A Feature of Superstition.

The superiority of WHITE'S PRIMAIRE FLOWER for diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Blood consists in its uniting harmoniously with the gastric juice, strengthening and enabling it at once to dissolve the food. If the gastric juice is weak the food ferments, giving rise to sour stomach, sick headache, burning in the pit of the stomach, the patient also suffering from insufficient nutrition. It aids the Liver, over which it has a specific power, in filtering impurities from the blood. Its action on the kidneys is likewise salutary, increasing the secretions. As a blood purifier, by enriching the blood, it is without a peer, curing some of the most obstinate and long-standing cases on record. It is pronounced by one and all The Great Blood and Liver Purifier. Price 25 cts. and 50 cts.

MANY a dollar form is spent on expensive Sulphur Baths is now saved by substituting the GLEN'S SULPHUR SOAP, which is just as beneficial but infinitely cheaper. Local diseases of the skin, rheumatism and gout are all relieved by this standard remedy. Complexional blemishes are eradicated by it, and it imparts to the cuticle a pearly whiteness and velvety softness which greatly enhances the effect of female charms. Its soothing, antipruritic action constitutes it a prime remedy for sores, ulcers, cuts, sprains, scalds, bruises, and its fact every abnormal condition of the cuticle attended by inflammation, swelling or itching. Ladies moving in our best society speak of its beautifying properties in enthusiastic terms, and give it an unqualified preference to cosmetics which merely conceal but do not, like GLEN'S SULPHUR SOAP, eradicate the defects of the complexion. The use of pinpoints for eruptive complaints is to be deprecated because of their having a tendency to clog the pores and to some cases to aggravate rather than remedy the disease. They are, besides, seldom thorough enough in their effects to prevent the recurrence of eruptions. An inveterate and have the disadvantages of soiling the linen of persons who use them. GLEN'S SULPHUR SOAP, on the contrary, radically cures the diseases to which it is adapted and still further recommends itself on account of its cleanliness. It is, besides, an admirable disinfectant of clothing which has been worn by persons afflicted with diseases of a contagious nature. As a specific preventative and promoter of the general health, it presents an advantage of the most universal character. Sold by all druggists.

What Might Have Been Stated. Almost any day during the last week, a knot of Whittierites, who had been standing in the Main Building in front of the Capitol, were seen to be in a state of great excitement. One of them, a man named Jack Hudson, was found dead, in the yard behind the White House, at which he had been sleeping. He was lying in a pool of blood, when discovered, with a deep gash in his right temple, his eye bruised, a cut in his right cheek near the lip, and a severe bruise on the top of his head.

He came down from Alta on Monday, and since then has been in an almost constant state of inebriation. About 11 o'clock last night, a friend of his, who was sleeping in the adjoining room, on the third floor, at the White House, heard Hudson groaning in his room, and asked him, through the partition, what was the matter. Some unintelligible reply was given, and complete quiet ensued. Hudson's friend going to sleep. About an hour afterward, he was awakened and told that Hudson was lying dead, in the yard below. The cause of his death is popularly believed to be accident or suicide, since his window was open, from which, doubtless, he fell to the ground. Some go so far as to say the man was murdered, but this opinion does not obtain, no traces of a struggle, or deed of violence being visible, as would be the case if a second party had been engaged.

The section has taken charge of the remains.

A coroner's inquest, held about 2 o'clock this morning, rendered a verdict of accidental death, by falling from a third-story window while intoxicated.

Make an Example.—The Enquirer, from Provo, says that on Monday last, 21 boys, between the ages of 14 and 16, were brought before Justice Booth, charged with disturbing the Sunday evening meeting of the First Ward. With the exception of two, all were found guilty, and a fine of $2 each assessed.

We do not know anything of the foregoing case except as learned from the Enquirer; but we do know of similar offences being committed in our own well-governed city, by boys and young men, to the annoyance of honest worshippers. When a case of this kind next occurs in Salt Lake, would it not be well to make an example of the perpetrators?

Fix the Bridges.—The rain storm of the past two days has awailed the creeks in this city to such an extent that many of them are overflowing. Especially is this the case at the street crossings where the ditches are crossed by bridges, which, in some instances, are built so closely to the bed of the creek that the greater part of the water flows over instead of under them. Please remedy the evil before another storm floods the streets and walks.

Entertainment.—To-night in the 11th Ward Assembly Rooms, a musical and dramatic entertainment will be given by the young people in aid of the school-house fund. A rare and pleasing performance will doubtless be given, as many persons possessing great talent are interested in the presentation. The house should be crowded. Tickets only 50c; children half price.

Police Court.—Fred Wilson paid into the city treasury $3 for assaulting Mrs. Lawson.

A soldier was arrested, charged with creating a disturbance at the Theatre last night. He will probably get his deserts at Camp Douglas to-day.

One Jones, for helping himself to his neighbor's fruit, was fined $5.

The Minstrel Band.—The Georgia Minstrel's silver cornet band gave another promiscuous serenade this afternoon. The music was fine. Had the body-guard of urinals, who followed, been more transparent in character, we might have said as much of the appearance.

Changing.—The present appearance of the sidewalk in front of the Old Constitution Building suggestive of "chaos come again," but the activity of the workmen there employed forebodes a speedy change for the better. Asphaltum makes excellent pavement.

The "Amateur."—The second September number of this paper is at hand. With its neat and tidy dress and variety of excellent reading matter, the Amateur is always a welcome visitor.

Still Moving.—The roof of the New Tabernacle begins to assume a definite shape. We hope to see this fine building completely roofed in before the commencement of bad weather.

Modern Christianity.

The following prayer, alleged to have been offered by the "Mormons" during the "Chapel" service, was sent to the Chronicle by a person who was present at the service.

We are very thankful, O Lord, that a convenient way to serve thee and mammon has been revealed to us. We rejoice that our eyes have been opened and ears have heard thy voice, now laboring among the Gentiles in another part of thy vineyard, all for thy glory, who has given us a new revelation whereby we know that the wickedest of that unholy trinity has been eliminated, and that by kingdom has been reconciled to the remaining two-thirds, the world and the flesh, so that the lamb and lion may now lie down together without fear or reproach, and the Scriptures have been fulfilled. It is very gratifying to know that those difficult virtues—simplicity, self-denial, humility, charity, and the like—which Christ and his disciples enjoined upon mankind, are no longer essential to our salvation, but have been laid away upon the shelves of the "Theological Shelf" and the Levitical code and other obsolete fragments of thy law, henceforth to be objects of curiosity to the enlightened, as well as evidence of the Church's credulity and innocence. We bless thee that the old order of things has been reversed; that truth is relative and transient; that change alone is absolute and eternal. Justable Religion. For the confessional doctrine, which is now being inculcated, is a new departure, whereby they are permitted to adopt those rules of conduct which they deem proper, and which seem good in their own eyes. We are glad that commercial enterprise and success, professional success, political success, and all the attributes of this progressive and enlightened age are exceeding good in their sight, as thou hast instructed us through thy apostle now laboring among the Gentiles in another part of thy vineyard, all for thy glory. We rejoice in the knowledge of the law which was written upon tables of gold, and was delivered to thy apostle to be expounded to the people. We have been authoritatively informed that the deep-seated teaching of our master was addressed to the impoverished and wretched people of his generation, who had great need to mortify the flesh, but have no meaning for the abundantly prosperous saints of this congregation, except as they are interpreted and applied to our condition by thy apostle, our pastor, who is now laboring among the Gentiles for thy glory. O Lord, we thank thee that the scandalous business of peddling indulgences throughout thy vineyard, practiced of old by itinerant monks of a wicked church, has been discontinued. We thank thee that a new system which is not a reproach to thy church, since we, thy grateful servants, by liberally contributing to an annual fund, may now abundantly receive our weekly indulgences in the courts of thy temple. Bless and prosper our pastor, who is now laboring among the Gentiles for thy glory. O Lord, we thank thee that the golden rule, yea, in showers of the golden dews of Mammon. It is his agent, and grant him that wisdom and foresight which is of this world and profiteth much. Prosper the Lecture Bureau; may it abide long in the land, the place of refuge of our pastor in the time of his embarrassment and trouble; and for thy manifold improvements, alterations and additions touching thy divine law, make us truly thankful, Amen.

SHORT AND SHARP.

An Irishman waited at the cardinal's table in Dublin, on a Friday, when there were 17 courses of food. "Blessed," he exclaimed, "if that's what ye call fastin'! Ye needn't that could stand Lent all the year round."

An exchange publishes the startling information that there are no reserved seats in heaven. Most people would banish all uncleanliness on that account if they could only make sure of obtaining standing room.

Probably at the last, dreadful day, when Gabriel sounds his trumpet, if he doesn't stop once or twice between the blast and shout, "General! general! colonel, I say!" not more than two-thirds of the men in American cemeteries will get up. Burlington Hawkeye.

"Why does lightning so rarely strike twice in the same place?" Professor Wortman asked the new boy in the class in natural philosophy. "Huh," said the new boy, "it never strikes it. And it is a little singular that nobody had thought of that reason before." Hawkeye.

"Beautiful, beautiful alken hair," Phillip murmured fondly, toying lovingly with one of her nut-brown tresses, "soft as the plumage on an angel's wing; light as the thinnest down that clings to the summer air; the shimmer of sunset, the glitter of yellow gold, the rich red brown of Autumnal forests blend in entrancing beauty in it." And just then it came off in his hands, and he forgot just what he was next. There was a moment of profound silence, and then Amelia took it from him and went out of the room with it. When she came back he was gone. They meet now, and they meet as strangers, and the eyes that were wont to beam upon each other with the awakened love-light now glare as though life was an eternal wash day.
