SHERIFF EMERY ON THE STAND.

State Makes Up Its Case and Rests—
Counsel for Accused Will Offer
No Defense.

Judge Hall's courtroom at the city and county building was again crowded to its capacity today by men and women eager to get a look at Mrs. Hodge, and right hungrily did they devour every word of testimony uttered against her. Mrs. Hodge did not appear to be so ill-at-ease as she was yesterday, and several times she laughed softly at a reply to a witness. She appeared intensely interested in the testimony given by M. P. Gray, a Pullman conductor, and the porter Jarret who testified that she rode with them from Salt Lake to Butte on the morning of July 12.

CHANGED COLOR QUICKLY.

When the witnesses mentioned her nervousness during the trip, and the fact that she had several $20 gold pieces, she turned scarlet and mumbled something to herself in an inaudible voice.

STATE RESTS.

When court adjourned at noon, County Atty. Westervelt said the state had practically rested and if anything else was offered in evidence it would merely be some minor detail that had been overlooked.

RYAN CAMP OUTFIT.

Joseph Thompson, a farmer from South Cottonwood, was the first witness examined this morning. In response to questions from County Atty. Westervelt, Mr. Thompson testified that the Ryan outfit was turned over to Sheriff Emery. Mr. Westervelt asked the defense to admit that the outfit turned over to the sheriff by young Thompson was the same previously referred to. The defense declined to admit anything but Mr. Looft's word, and on cross-examination witnesses said he took good care of the property in his possession, and that it was not disturbed.

SHERIFF EMERY PLACED ON THE STAND.

and every one called to the scene of murder, and that he took charge of the outfit and it was still in his possession.

RYAN'S COAT.

"I now show you a coat," said Mr. Westervelt, producing Ryan's coat, "and ask you if it is the same you found at the camp?"

"Yes, it is."

"This was offered in evidence. On cross-examination the sheriff said he did not remember who was at the scene when he arrived."

"Did you search the wagon?"

"I did."

"What did you find?"

"I found a spectacle case, a shot gun, a trunk, a rifle and a pistol."

"Is the trunk the one you broke open with an axe?"

"Yes."

"Did you take it out of the wagon?"

"I did not, but some one did. I think it was Mr. Mauss. There was also a small valise containing some spoons and spectacle cases."

"How many spectacles?"

"The case was full."

"How many spoons did you find?"

"I did not count them. There might have been 150."

"Were there spectacles elsewhere?"

"Yes. Some were in the trunk."

"Was there anything else in the trunk?"

"Yes, some bill heads and business letters of Mr. Ryan. Some were to the Utah Junk company."

"Did you find letters of identification?"

"I found 'William A. Ryan' written on receipts and other papers."

"Have you mentioned every place where the name was written?"

"I think so."

"Did you find any wearing apparel?"

"Yes. In the wagon I found a pair of ladies' stockings."

"Anything else?"

"I found a black shirt and the coat."

"Did you find a pair of socks?"

"Not there, but later I did."

"Did you pick up the camp outfit and put it in the wagon?"

"No."

"Did you see it done?"

"Partly so. I gave instructions to have everything placed in the wagon."

"Had you ever seen the man before?"

"Not that I know of."

"Had you ever had any conversation with either of these persons before?"

"No, sir."

AN OLD SHOT GUN.

"Where was the shot gun in the wagon?"

"At the side of the wagon."

"What kind was it?"

"An old time."

"Was it loaded?"

"Yes."

"What kind was the rifle?"

"I think it was an old time Ballard."

"Was it loaded?"

"Yes."

"What make was the revolver?"

"An American Bull Dog, 28 caliber."

"Was it loaded?"

"Yes, but the cartridge under the hammer had been fired."

"Recently?"

"There was no evidence of it."

"Where was the revolver?"

"In the telephone."

"Was it wrapped in clothing?"

"Yes."

"Was it still in your possession?"

"Yes, it is."

"Was the wagon sent out on the ground?"

"I am not positive."

"Did this revolver bright?"

"Yes."

"Have you examined the revolver

since then?"

"Yes."

"Had it been cleaned since it was fired?"

"No, sir; there was dust all over it."

STRAPS AND WHIP.

Mr. Westervelt then offered in evidence the straps and whip last which were bound about Ryan's body, a pair of ladies' shoes and a pair of stockings. Sheriff Emery said:

"The shoes and stockings I took from the defendant's grip when I returned to Salt Lake City from Grand Rapids."

"Who took the strap and lash from the body?" asked Mr. Looft.

"Dr. Rauscher."

"How many times was it around the hands?"

"Only once."

"And Mr. Rauscher untied it in your presence?"

"He did."

"What are those straps?"

"A piece from a double harness."

"How were they tied?"

"Twice around the body and tied in the back."

"Was it around his neck?"

"No, sir."

"Was it tight?"

"No, sir."

"The body was considerably swollen, was it not?"

"Yes."

"And still the strap was not tight?"

"No, sir."

"How was the knot tied?"

"What do you mean by a half hitch?"

"I will show you," replied the sheriff, and he proceeded to tie the Attorney Looft's arm. Mrs. Hodge flushed, but laughed heartily at the operation.

MRS. HODGE'S BAGGAGE.

"What baggage did Mrs. Hodge have when you reached this city?"

"A suit case."

"Was this black waist in it?"

"Yes."

"Did she tell you where she got it?"

"She would give me no satisfaction."

"When did you take the shoes from her?"

"On Monday."

"Did you ask her anything about them?"

"I asked her if they were the ones Ryan bought her and she would not answer."

"When you told her the shoes would be sent in evidence, did she not decline to take them off, and did you not then say, 'You will have to put your foot up'?"

"Yes, I told her it would be better if she did not wear them in court. She did not decline to take them off."

BOUGHT BUTTE TICKET.

M. P. Gray, a Pullman conductor from Salt Lake to Butte, was the next witness, and testified that early on the morning of July 12 Mrs. Hodge got on his train and went to Butte.

"Did you notice anything strange about her?"

"No, sir."

"Did she have a hat?"

"I did not see one."

"Did she have a Pullman ticket?"

"No, she paid me a $20 gold piece and I gave her change next morning."

"How many cars had you that morning?"

"I had two."

"How many ladies were on your cars that morning?"

"I don't remember."

"What did any of them look like?"

"I don't remember."

"You can only remember this one?"

"Yes, sir."

SAW HER IN JAIL.

"When did you see her next?"

"I saw her in jail about a week ago."

"Who did you go with?"

"The sheriff, the porter and a deputy sheriff."

"Anybody else?"

"Yes, Mr. Westervelt."

"Did you see any other women in the jail?"

"Yes, I saw some in another cell."

"Did they wear white or black?"

"I saw one colored woman."

"Now, Mr. Gray, is it not true that when you went to the jail the sheriff then and there introduced Mr. Westervelt to the woman and called her by name, saying, 'Mrs. Hodge, this is the county attorney'?"

"Yes, sir."

"Was it occurred when you went there to identify her?"

"Yes, sir."

"When did she give you the $20?"

"When I gave her the ticket."

"Where did she have the money?"

"In her hand."

"Did she take it out of anything?"

"No, sir."

"Did you see her railroad ticket?"

"Yes, I lifted it."

"What do you mean?"

"I took it up."

"Did you find a ticket was it?"

"A local ticket from Salt Lake to Butte."

"Any name on it?"

"No."

JACKET WAS HEAVY.

"Did you notice a jacket?"

"Yes; it was on the seat of the berth."

"Who called your attention to it?"

"Did you examine it?"

"I picked it up."

"What kind of jacket was it?"

"Dark mixed goods."

"Anything peculiar about it?"

"Yes; it was heavy."

"Where was the weight?"

"In a side pocket."

"Did you at any time see a hat?"

"No, sir."

HAIR THE SAME.

"Is this lady's hair the same color now as it was then?"

"Yes, when I made up the hair, it was very dark, and a short ad."

The witness said he noticed no difference and the prisoner again smiled.

WAS VERY NERVOUS.

"Now, have you told us all you know about this girl going to Butte?"

"Well, I noticed that she was very nervous."

"How did the nervousness manifest itself?"

"When I went to give her her change she jumped up excitedly."

"Did she read during the trip?"

"Yes, she had a newspaper."

"Where did she get it?"

"I don't know."

THE PORTER'S STORY.

E. W. Jarret, porter on a Pullman running from Salt Lake to Butte, was the next witness, and his testimony was corroborative of that given by Gray. Pointing to Mrs. Hodge, he said she rode on his car from this city to Butte on July 12.

"She rubbed into the car in a hurry," said Jarret, "and asked for a berth. She paid for it with a $20 gold piece."

"Did you notice a jacket?"

"Yes, when I made up the berth."

"Did you notice anything particular about it?"

"Yes, I noticed there was some money in the right side under the lining. I picked the jacket up and it was very heavy. I heard the money rattle and saw some $20 gold pieces, but I don't know how much."

Witness said that Mrs. Hodge was very nervous during the trip.

SOLDIERS HAVE NO KICK COMING.

Generally Speaking They Are Well
Satisfied With the Food Served
At Timpanogos.

MASCOT WHO HAS SEEN SERVICE

Fred LeRoy Howe, Jr., a Young Runaway from Kentucky—Inspection
And Dress Parade.

(Special to the "News.")

Camp Timpanogos, Aug. 21.—The camp is quiet and orderly, and good drill work is being done. Both guardsmen and regular soldiers seem to be well satisfied with the camp and prevailing conditions. The statement made in the morning papers that the rank and file were complaining of the poor quality of the food supplied, is an error. The men generally are well satisfied. A number of both officers and men, interviewed by the "News" representative, expressed themselves to the effect that they were getting "good grub." There may be a few "kickers," as there always are, but "they wouldn't" be kicked, as one officer expressed it, "if they were getting plum pudding and champagne."

Both food and ice are inspected daily by Maj. Bonfield, and Seward Schmale, and if they are found unsatisfactory in any particular, they are rejected.

IN THE HOSPITAL.

Several men were brought to the hospital yesterday. The most serious case is that of Guardsman Hawkins of company A, of Nephi. Hawkins has a high fever and is still receiving every care possible.

Guardsman Workman of company E of Bonfield is suffering with inflamed eyes. After receiving treatment, he was able to perform light duty.

H. Bates of company H, after standing guard during the night, was prostrated by the severe heat while at the hospital camp in a state of collapse.

Among the visitors at the camp are Mrs. Donnellan and daughter Edna, of Salt Lake City. They are the guests of Lieut. L. S. A. Keen.

Capt. Kammernann was yesterday officer of the day, and Lieut. Bassett officer of the guard. Today, the officer of the day was Capt. Warrick, and officer of the guard, Lieut. Jorgensen.

MASCOT AND CAMP BABY.

Fred Le Roy Howe Jr., a boy of 17, is the mascot of Troop A, and the "baby" of the company. Although too young for enlistment, the boy has more service than many regular soldiers, and has received more wounds than many a grizzled veteran. He ran away from his home in Kentucky village several years ago and went to the Philippines with Uncle Sam's boys. While there, he rendered efficient service in several campaigns. At one time he carried water for the Utah battery and the Kansas boys, when they would almost have perished without it. He was wounded a number of times during the day, but still kept on, going without sleep for 24 hours. He is deaf and almost dumb, and states that he has received 16 wounds. One shot passed through his vocal organs, and the simultaneous discharge of two pieces of artillery broke both eardrums.

The boy is endeavoring to learn the whereabouts of his parents, who have left the Kentucky village where they resided when he left home.

INSPECTION OF MILITIA.

Capt. Barth today inspected the First Battalion, consisting of companies D, E and H, and the Second battalion, consisting of companies A, B and C. The captain expressed himself as much pleased with the several organizations of the guard that he has so far inspected.

DRESS PARADE.

Lieut. Col. J. A. Greenwald conducted the battalion dress parade last evening. This is the first experience of the young officer in this direction, and he was warmly applauded for his success. Many visitors were present during the parade, and remained to listen to the magnificent music rendered by the regimental band.

The dress parade will take place this evening at 6:40.

A number of the regulars expressed themselves in a very complimentary manner concerning the drilling of the guardsmen.

Quartermaster Sergeant Burkhardt of the First Infantry, is up from camp with a requisition for the transportation to be used by the battery in special target practice. For this particular work, it seems that the regulars will loan the Hotchkiss gun, but not furnish the ammunition. Adj. Gen. Burton honored the requisition this morning, and the same calls, 40 shrapnel, 30 drill, cartridges and 30 service charges. All of this will be furnished at once. The sergeant says the boys are taking more interest in the equipment this year than ever before, and it is because the regulars are with them.

SEEING THE TOWN.

Visiting Editors Having a Strenuous
Time of it in Salt Lake.

The visiting members of the South Dakota Press association had another tough day today. Bright and early they were compelled to vacate their pillows and take another whirl at seeing Salt Lake and studying her fauna and flora. This morning, after they had barely digested their breakfast, they were given a ride around town on the seeing Salt Lake car, while the man behind the megaphone bombarded them with statistics and information enough to banish "pet" light. Tomorrow morning the party goes to Lagoon as guests of the management. In the afternoon Calder's park management, not to be outdone, will do the honors down at Mill Creek.
