to either the grades or the high school. The matter was referred to Dr. E. M. Conroy.

The opening of the Dee building will be celebrated next Thursday, when the parents will be invited to inspect the building and work on Friday evening the board and teachers will meet at the building and listen to a suitable program.

BOY BREAKS HIS ARM.

Fred Storve, the 10-year-old son of George A. Storve, is suffering from a badly fractured right arm. The injury was received by the boy falling into a cellar. Edward Scherer and family expect to leave for Sacramento, Cal., on Sunday. They will probably remain there permanently.

ARRESTED FOR FORGERY.

Two Strangers in Trouble—New Amusement Hall—Ideal Weather.

Special Correspondence.

Moab, Grand Co., Nov. 2.—A few days ago our little town was visited by two strangers who claimed to have come from the south country. One of them—referred to as the larger one—was in town a few days before the other appeared, but finally they were both seen of our streets together, but the most of their time seems to have been spent in the local saloons here, drinking and sitting at the card tables.

After a few days the smaller one passed a check with one of our local merchants, supposed to have been signed by Fred N. Frewer of La Sal, this state, amounting to $48, and later passed another bearing the same signature, for fifty odd dollars, at one of the saloons. At this point a question was raised as to the genuineness of checks passed, and the result was that a bold piece of forgery was uncovered, arrest followed, and the culprits were safely lodged behind the bars of our jail, and will remain there until the next session of the Seventh judicial district court, when they are quite liable to get free transportation to Salt Lake City.

We are having the most ideal weather one could desire in this part of the country, many of the trees in the valley are clothed with their summer coat of green, something quite extraordinary for this time of the year. It looks now as though we were going to have fine weather up until Christmas, but even though it is so fine, it is a southeast Utah history repeating itself.

TWO BOYS' SHOCKING DEATH

Charley Wolf and Frank Hinman Drink Squirrel Poison.

Special Correspondence.

Cardston, Alberta, Canada, Oct. 31.—The two boys who were yesterday terribly shocked by the accidental poisoning of two boys. It appears that four boys were out at play when one suggested that there was a pile of rubbish at a certain place and he believed some bottles of beer were in it. They proceeded to investigate and Charles Wolf, the 13-year-old son of John A. Wolf, and Frank Hinman, 11 years old, the son of M. L. Hinman, got hold of one of the bottles, both drank of the stuff and were immediately taken with cramps. The stuff they had taken proved to be liquid strychnine, that had been prepared for ground squirrels. The other two boys got a bottle of what they took to be home made beer and had a very narrow escape of taking some of the poison. In half an hour both the boys were dead. The poison died in great agony, nothing could be done to help them.

The affair has been a great shock to the community, who are full of sympathy for the bereaved parents. Mrs. Wolf is in Logan for medical treatment. It is feared the news of the calamity will be a serious shock to her. Mr. L. Hinman the father of the other boy is at Calgary at work, but has been telegraphed for.

This shocking accident is another warning to those who handle poisons to be careful what they do with it, and should also serve as a warning to boys not to drink unknown stuff from old bottles.

The poison died in great agony, nothing could be done to help them.

The affair has been a great shock to the community, who are full of sympathy for the bereaved parents. Mrs. Wolf is in Logan for medical treatment. It is feared the news of the calamity will be a serious shock to her. Mr. L. Hinman the father of the other boy is at Calgary at work, but has been telegraphed for.

This shocking accident is another warning to those who handle poisons to be careful what they do with it, and should also serve as a warning to boys not to drink unknown stuff from old bottles.

Special Correspondence.

Cardston, Alberta, Canada, Oct. 31.—The two boys who were yesterday terribly shocked by the accidental poisoning of two boys. It appears that four boys were out at play when one suggested that there was a pile of rubbish at a certain place and he believed some bottles of beer were in it. They proceeded to investigate and Charles Wolf, the 13-year-old son of John A. Wolf, and Frank Hinman, 11 years old, the son of M. L. Hinman, got hold of one of the bottles, both drank of the stuff and were immediately taken with cramps. The stuff they had taken proved to be liquid strychnine, that had been prepared for ground squirrels. The other two boys got a bottle of what they took to be home made beer and had a very narrow escape of taking some of the poison. In half an hour both the boys were dead. The poison died in great agony, nothing could be done to help them.
