

TILLMAN AND McLAURIN FIGHT

Came to Blows in the United States Senate

Both Declared in Contempt and Both Make Apologies

Washington, Feb. 22.—Washington's birthday was signalized in the United States senate by a fist fight. The two senators from South Carolina were the active participants in the affray.

Mr. Tillman in the course of a speech upon the Philippine tariff bill, made serious reflections upon the honor of his colleague, Mr. McLauren. In brief, he charged that his vote in support of the ratification of the treaty of Paris had been cast through the exercise of improper influences.

Mr. McLauren was not in the chamber at the time, being engaged in committee work, but he was sent for, and appeared just as Mr. Tillman concluded his speech.

A MALICIOUS LIE.

Pale as ashes, Mr. McLauren rose to address the senate, speaking to a question of personal privilege. He reviewed Mr. Tillman's charges briefly and then denounced the statement made by his colleague as a "wilful, malicious and deliberate lie."

Scarcely had the words fallen from his lips when Mr. Tillman, sitting a few seats from him, with Mr. Teller of Colorado between him, sprang at Mr. McLauren, who had turned toward Mr. Tillman, met him head on, and in an eye wink the two senators were engaged in a rough and tumble fight. Mr. McLauren received a heavy blow on the forehead, while Mr. Tillman got a punch on the nose which brought blood.

COMBATANTS PARTED.

Asst. Sergt. at Arms Taylor sprang over desks to restrain the combatants and himself received several blows. He got between them finally and by main strength wrenched them apart. Senators Warren of Wyoming and Scott of West Virginia, two of the most powerful men in the senate, leaped to his assistance, and caught the arms of the belligerents, forcing them to their seats.

Intense excitement prevailed in the senate and in the galleries, which were thronged with people who had been attracted by the spirited debate. Every body was on his feet. Not a word, however, was spoken. Senators stood about the chamber for the moment quite helpless and pale to the lips.

Finally order was restored partially, and in the midst of the intense excitement the senate went into secret legislative session. For two hours it discussed the event behind closed doors. When the doors were opened it was made known that both of the South Carolina senators, by unanimous vote, had been declared to be in contempt of the senate.

PERMITTED TO APOLOGIZE.

They were permitted, by a vote of the senate, to make apologies to the senate. Their statements were listened to by both the senators and the people in the galleries with breathless interest. Senator McLauren left the chamber when adjournment was taken for recess and did not return for the night session. Mr. McLauren was in the chamber about 8 o'clock, but neither senator would make a statement.

"I think I got the sense of the controversy," Mr. Tillman said, with an effort still speaking very calmly and with a carefully modulated tone. Mr. McLauren said, and his words cut through the senate chamber like a knife: "I desire to state to the senate, I would not use as strong language as I intended, had I not seen after the senate met that they were untrue."

"I now say," continued Mr. McLauren with distinct emphasis upon every word and half turning toward his colleague, Mr. Tillman, "that the statement is a wilful, malicious and deliberate lie."

Mr. McLauren got no further with his statement.

TILLMAN STRIKES FIRST BLOW.

Mr. Tillman, who was occupying his regular seat on the right side, sprang with tiger-like ferocity at his colleague, Mr. Teller of Colorado, who was sitting at his desk between the two South Carolina senators. The blow did not land upon Mr. McLauren. Instead, it landed upon Mr. Teller's forehead, just above the eye. Although his force was partially spent upon Mr. McLauren's arm, which had raised in an effort to parry the blow.

McLAURIN'S RIGHT ARM.

Instantly McLauren's right arm shot out, the blow landing upon Tillman's face, apparently upon the nose. Again Tillman struck, but this time he was met by his left hand. The blow did not land upon Mr. McLauren. Instead, it landed upon Mr. Tillman's forehead, just above the eye. Although his force was partially spent upon Mr. McLauren's arm, which had raised in an effort to parry the blow.
