MISS L. TILLMAN
Vice President

SOCIAL SUPREMACY BATTLE.
A pretty warfare is being waged in Washington between the wives of members of Congress and daughters of the nation's lawmakers, as to which will be the recognized club of two organizations which they have formed.

Many weeks ago Miss Ressie Lamb, daughter of Representative Lamb of Virginia, and Miss Julie Williams daughter of John Sharp Williams, minority leader of the house, conceived the idea of bringing the daughters of senators and representatives together by forming a club in which membership would be restricted to girls of the congressional circle. They had no sooner made known their plans than their mammas disclosed the fact that they too, had in mind a club of congressional women.

Then began a race. The daughters met to organize and so did the mothers. The daughters decided their club could include the mothers, but the latter had nothing to say about the daughters being taken in. The girls lost no time, and before the mothers had more than called their first roll the daughters had framed up a constitution, named their society and were ready for business.

Miss Lamb was elected president, and Miss Tillman vice president.

by members of the Salt Lake state Sunday school board. The guests, consisting of about 25, sat down to a delightful lunch in the banquet rooms of the Odeon.

A NEW YORK LETTER

NEW YORK, April 27, 1908.

DEAR MR. BANKS:

"I am sending about a dozen cases of goods today in addition to the twenty cases forwarded yesterday. Both are fine lots.

"There is an awful scarcity of goods in this market. I have heard that the jobbers' and retailers' counters are bare; that they are bringing old goods from the cellars and placing them on the counters, and they actually sell the old shapes.

Very truly yours,

(Signed)
