

FRENCH CABINET CRISIS PRECIPITATED

Motion to Discuss General Policy
Of Government Was Defeated
By the Opposition.

THE MINISTRY DID NOT FALL

M. Rouvier, Premier, Said No One
Could Offer the Republic Greater Safety Than He Did.

Paris, Nov. 10.—The Rouvier ministry met with its first check today, when M. Bertheux, minister of war, peremptorily withdrew from the ministerial branches during an angry debate in the chamber of deputies, and thereafter announced his resignation. For a time the entire cabinet hung in the balance, and Premier Rouvier announced the readiness of himself and his colleagues to give up power unless they were supported by a substantial majority. After a debate of exceptional violence, a motion favorable to the ministry prevailed by a vote of 210 to 147. However, the ministerial majority is made up of fractions of divergent groups, and the future of the cabinet remains in doubt.

A cabinet crisis was unexpectedly precipitated in the chamber of deputies today. During a scene of violence the ministry supported a motion of M. Dugumier, Radical Republican, to discuss the general policy of the government, but the opposition of the Nationalists and Socialists divided the government's strength, causing the defeat of the motion. M. Bertheux, minister of the interior, and M. Berteaux, war minister, immediately left the chamber amid disorder. The departure of the ministers was generally interpreted as conveying their intention to resign, but Premier Rouvier asserted, amid taunts, that the ministry remained ready to meet its obligations. M. Bertheux later returned to his seat among the ministers.

After a bitter personal altercation with M. Isnard, Radical-Socialist, continued in the absence of M. Bertheux, had brought out the declaration from M. Jaures, the Socialist leader, that the chamber was unable to proceed with the ministry divided. M. Berteaux re-entered the chamber, but did not resume his ministerial seat, taking his old place as a deputy of the extreme left party, thus indicating his intention to resign.

M. Rouvier declared that the fall of the ministry did not depend on the act of a single minister. He defended the work of the cabinet. It was now arranged by miserable personal differences, but was well prepared to give a good account of its services. He pointed out that a change in the ministry now would jeopardize the final adoption of the bill providing for the separation of church and state. The premier closed with saying:

"You may find able hands than mine to defend the republic, but you will not find those offering it greater safety." The debate proceeded amid tumult.

The ministerial benches remained full except for M. Bertheux, who continued to sit among the Socialists.

Later M. Berteaux closed a lengthy speech with saying that he had left the ministerial bench and did not intend to continue.

A test motion prejudicial to the ministry was defeated, after which a motion favorable to the ministry was adopted by 210 votes to 147, thus ensuring the continuance in office of the Rouvier cabinet with the exception of M. Bertheux.

After the session the premier went to the Elysee palace and requested President Loubet to call a special cabinet council tomorrow, at which M. Bertheux's successor will be decided upon and at which also it is possible further rearrangement of the cabinet will be considered. M. Etienne, now minister of the interior, is mentioned as the most probable successor to M. Bertheux. M. Thomson, minister of marine, succeeding M. Etienne, General Langle, and Brun are also mentioned for the war portfolio. But the Socialists threaten not to support the ministry if a general be chosen head of the war office.

M. Berteaux, in an interview this evening, said his resignation was not intended to embarrass the ministry, but that he was unable to tolerate the humiliating position of the ministry in being dependent upon the opposition groups in the chamber. The crisis does not involve any important issue, but results from the breaking up of the groups on which the ministry has heretofore relied.

U. S. SENATOR BURTON IS AGAIN INDICTED

St. Louis, Nov. 10.—The federal grand jury convened today, returned an indictment late today against United States Senator Burton of Kansas. It is stated that certain features in the former indictment against Senator Burton, which was quashed, were remedied in this new indictment.

The allegation in the present indictment is the same as in the one quashed: That while a senator of the United States he accepted money from the Bialto Grain and Securities company of St. Louis for services rendered before the postoffice department in behalf of that company, which was being investigated by inspectors. The only change is in the legal wording of the indictment, which is differed to avoid the errors found in the former by United States Judge Vandevanter.

The federal grand jury was sworn in today by Judge Vandevanter and then, it is stated, spent the entire day in the examination of witnesses, who, with one or two exceptions, were employees of the postoffice department of Washington. Inspector-Charge R. M. Fulton of St. Louis, and Inspector-Charge Joseph P. Johnson of New Orleans were the principal witnesses.

This indictment is the third found against Senator Burton and should, it is stated, be sustained. It will be impossible to ever reindict him for his alleged offense in connection with the Bialto company, owing to the statute of limitations.

Sensor Burton was indicted and convicted on a charge of accepting money from the Bialto Grain & Securities company for using his influence in the company's behalf in matters pending before the postoffice department at Washington. The trial took place in November, 1903. The case was appealed to the supreme court, which reversed the finding of the St. Louis court and the case was sent back for retrial.

A new indictment was found by the grand jury in March, 1905. Burton's attorney filed a demurrer to this indictment and it was sustained. Judge Vandevanter immediately called the present grand jury in order that the Burton case might be considered before the statute of limitations became effective, on Nov. 15.

KING GEORGE THE FOURTH MARRIED MRS. FITZHERBERT

King Edward Permits Opening of Package of Papers That Seem to Prove the Case.

London, Nov. 10.—By permission of King Edward the Daily Chronicle has been permitted to open a package of papers consigned to the care of the Coutts bank by Mrs. Fitzherbert (Maria Anne Smythe), under the stipulation that it was not to be opened for a long period, has now after 70 years been opened and proved to contain the marriage certificate and other indisputable proofs that George IV was actually married to Mrs. Fitzherbert.

Mrs. Fitzherbert became the wife of the Prince of Wales, afterward George IV, in December, 1785. The marriage of the prince was invalid under English law, though it was sanctioned by the Roman Catholic church, of which Mrs. Fitzherbert was a member. It was expected that the papers in the Coutts bank would settle a question which had agitated the British public for over a century as to whether there was issue from the marriage, but there is nothing in the foregoing dispatch that the question has been solved. It had long been reported that there actually was a male child, and that this child emigrated to the United States and settled in Washington, where he died some years ago after living very quietly but in good circumstances.

POLITICAL EDUCATION OF THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE

St. Petersburg, Nov. 10.—The town council of St. Petersburg is taking the lead in the political education agitation of the masses by inaugurating a series of public lectures at which the new order of things is explained to the people. The object of the meeting is to allay the hostility between the various classes by showing the benefit accruing to all from the grant of liberties. This example will be followed by Moscow and other cities.

Word reaches Count Witte that in some regions the reactionaries who are seeking to make the new regime odious are spreading reports among the peasants in the country and the lower classes of the cities that the imperial manifesto is a forgery issued by a committee of revolutionists, which Count Witte is the head and who hold the emperor prisoner in the palace. Such stories circulated among the ignorant peasantry are apt to prove almost as dangerous now as they did when the peasantry rose to support Pugatcheff, who, claiming to be Peter III, called on the people to overthrow Catherine II. The clergy throughout the country, under instructions from the holy synod, are doing all in their power to counteract the effect of such reports by explaining to the people in the churches the real meaning of the reforms.

Senator Clark's Ex-Sec. Dead.

Kansas City, Nov. 10.—John Dixon, formerly private secretary to United States Senator William A. Clark of Montana, was found dead in his room at a local hotel today. Dixon had been ill for some time. The coroner took charge of the body and an autopsy will be held. Several years ago Dixon moved from Minneapolis to Butte, Mont., and later practiced law in Oklahoma City. His parents live in this city.

OHIO ELECTION.

May Take Official Count to Determine Minor Offices.

Columbus, Nov. 10.—It is believed today that the official count alone will determine which party has elected the minor state officials. Returns early today at Republican headquarters and Democratic headquarters only add to the confusion. Both sides continue to claim the election of minor state officials, incomplete, but correct as returned received by the dispatch today seem to indicate that the Republican state ticket is elected and that Patterson has a plurality of about 100.

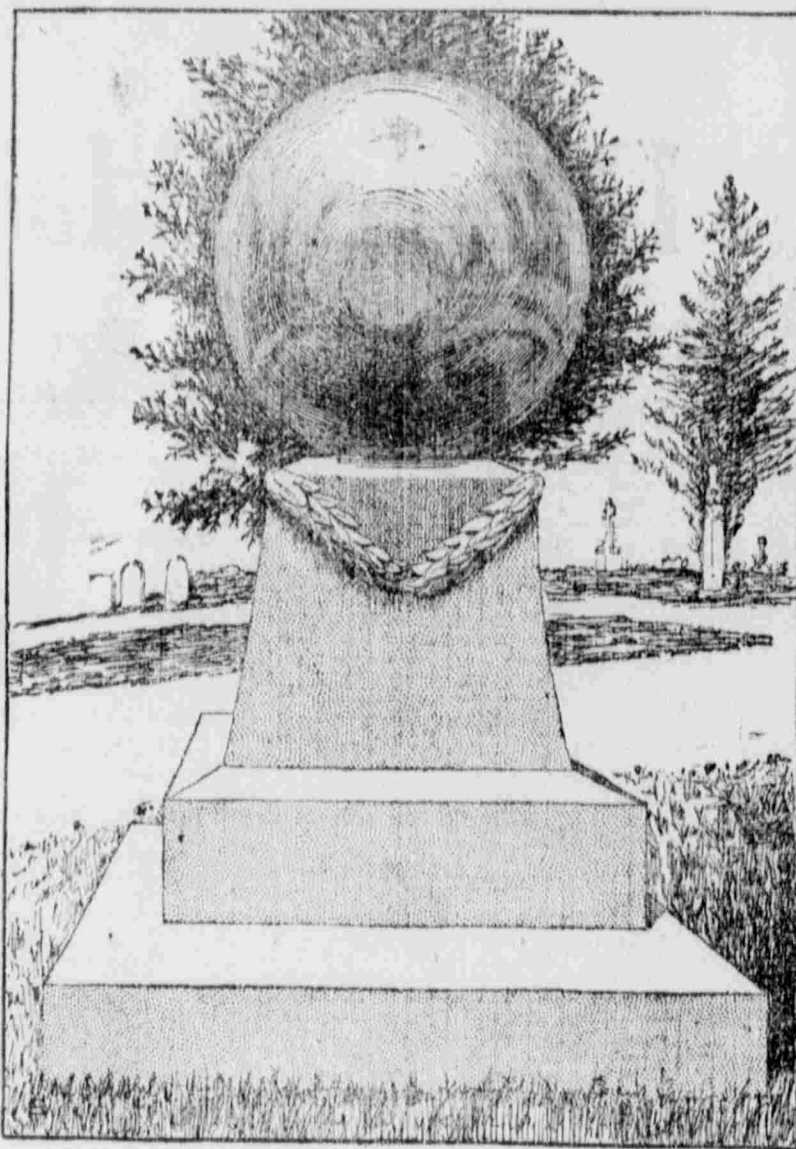

The Democrats still claim both houses and senator the Republicans say the senate will be Republican, 19 to 18, and the house Republican, 41 to 36 Democratic and Independent in a number of counties contests will undoubtedly be made.

Peculiar Disappearance.

A MODERN SCIENTIFIC MYSTERY.

The pedestal surmounted by a ball which is shown in the picture has been the occasion of much discussion. It is in a cemetery at Marion, O., and soon after it was erected it was discovered that the ball was moving slowly upon the base in a direction from north to south. It was at once ascribed to the influence of the sun's rays. The stone ball is thirty-six inches in diameter, and it weighs 4,200 pounds. The ball was not fastened to the base. It was believed that a spot left unpolished would rest upon a similar rough spot on the base and make the ball permanent. But it did not, and at the present time the rough spot is almost halfway to the top of the ball. Many scientists have offered solutions, but none of them seems to be satisfactory.

A FINE NEW BUST OF JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

The bust of James Russell Lowell herewith presented was finished recently by the talented American sculptor, Daniel C. French. It will be cast in bronze and placed in front of Massachusetts hall at Harvard university. The face is considered to be a remarkably faithful likeness of the poet, and the bronze will be a notable addition to Harvard's collection of art treasures. Lowell was a native of Cambridge and was a professor in the university for several years, having succeeded Longfellow in the chair of belles-lettres.
