SMITH'S FLOUR.

TRIBUTE TO BRIGHAM YOUNG.

Great Leader Eulogized for His Achievements in These Valleys—
Other Features

Saturday witnessed a delightful gathering at Calder's park, the occasion being a reunion of the pioneers and their descendants—sons, daughters and grandchildren. The affair was under the auspices of the society of Daughters of Utah Pioneers and was presided over by the president, Mrs. Susie Young Gates. Representatives of nearly all the leading pioneer families were present, and with them many parties of friends who were entertained as guests of the occasion. A business meeting preceded the program, being opened with a hymn, sung by chaplain, Mrs. Margarette P. Young. Matters of general interest to the society were discussed, the president suggesting policies by which the society might be broadened in its scope. The program was devoted almost entirely to the study of the leader of Utah Pioneers, President Brigham Young, addresses being made dealing with his life and talents in different capacities. Mrs. Zina Young Card, who came down from Logan for the occasion, spoke of him as a father, and gave a glowing account of his kindness and thoughtfulness toward his children. Mrs. Maria Young Dougall dealt with the phase of her father as the friend of Joseph Smith, speaking on the affection and perfect confidence evinced by the Prophet for the man who was to be his successor, and whom he designated as his successor in the kingdom which bound this two till the end. This love of Brigham Young for his leader and companion, she said, continued after the Prophet's martyrdom, and the last name on the lips of Brigham Young on his death bed was Mrs. Gates read a poem written by Bryant S. Young, a son of A. Young, on the theme of the pioneers, and this was followed by an address by Richard W. Young on Brigham Young as an organizer, in which he spoke of his work with his grandfather in dealing with the problems of settlement in the unknown wilderness, giving his genius for organizing settlements by which the people were held together both for defense and social benefit, together with other things showing his executive and organizing talents. It was this, he said, which made for the rapid growth and progress of the state.

Don Carlos Young, a son of the pioneer leader, spoke of his father as an architect, showing his ability in this line, and showing that it included the designing of homes, towns and cities. He said that the architecture of the Temple was given by his father before any plans were drawn and those afterward made were through the instructions given by his father.

Mrs. Emmaine B. Wells then read an original poem, entitled "Homemances of the Pioneers," and there followed a program of pretty drills and dancing by little children, a pretty feature being a rope jumping dance to music, and the father's horoscope and birth date, a Japanese dance and costume and dancing, all little ones of the Twentieth ward Primary, under Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Beebe. Mrs. Bathsheba W. Smith gave the closing prayer.

After the program, the assemblage had a picnic, the family with the invited guests, choosing the picnic table, and enloring a bountiful spread, the scene being a charming one set in its sylvan surroundings, and with the day itself a most ideal one for the occasion. The affair altogether was most enjoyable and successful, and there is no doubt but the gathering will be repeated.

OGDEN FIRE OUT.

Telluride Power Company a Heavy
Loser as Result of the Blaze.

Ogden, Utah, June 26.—The grass fire, which raged in the mountains northeast of this city yesterday and last night was extinguished at an early hour this morning. Several hundred farmers, citizens and members of the local fire department were engaged in fighting the flames. The loss of property is heavy, as many miles of fence, barns and other buildings have been destroyed. The Telluride Power company suffered greatly, as a double line of poles for over a mile were burned down, broken gins of wire of wires in several places.

Little damage was done to property by the explosion of a large quantity of powder which was stored on the mountain side and used for blasting rocks in the quarries.

WHITMORE TELLS STORY.

Railroad Official Relates Items of Interest from the Booming Town
Down the Line.

William Boswell, a well known character among the local legal and railroad fraternity, died suddenly at Lehi on Saturday evening after being placed under arrest by City Marshal J. M. Buttis on the charge of besting a board bill in American Fork. The question yet to be determined is whether the unfortunate man committed suicide or was murdered.

Opinions here differ. Some who knew him say that he often threatened to take his life when despondent, others assert that he was troubled with a weak heart and would have fainted spells.

Boswell's career is another case wherein a good man went wrong through gambling. About two years ago he came from the east with excellent credentials which showed him to be a man of education and one who moved in good society. He secured a birth in the right-way department of the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad, and worked for six months as a brakeman. Later it was noticed that he had contracted the habit of borrowing money from all of his acquaintances. Investigation showed that he neglected his work and instead of visiting parties in regard to his purchase of property he was seen at the gaming tables.

The Rio Grande takes the Knights Templar to Park City this afternoon on a special train. The same road also runs a bicycle race special to Ogden this evening.

The Salt Lake Route is offering tours.

William Boswell is to be buried at Alta.
