FROM FORT BRIDGER TO THE YELLOWSTONE.

A CORRESPONDENT "C." sends to the Helena Gazette a brief account of a trip from Fort Bridger to the Yellowstone. The party left Bridger on the 12th of June last, and consisted of the following—W. A. Jones, Captain Engineers, U. S. A., in command of expedition; Dr. C. C. Parry, Botanist and Meteorologist; J. D. Putnam, Assistant Professor Geostatistics; Paul L. Hardy, Chief Topographer; Louis Von Frobell, Engineer; Clegg Galbitt, do.; Fred Bond, do.; Lieut. Blunt, 13th Infantry, Astronomer; George E. Jewett, Computer; G. H. Hitch, Clerk; C. Clegg and Fred Willard, general assistants to engineers; and a brace of sage guns, who officiated as cooks. The escort consisted of Company I, 2d Cavalry, Captain H. E. Noyes commanding, with Lieuts. Hall and Klingberg. Dr. Higeman was attached to the expedition as Surgeon, and Lieut. R. H. Young, 4th Infantry, as Quartermaster; Charles Curtis was Master of Transportation, with ten packers. Added to this entire number were fifteen Shoshone or Snake Indians, used as guides and scouts.

The expedition advanced to the Sweetwater; thence ten miles to South Pass City, once a town of 5,000 inhabitants, now about 3; thence four miles to Atlantic City, also decayed, though the houses are good and the people are waiting for something to turn up; thence three miles to Camp Stumbaugh, a two-company post, Capt. Bradwell, a Captain of Cavalry, commanding; thence two miles to Miners' Delight, also down hill; thence forty-five miles to Camp Brown, on Little Wind River, the agency for the Sioux Indians, in one of the most beautiful of valleys; two miles from this fort is a large medicinal hot spring, and three miles from the fort is a spring of pure asphalt. The party left Camp Brown with forty pack mules, July 10, for Big Wind River, which they forded; then marched north-west; passing through Owl Creek Mountain and its base streams, crossed Gray Bell river, and its mountain; then marched to the south, thence to the North Fork of the Stinkingwater; thence up the North Fork of the Stinkingwater, thence over the divide between Stinkingwater and Mud Lake; thence around Mud Lake to Pelican Creek; thence to the place where Lake forms the Lower Yellowstone; thence to the East Fork of the Yellowstone, crossed the river on Barnetton's bridge; thence to the Mammoth Springs on Gardner's river; thence to Fort Ellis for supplies; thence to the Yellowstone Lake; thence over the Snake river divide; thence down the Wind river to Camp Brown.

The correspondent says of all this reach of country, that from Wind River in the start to Wind River on the return, the party did not get a prospect of the smallest kind, of either gold or silver quartz, scarcely even finding a color in streams or rocks along the entire route. The country is composed almost entirely of metamorphic rock, the sand and gravel of streams and bars being fine and loose. He says, "there is nothing in this country that will pay any of our Montana miners to quit their claims for." He further says that in his travels he has noticed all the principal points along the line of the railroad and inland, and although Helena may be dull and Montana generally dull, yet in dullness they will not compare with the other towns he has visited. Certainly not with the Sweetwater towns.

GRANGE CO-OPERATION.
A DUBLINER, Iowa, correspondent of the New York Tribune makes some rather remarkable statements concerning the results of farmers' grange co-operation in that State. The granges purchase many things at wholesale, strictly for cash, and distribute the goods to the members at the wholesale price, or near it as possible, thus doing away with the non-producing old-timers, bringing the producer and the consumer practically near together, and giving to the latter the profits which the middlemen receive in the common way of doing business. At first there was some difficulty in doing this in regard to machinery and implements, the manufacturers depending for sales almost wholly upon local agents, and therefore not being in a position to offend them by selling to others within the limits of their agencies. This difficulty, however, was overcome in Iowa by grange combination or co-operation, on an extensive scale, so as to make it to the interest of the manufacturers to sell directly to the granges, causing a concentration of trade.

FOREIGN.
GREAT BRITAIN.
Burned.

LONDON, 27.—Andersonska Castle, formerly the residence of the Duke of Abercorn, has been burned.

Many works of art, including numerous sketches by Landseer, and the treatment employed by Dr. Gurnell in London, so costly that it was removed, and the only remains preserved under the circumstances.

Two refused, but the third agreed to make twenty per cent.

reduction of the retail price of plows, and twenty-five per cent. in that of cultivators. The result was he could not manufacture fast enough, and another of the three firms then agreed to trade with the granges. Plows were also bought from the Bank of England on credit.

It is computed that the farmers of Iowa have thus saved themselves $50,000 within a year in the purchase of plows and cultivators only.

In the purchase of sowing machines the saving has been greater and the purchases have been large.

Machines retailing at $30 to $35 are sold to the granges at forty per cent. discount, or $30 to $37 each.

For the coming year 1,500 machines have been ordered, on which, if they are the lowest priced ones, a saving of $3,000 will be effected.

On parlor organs the granges have 20 to 25 per cent. discount, on scales from $2 to $3 1/2 per cent., on corn-shellers, 15 per cent., on wagons 20 per cent., on hay forks 33 1/2 per cent., on miscellaneous implements 22 per cent., on mowers 25 per cent., thus bringing a $120 mower down to $90. A large stock of reapers was bought of a retiring manufacturer for $75 each, which were estimated cheap at $150 retail.

A circular concerning this bargain was sent to the granges and the machines were disposed of at once, and have given universal satisfaction. It is estimated that $2,000,000 has been saved to the granges of Iowa in this way.

This is the way the business is conducted—

Mr. W. H. Williams, the State Agent, has his office at Des Moines, and is the principal manager. He gives a hand to 500 for the honest and faithful performance of his duties, and receives a small salary. In each county of the State there is a County Agent who may also be placed under bonds. If the Granges or the county link it, the Granges are responsible.

The Marshal of the Grange, J. W. A. Wright. No other business was transacted.

FRANCE.
Bazine's Trial.

PARIS.—The trial of Marshal Bazine was resumed yesterday. The president of the court asked why only two deputees, one on the 15th of September, and the other on the 1st of October, were present.

The Marshal, in the government of the National Defence? Bazine replied that he had received more of that government's communications in his absence than in his presence.
