A few notable features.
 • Hydroponics—a science in which the growth of plants is accomplished by the use of mineral salts dissolved in water. Such soilless plant-growing is rapidly becoming a fact, and under the proper conditions, plants cultivated, raised in this manner are free of all diseases of insects and all insects, worms, beetles and bugs. These growths are, thus not so susceptible to the weathering season, however the growing is done, and they can be grown in any place, without the necessity of soil, and the growing of plants is greatly simplified. The theory that it is possible to grow plants without soil is being rapidly accepted, and many a farmer is growing plants in this manner. It is a very simple and easy way to grow plants, and it is a very profitable one. It is a very simple and easy way to grow plants, and it is a very profitable one. It is a very simple and easy way to grow plants, and it is a very profitable one.
