The Treaty of Annexation Before the Senate.

SEVERAL MEMBERS OPPOSE IT.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The treaty for the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands reached the Senate chamber at 5 o'clock today.

At once went into executive session, and as soon as the doors were closed the message of President McKinley accompanying the treaty and the treaty itself were read to the Senate.

It was part of the chamber there was a group of senators who bitterly opposed the ratification of the treaty.

Among them were Senators Gray, Miller, Pass, White, Coffey, Pettibone and McKinley.

As soon as the reading of the documents was completed, Senator Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, moved that the message be read.

Senator Gray objected to the reading of the message, and under the rule a single objection carried the matter over until tomorrow.

Senator Davis gave notice that at the next executive session he would press the motion for reading the message.

There was some discussion as to when the treaty might be considered, and Senator White asked if it was the intention to pass it in the session, and upon the reply being made that it was possible, the California senator said he desired to announce that he intended to stay here all summer to prevent the ratification, which he considered a very bad proposition.

"I'll join you," said Senator Pettibone of New Dakota.

The message of the President was a very long document. It contains historical facts concerning the islands and showed that the United States and Hawaii yearly grow more and more united in their interests.

Senator Davis, he said, but a continuation of existing relations, with close and friendly relations, and with peace and kindred ties. Since 1820, says the President, the predominance of the United States has been a fact to which they are entitled.

"Will America pursue the colonization upon which she has now entered? McKinley inquired. He said that the case was wholly exceptional, but the treaty would be an explicit declaration of very strong.

The minister said: "The natives will be better off under the American government than before. Without doubt the Americans will soon be able to prevent their colony."

The Daily Telegraph says: "No political complications are likely to ensue, but it is for the American people to be anxious to see the treaty ratified."

The Morning Post says: "President McKinley should be satisfied to achieve the matter, now he has brought it before the Senate. Japan is not in a position to connect with any strategic. England's interest in the event is only nominal."

The eleven members of the committee, Messrs. Davis, Fessenden, Coffey, Clark, Frazier, Sherman and Turpin, are said to be committed to the treaty's support, both in committee and in the Senate.

Senator McKinley (New York) is chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations, and is a very ardent annexationist, and the treaty in his hands will be pushed with vigor. While he will not attempt to have it considered if it interferes with the tariff bill, which he has designed to allow this administration to take their price.

"What will our Republican friends do next week? Mr. Allen said. Will it be the tariff or the treaty? Will they be taking the tariff and leaving the treaty because they are war material?"

Allen's new paragraph was then read. At this point Mr. Pettibone (Dak.) gave notice of an amendment to the treaty, which would prohibit the importation of sugar by any treaty of annexation.

On this point Mr. Allen withdrew the treaty, and the matter was postponed until the next day.
