Manti Sentinel; H. R. Sloan and Jas. A. Barton left Manti on Saturday for a prospecting trip in Alberta county, Canada. They may be gone all winter.....Ten car loads of cattle were shipped from Ephraim over the S. P. V. R. R. The train load was run over to Nephi and caught the U. P. freight at Nephi and were shipped right through, their destination being Omaha. The dispatch with which the transfer was made pleased the shipper so much that he intends shipping more stock via the narrow gauge.On Monday afternoon the wool men of Sanpete met at the city hall for the purpose of organizing a sort of defense society. The primary object is to work with a Territorial society, to send representatives to Washington for the purpose of having wool placed on the protected list.

Elder Garton Braley called November 26 and reported his labors in the Southern States mission. His field of operations were in the South Carolina conference. When he first arrived in that field the feeling was very bitter against the Latter-day Saints, but that is now removed and they find no difficulty in approaching the people. The first steps taken are to the governors and mayors and prominent citizens to whom they announce their message and meet with good reception as a rule. During his absence Elder Braley has baptized fourteen new members into the Church. He left his home in Franklin, Idaho, on September 23, 1893, and arrived in this city, on his way some time morning. His health has been excellent during his absence. In June, 1894, he was arrested on a charge of vagrancy, although he had ten dollars in his pocket, and sent to jail, in the city of Columbia. He gave bonds in the sum of $500, appealed the case to the district court, at the next term of which he was acquitted. He says the people of the Southern States are extremely hospitable to the Elders laboring there.

John P. Isaac, an old and highly respected resident of the Sixteenth ward, passed from this into the unseen world Monday morning at the age of sixty-two years.

Death was the result of injuries received in an accident which occurred in July of last year. He was on his way home from the race track when the conveyance in which he was riding was collided with by another vehicle in which were a party of drunken boys. For a time his life hung in the balance but a surgical operation and kind nursing prolonged his days until the final summons which came this morning.

The deceased was the son of Reece and Margaret P. Isaac. He was born at Parosh, Trevaughn, Carmarthen-shire, South Wales, February 2, 1833. He was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in 1848, and arrived in this city in 1860, and resided here continuously until his demise. He held the office of a seventy, and both here and in his native land was known as a man of sterling worth. In every walk of life he performed his duty as he understood it. Many friends will be pained to hear of his death.

Additional particulars by letter concerning the death of Mrs. W. J. Seeley, of Castle Dale, to those published in the News on Saturday, are now at hand. They show that the deceased was on her way from Castle Dale, where she resided, to Orangeville with a neighbor and his little boy in a wagon when they came to a hill, where the horses became frightened and ran away, but were finally stopped and Mrs. Seeley got out, but was persuaded by the man to get back in.

They rode a few rods farther and came to another hill when the team again became unmanageable and ran off at a lively rate of speed. Mrs. Seeley was thrown over the dashboard and both wheels of the wagon passed over her. No bones were broken but she received injuries which caused internal hemorrhage from which she died seven hours afterward. She was able to sit and stand until just a few moments before she passed away.

Mrs. Seeley was a respected lady in Castle Dale, and leaves a husband and ten children and a host of friends to mourn her death.

The man and little boy escaped with a few bruises from which they will soon recover.

November 22 the jury in the Hague case filed into court looking tired from their 24 hours labors endeavoring to agree upon a verdict. Judge Merritt said, "Gentlemen, have you agreed upon a verdict?"

Foreman Sargent answered that they had not, and that he thought it impossible for them to do so; other jurors also agreed with this statement. Judge Merritt regretted that they were unable to agree as the trial had taken a long time and had been conducted at great expense, but did not desire to compel them to agree and then discharge them. On the first ballot the jury stood seven for conviction and five for acquittal; on every succeeding ballot they have stood eleven for conviction and one for acquittal.

Arthur Brown asked that the books and papers introduced in evidence in the case be left in the custody of the clerk so that the defense could have access to them. Judge Merritt refused to grant the request unless Prosecuting Attorney could be consulted. He was not present and the records were left with the clerk temporarily till the request can be passed upon.

Charles Abbott, who has lived in the Fifth ward, on Sixth South street, between Second and Third West, now lies dead at the family residence. At 6 o'clock November 20 he arose to go to his work as usual. Suddenly he was seized with an intense pain in the heart, and thought he would lie down to get some relief. He did so, but the pain continued, and hot applications were resorted to. These did not produce the desired effect, and at 8 o'clock a messenger was sent to call in friends who were near by. These came at once, only to find Mr. Abbott breathing his last, and in a few seconds the spark of life had fled. The cause was heart failure, caused by sudden and severe pressure upon that organ.

The deceased was about 57 years of age, and leaves a wife and seven children. He came here about 17 years ago from Leeds, Yorkshire, England, where he received the Gospel, and ever since has been an active member in the Church. For a time he was proprietor of a foundry on Sixth South street, but of late has been foreman of the Union Pacific foundry in this city. He was a steady, industrious honorable man, highly esteemed by all associates; and his bereaved family are deeply sympathized with in the loss they have sustained.

WIDOWS AND ORPHANS.

The following letter with appended communication in the form of an appeal was handed to the News Tuesday by Mr. Barrell, to whom they were sent:

ALMY, Wyo., Nov. 17, 1895.

Mr. H. C. Barrell:

Dear Sir—In behalf of suffering humanity, I respectfully, though urgently, ask that you give ear to the enclosed appeal, if you cannot give it personal attention, please see to it that some one will.

Hoping an early reply, be the amount large or small, I am,

Very respectfully,

THOMAS KIRBY, Secretary.

By request of Mrs. Hyden, Red Canyon, Wyo.

Once more the widows and orphans call to the good citizens of Salt Lake City, Utah.

We, the widows and fatherless, made so by the Red Canyon explosion, acknowledging the great kindness here before extended to us, desire to call attention to our present condition. Believing that the Rocky Mountain Coal and Iron company was legally responsible for the great loss we sustained, and that while no adequate return could be made us. Still that of their millions a pittance sufficient to keep us from starving would be cheerfully given us. We petitioned and had appointed Mr. John W. Sammon administrator to legally represent us. After respectfully calling attention to our condition, which in many instances is deplorable enough. Mr. Sammon brought suits, and now we are met with an application for a change of venue which alleges under oath that this great corporation cannot receive justice either in Uinta, Sweetwater, Carbon, Natrona, Converse or Weston counties. And we are told that this leaves us without hope, as our cases are transferred to Cheyenne, Laramie county, for trial, and without means to defray the expense of going, we cannot expect to get justice. But we feel that there, where the court house is under the shadow of the dome of the capitol, our petitions will be heard and justice administered. Our little ones in many cases half clad and hungry, it would seem as though we are warranted in appealing for contributions to be sent to John W. Sammon, clerk district court, Evanston, Wyo., with the assurance that such an answer to this appeal of the widow and orphan will be casting bread upon the waters.
