

MISSION NEWS FROM THE EASTERN STATES

Brooklyn Conference.—Elders laboring in Brooklyn, a city of 10,000, have demonstrated that city work can be done without purse or scrip. Elders R. H. McLaughlin and Gustavson are doing a good work in that city, making many friends who have been converted and their message with them. A recent convert in New York city was visited by a brother from the East, who came expecting to find a good work in that city. In the work and living the gospel as far as they know it and always glad to be in the work. The Sunday school here is doing a good work. The school is united in their work and a great many others are taking part. We have an average attendance of 25 and meetings are always well attended. We held a baptismal service here yesterday, when Elder Jerry Reed took four honest souls into the water. There are a number of others who are almost ready to be baptized. Some of them had to go away from the water without being baptized. Everywhere we have been in the seven or eight counties visited we find a kind, friendly feeling and wherever we have held meetings we were entertained to remain and when we explained that time would not permit, they would ask that elders be sent to visit them and they wanted to hear more from us. The spirit of inquiry is surely with the people of this part of the conference.

Central States Mission.—The following clipping is taken from a paper printed in Kitzmiller, Maryland. The original heading was "The Elders' Visit to Kitzmiller, Md." The writer believes in the "square deal," and gives it even when the Mormons are under consideration. Recently we had the pleasure of visiting a little church and listening to a very able discourse on the "square deal." It was a fine sermon, and we left the church feeling benefited and believing that it was good to be there. The church is a fine one, and the people are a fine lot. California Mission Notes.—Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 15.—Since our last writing, the elders laboring at Los Angeles have again been deprived of their place of holding street meetings because of the extended limits of the restricted district. It was just about a year before then, Aug. 7, that all permits for holding street meetings in the business center of the city were annulled and a restricted district created including that portion of the city. The district has been extended since that time, and the elders have been deprived of their place of holding street meetings because of the extended limits of the restricted district.

Grotesque, statue-like rocks, urged the imagination in thinking them objects of other interesting figures. At one point there are flat formations resembling heaps of immense griddle cakes, disintegrating in circumference as the top layers are reached.

Notes from Tazewell County, Virginia.—Through courtesy of Elder Mathias F. Chace, The News publishes a few extracts from a letter written Sept. 2 by C. M. Hauser, a member of the Church living in Tazewell, Va., who was baptized by Elder Cowley when he was filling a mission there some 20 or more years ago. Mr. Hauser is a zealous member and tells of a recent preaching experience he had in the old Concord Baptist church, a few miles from Tazewell, on the Burke Garden road. "Some two years ago," he says, "two of our elders were refused permission to preach in it. Three weeks ago, however, I preached there and was received with open arms. I accepted the invitation, and after rendering some half dozen songs, I arose from the organ and told the people that I was a Mormon elder, an ambassador of the Lord Jesus Christ, and that I felt that I would not be doing my duty if I did not preach to them. So, for an hour and a half, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, I preached to them. The people were very kind and I felt that the Lord was using me for good to some of the household in heart, and that easier sailing will be found for any of our elders who may again pass this way."

Relief Society Sisters Brave Kanab Floods.—A trip to Kanab has no doubt, at any time, its dangers. In the recent flood season, the worst since its settlement 35 years ago, it furnished thrilling situations for its Relief society members from Salt Lake City.

After entering Kanab the rain poured all night and all day. Two sessions of Relief society conference were held, the first of the elders diminishing attendance at meetings. At about 10:30 p. m., well wrapped, we walked a few blocks to try to see the crossing of the river. Advancing towards the bank, a feeling of insecurity seized us, and we retreated. Morning showed fog of the crossing of the river. Advancing towards the bank, a feeling of insecurity seized us, and we retreated. Morning showed fog of the crossing of the river.
