THE EVENING NEWS.

Saturday - September 9, 1871.

A BARRISTER'S STORY.

"Liar, perfidious liar!" exclaimed he in a loud voice, at the same time dealing me a heavy blow on the chest; "don't dare to address me by any familiar name; you know what you have done."

"I am quite at a loss to understand the meaning of this outrageous conduct," said I; "you know that you are presuming upon the friendship of years, and I desire you will explain yourself at once."

"Explain myself! explain myself!" said he, almost choking with rage; "I will explain myself, and so shall you, before you leave the place to-night. You cursed hypocrite, you double-tongued scoundrel, you false friend! Over the cliff one or both of us shall go before—"

"I beg of you to be calm for your own, for your mother's sake. There is some misunderstanding which may be cleared up." I replied, horrified at the idea that Charley had lost his reason.

"There is no misunderstanding, villain," said he, approaching me. "I have suspected you for some time, and my suspicions were confirmed this afternoon. I stood in the copse and overheard all you said to Gertrude Peyton, and all she said to you. I am the man she only likes, and you are the man she loves, eh? Ha, ha! You knew I loved her."

"I declare most solemnly I did not, nor—"

"Add no more lies to those you have told already. And so it shall not be, eh, you precious friend, you sentimental rascal?"

"I tell you, sir, I never knew of your love for Miss Peyton," said I, losing patience.

"You lie! you did know of it?" shrieked the poor fellow in the tones of a maniac.

I assure you I felt the greatest compassion for him, so I said:

"Hear reason; I will at once do anything you like—leave the country, believe me, I did not know of your attachment."

"Presume not, Sir, to dictate to me," said he incoherently. "She only likes me—you have stolen her love away from me; the love which I valued beyond all things, and to retain which I would have sacrificed everything."

"I repeat that you are mistaken," said I, "and you will repent this conduct some day; I have done nothing to deserve these vile reproaches. Miss Peyton is yours; I will go."

"I want none of your assurances. You have damned me, Sir, soul and body; you have made me mad—a criminal, for I mean to have your life, if I die for it."

With these words he made a movement toward me, and seized me with the grip of a giant.

I saw that we were engaged in a struggle for life. In vain did I conjure poor Charley by all that was sacred, by our former friendship, by his parents' love, to desist from this horrible struggle. Out of breath, he replied. "I felt certain you would come to Draper's Drop to look for me, and sentimentalize that wretched girl; and I awaited you. I heard you say, it shall never be—nor shall it!" and he gave me a twist that brought me close to the edge of the frightful precipice.

He had got hold of my collar with both hands, and was making the most frantic efforts to pull me toward the edge of the cliff.

"Unhand me, you fool!" I exclaimed, now fully alive to my danger.

Not a word in reply, but redoubled attempts to effect his intention. I never saw a face so horribly distorted with rage and madness as his was. I have often thought since what a remarkable sight that would have appeared to a spectator—two young men, who twelve hours since were firm friends, engaged in a struggle that would certainly terminate fatally to one or both; and at such a time and place too! It makes me shudder when I recall the events of that night.

With a desperate effort I threw him off and he fell to the ground.

"Charley, my old friend," said I, "I implore you to desist! Remember—"

But before I could finish the sentence, he was on his feet, and made a furious rush at me. I stepped out of the way, nimbly moving toward the copse, and —Heavens! it is almost too horrible to repeat!—poor Charley went over the precipice. I quickly approached the brink, and heard the thumps of his poor body against the rocks on its way to the bottom. He gave one groan and no more.

I soon reached Mr. Soame's, and announced that I was unable to find Charley. Poor Lady Geraldine! I shall never forget the look she gave me that night on hearing this statement. I can see her now, poor thing; she was very much excited, but she little thought what the real state of the case was. Mr. Soame was sanguine, and thought Charley had gone to dinner with the Peytons. Lady Geraldine begged me to go out again. I did so, and I affected to give notice of the circumstance of Charley's absence to persons in the place. I need not go into minute particulars; suffice it to say that search was made on the morrow, and poor Charley Soame's body was found in the afternoon at the bottom of Draper's Drop, horribly battered and disfigured. When the remains were brought home, the sight of the corpse of her darling son was too much for poor Lady Geraldine. On beholding it she gave a heartrending shriek, and swooned; her reason never returned, and she died calmly and quietly two months after, having been raving mad in the interval. Poor Mr. Soames shortly after left England and died somewhere in the south of Italy.

PEOPLE'S VERDICT

Over Half a Million sold and in use!

4,000 made and sold per week

SINGER'S

New Improved Silent

FAMILY SEWING MACHINES

ARE

The Best in the World,

Because all of them are in constant use, while a very large proportion of other makes are no used, owing to their being partially or utterly impracticable.

THE SINGER

NEW FAMILY MACHINE

Has been brought to perfection, regardless of time, labor or expense, and is now incomparably the best Sewing Machine in existence.

It is simple, compact, durable, beautiful, quiet, light-running, and capable of performing a range and variety of work never before attempted upon a single machine; using either Silk, Twist, Linen or Cotton Thread, and sewing with equal facility the very finest and coarsest materials, or anything between the two extremes, in the most beautiful and substantial manner.

The New Improved Attachments for Hemming, (any width) Braiding, Embroidering Magic Ruffling, Gathering and sewing on (at the same time) Self-Sewing, Cording, Tucking, Quilting, Felling, Trimming, Binding, etc., are novel and practicable, and have been invented and adjusted especially for this Machine.

Folding Tops and Cabinet Cases.

New designs of the unique, useful and popular Folding Tops and Cabinet Cases, peculiar to the Singer Machine, are in every variety of Wood, such as black Walnut, Mahogany, Rosewood, Satinwood, and from the plainest to the most elaborate pattern and finish. The Machines themselves are plain or highly ornamented with pearl and gold to correspond with their tables or cabinets.

In the Singer the work is fed or passed through the Machine in the natural direction, namely, from the operator, permitting her to sit in a natural and healthy position. In most other Machines the work passes from right to left, or the reverse, compelling the operator to sit in a bent and unhealthy position, and thus causing weakness of the back, etc.

The Singer uses a SHORT STRAIGHT NEEDLE, which is not liable to break or miss the stitch. Many other Machines use a long crooked needle, which is liable to break and to miss the stitch.

In the Singer Machine the Shuttle is carried, thus avoiding nearly all wear. It requires no oil, and does not soil the thread or goods. Other Machines drive their Shuttles, in a race, thus causing great wear, and requiring oil, soiling the thread and goods.

On the Singer, the Tension on both the upper and lower threads is absolutely under the ready control of the operator, thus rendering the Machine always available for good sewing, which is not the case with any other. Many so-called cheap Machines are really worthless, and so are many of their new peculiarities and supposed advantages.

The SINGER is the Oldest Practical Sewing Machine,

Being [illegible] in the market. Having been constantly improved by the employment of the most skillful ingenuity of the age and unlimited capital, it is now divested of all unnecessary parts and possesses All the Very Latest Inventions and Improvements. It is the only Machine sold on Honest Claims, as all its parts are Practical and will do all that is claimed for them. Some other Machines are Greatly Complicated, to do Useless and Silly things, and thus are rendered Liable to Constant Derangement. The Singer Seldom or Never gives Trouble, but is readily and easily managed by those who utterly fail on other Machines.

SINGER'S

New Manufacturing Machines

Claim the same advantages over others of their class as the new Family Machines. These old and well-tried sewing Machines are applicable to all kinds of heavy and light manufacturing in Cloths, Leather, etc., and run in the most perfect and reliable manner without trouble to the operator.

HAVE ARRIVED!

A Full Assortment of those

Beautiful and Unrivaled

MACHINES.

(The numbers on which show a manufacture of between Five and Six Hundred Thousand.) Consisting of the Different Varieties made by the Singer Manufacturing Company, and we shall sell at Eastern Prices, with addition of Freight only. To accommodate parties who cannot pay all down, we will sell on

EASY MONTHLY INSTALMENTS

So that all may possess one of these Machines.

For the convenience of our Patrons we have engaged the services of a gentleman who has had twenty years experience and is one of the most skillful experts in the world in repairing and adjusting Sewing Machines. He will put each Machine in complete and practical running order before it leaves the Institution and will also impart to purchasers all needful instruction, so that they can at once commence work.

We resort to no trickery whatever to sell Sewing Machines, but allow their Great Merits to recommend them. We can do this, as the demand for them is so great that although the Singer Company make more than all other first-class companies combined, they cannot nearly fill their orders, and are compelled to still extend their Gigantic Works.

We having been so fortunate as to secure the

General Central Agency,

For this Territory, we extend a cordial invitation to all to come and see the Machines, whether they wish to buy or not. See all others, but do not buy without you examine the Singer.

We Guarantee every Machine we sell to give entire satisfaction.
