WELL SHUT OUT FAKE SCHEMES

Manufacturers' Association Insists That Goods Shall be Sold on Merit.

MUST HAVE AN ENDORSEMENT

Ladies' Auxiliary Now Ready for Effective Work—Letters From Los Angeles.

A fight on fakers seems to be necessary these days in every line of American enterprise, and the Salt Lake merchants have one on their hands. It is directed against fake advertising, and has been forming for the past two weeks among local business men. At its inception the "News" was exclusively told of the plan, which it is now proposed to adopt at a meeting of the Manufacturers and Merchants' association to be held Tuesday evening next.

Since investigation of the matter by many merchants has expressed themselves as disgusted with the fake advertising schemes brought to their attention by advertising agents who come a day and are gone with their harvest. They have to waste hours per day listening to schemes, and investigating their merits. Then one merchant is assured he is the only one holding out and this leverage is used against him. The plan proposed to do away with undesirable advertising, and to shut the doors of the business houses against the agent who has nothing good to offer, is to compel every agent to secure an endorsement from the executive committee of the Manufacturers and Merchants' association before his scheme will receive attention. This endorsement means securing him a hearing, and guaranteeing him nothing more.

The manufacturers in the matter have realized another thing, in this connection. It is that strong newspapers make a strong community, and that the newspaper which is strong not only profits for itself, but carries whatever message it has to carry to a larger percentage of the people, and is therefore more useful to the community which supports it. For this reason they think their advertising patronage belongs naturally to the newspapers, and are working for the upbuilding of a sentiment in favor of home goods against imported goods, and newspaper advertising is excepted in the class which must be endorsed before it is listened to.

LADIES AT WORK

The Ladies' Auxiliary are rapidly getting to know that the results are expected from their work. They have telephones installed at their headquarters in the Keith-O'Brien store, writing and advertising, and the intention to make the place a headquarters for shoppers who wish to rest for a few minutes, write a letter home or look to the shelves of home goods. Labels of the association are expected in a few days, and then the work of deciding what goods are up to standard will be begun. State Chemist Harris will be called upon to analyze samples picked at random from stock of all goods offered by home concerns, that need analysis, and if any are found impure, notice will be given to the advertiser. Pamphlets containing lists of all that are really good, will be published and sent broadcast over the state.

LETTER FROM LOS ANGELES.

In investigating the matter of advertising, as carried on in other cities, Manager Field wrote to the secretary of the Manufacturers and Merchants' association of Los Angeles, and received the following reply:

"Your request for information in regard to the handling by our association of all advertising schemes is gladly complied with."

FAKERS IN PLENTY.

"For years this city has been the mecca to which all advertising fakers turned their eyes and hundreds of advertising schemes of every character were submitted to our merchants for their support. Especially true just prior to and during the tourist season, when dozens of souvenirs, guides, and schemes of that nature were launched by oily-tongued promoters, who promised a circulation of from 100 to 100,000, but in reality published a sufficient number to make a showing and collect from their dupes. The nuisance became so great that this association of our members with a notice reading as follows:

SIGN FOR OFFICERS.

"No request for donations or subscriptions will be entertained, nor advertisements placed in any established publications unless written endorsement from the Manufacturers and Merchants' association has been obtained."

"These notices were supplied to our members to be displayed in their offices and stores and the result has been that no more advertisements are being accepted. Hardly an advertising proposition is now worked in this city, and I have not given an endorsement to any during the last year and a half. In fact, the situation is so well known among the merchants and fakers that they no longer select Los Angeles as their place of operation."

FAKE CHARITIES.

"In connection with this matter I may also suggest to you that your association adopt the same method toward so-called charitable institutions. An investigation made by our association of the institutions depending upon the public for their financial support proved that during the past year nearly $400,000 was contributed for the support of such institutions. We have adopted a system whereby every charitable and philanthropic institution that solicits funds from the public, must make application for endorsement before any subscription can be secured from our merchants, and we investigate the scope of the work of each, its management, its necessity, its scope of usefulness, and its honesty. In this manner we are able to give a stamp of approval to the institutions which are run on business principles. If we find that the institution is conducted properly, and that there is a necessity for its existence in this particular field, an endorsement is given, stating the purpose and the period for which the money is to be used, and the amount needed."

A GREAT SAVING.

"All general books must be entered in one subscription book and when the amount required has been secured, the endorsement is returned to us and an investigation made later of how the money has been expended. In this way a great deal of money can be saved to your members, worthy institutions will be protected, and unworthy or badly managed institutions will be forced to either change their methods or close their doors."

"F. J. ZEEHANDELAAR," Secretary.

The following new members, increase the membership to over the 300 mark: Commercial National Bank, Consolidated Vagot and Machine company, Bamberger Coal company, Keith-O'Brien company, C. A. The Grip.

"Be fore we can sympathize with others, we must be suffered ourselves. No one can realize the suffering attendant upon an attack of the grip, unless he has had the actual experience. There is probably no disease that causes so much physical and mental agony, or which so successfully defies medical aid, as the grip. The grip, however, may be avoided by the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Among the thousands of thousands who have used this remedy, not one case has ever been reported that has resulted in pneumonia or that has not recovered. For sale by all druggists."
