"Have the People Gone Mad?"
He Asks in Defending Corporations.

NO CRUSADER IS NEEDED.

Chicago Judge Says Vigor of Enthusiasm
Above Sober Earnestness of Common Sense Dictated Address.

Rock Island, Ill., Feb. 2.—Judge Peter S. Grosscup of Chicago was the principal speaker tonight at the annual Lincoln day banquet of the Rock Island club. The affair was attended by 100 leading business and professional men.

Judge Grosscup said:
"Mr. Burke Cochran, in a speech in the house the other day, said that what the country needs is a crusade and a crusader; and the whole house, without distinction of party, is said to have loudly applauded. A crusade and a crusader! Zeal put above judgment; mere vigor of enthusiasm above the sober earnestness of the American common sense. Have the people gone mad?"

A crusade against what? Against the great new industrial domain of the country that is in corporate form—the great new domain in which the energies and the fortunes of the American people are so largely bound up? The American farmer who has reaped prosperity out of the markets that the great new incorporated domain has established, and the American workingman, who in this domain alone is to know his field of opportunity, will think long and carefully before they go in for a crusade like that.

"A crusade against what? Against those who are said to be offenders of the law? Why should not the offenders against the law be tried in the future, as they have been in the past, according to the terms of the law? Is the responsibility of the charge, to the judiciary, the duty and responsibility of determining guilt or innocence? Has anything happened that the sober, Anglo-Saxon way of enforcing law should be abandoned?"

AFTER THE VOTERS.

"A crusade to catch the voter—to obtain a lease of political power at the approaching elections? I am one of those who believe that an appeal to the sober common sense and the sober earnestness of the American people will be infinitely more effective than any attempt to hurry them pell-mell into some other strange program that they do not comprehend. As statesmen, Washington and Lincoln are still our exemplars—Peter the Hermit and Richard the Lion Hearted are only traditions."

"For two score years and more, ever since the close of the Civil war, a new great industrial domain has been building. Through its channels American manufacturers and commerce are reaching every corner of the earth. Through the markets it established, and the business activity it has created, the American farmer has been getting prices that have made him the money lender of the land, and the American workingman wages that have made him the highest paid workingman of all lands. But for the rise and growth of this great domain we would not now be in the world's lead as an industrial people; we would be back among the people whose farms have been sold to keep them alive from year to year, and whose workingmen have no prospect beyond the bread that is necessary to sustain life. And this great domain, strange as it may seem in the presence of what is being constantly said against the American corporation, is almost altogether an incorporated domain. Indeed, what government is to mankind politically organized, the corporation has become to modern industry organized."

LINCOLN'S IDEAL.

"The ideal of Lincoln was government of the people, by the people, and for the people. Lincoln believed in the capacity and integrity of America and the American—the American farmer and the American business man, the American workingman, American character. The ideal of McKinley was the prosperity of a country—a prosperity of the people, by the people and for the people—a prosperity shared in by every individual who was ready with hand or brain to take part in it; and McKinley lived long enough to see, not through any program of indiscriminate denunciation, but through legislation both practical and effective, his ideal realized."

"We have come, I believe, to a time when within the nation's heart there shone a new ideal as deep and true as Lincoln's—an ideal that will eventually quicken the new great industrial domain into something that will make that domain also a possession of the people, by the people, and for the people—the Lincoln ideal enlarged; the McKinley ideal broadened. But there will

JUST IN TIME.

Some Salt Lake City People May
Wait Till It's Too Late,

Don't wait until too late.
Be sure and be in time.
Just in time with kidney pills
Means curing the back
Before backache becomes chronic;
Before serious urinary troubles set in.
Doan's Kidney Pills will do this.
Here is Salt Lake City testimony to prove it.

O. E. Moody, living at 50 south Sixth West St., Salt Lake City, Utah, says: "I do not think there is another remedy on the market today which will cure backache as quickly as Doan's Kidney Pills. My back had given me trouble for six months. If I stooped over I became stiff and lame, and it was with difficulty that I could arise. Sharp pains would start at my kidneys and radiate throughout my body, causing me much suffering. Deciding to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial, I procured a box at the F. H. Hill Drug Co. They give me relief at once, so I continued taking them and was absolutely and permanently cured of the trouble. It is a year since I used Doan's Kidney Pills and I have not had a return of the complaint since."

be no real beginning toward the realization of this ideal until the reformative energy of the nation grapples with the work, not merely in turning the corporation is now allowed to construct itself, or of enforcing the law as the law now stands, but of so reconstructing the corporation, from the ground up, through national and state law, that it will become in truth and in fact a trustworthy agent for the wielding of the nation's energy and a trustful medium through which to work out the American instinct to have some individual proprietary share in the great new domain to which each individual American has contributed his energies.

ROOSEVELT'S RESPONSIBILITY.

"Between the engineer and other railway employees and the great railway corporation, between the men who work the steel and the great steel corporations, between the workingman generally and the corporation for which he works, between the man whose thrift has put savings into the bank and the corporations that have borrowed them out, there will, when real corporation reform is achieved, be no room for those feelings of antagonism that give rise to a crusade for when real corporation reform is accomplished—when the broadened ideal is on its way to realization—the great new incorporated domain, as a field for the achievement of an enduring individual possession, will be open to the workingman as well as to the capitalist, and to the man who has savings to put into the bank as well as to the man who is now borrowing from the bank. And the great responsibility that confronts President Roosevelt, whatever may be the provocation or the temptation that befalls him, is to see to it that the reformative energies of the nation that he has been so instrumental in arousing are not used up in storms and counterstorms of criminalization and recrimination, that when they subside, they leave us no strength with which to enter upon the real work that awaits us."

RAILROADS ASK HEARING ON NINE HOUR PROVISION

Washington, Feb. 12.—In view of the announcement made yesterday by the interstate commerce commission respecting its authority to extend the law, which goes into effect on the fourth of March next, limiting the hours of service of employees engaged in the movement of trains on interstate railroad systems, application already has been made by four railroad systems for a hearing before the commission on the subject. The applications have come from the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Southern Railway, the St. Louis & San Francisco, and the Seaboard Air Line. Other applications doubtless will be received in a few days. The commission has set Feb. 27 as the date for the hearing of the applications and it is expected that all on file with the commission will be thrashed out on that day. Its statement that it has no authority to extend generally the time of the effectiveness of the law, but may do so only in a particular case (or cases), and for good cause shown by the carriers.

POLITICS APPEAR WITH INDIAN BILL

Mr. Hamill of New Jersey Injects
Eulogy of Bryan in the Discussion.

LEAKE WAXES SARCASTIC.

Colleague of First Speaker Offers to Explain Affairs and Sharp Williams
Winds Up Flow of Words.

Washington, Feb. 12.—For the second time this week, politics cropped out during the discussion of the Indian appropriation bill in the house. Today Mr. Hamill of New Jersey got the floor for five minutes, presumably to talk on the bill.

"My colleague, Mr. Leake, last Monday, made some remarks derogatory of the conduct of W. J. Bryan," he said, and before he could continue, Mr. Sherman, New York rose, and amid general laughter, said: "I must make the point of order that this section of the bill does not apply to W. J. Bryan." There were demands that Mr. Hamill be allowed to proceed. On condition that Mr. Leake should be permitted five minutes to reply, the permission was accorded.

Resuming his remarks, Mr. Hamill declared that the sentiments as expressed by Mr. Leake, "are not the sentiments I entertain or the sentiments that prevail in Hudson county, which we both represent; which prevents me from making any further statement of New Jersey."

DECALOGUE AN ISSUE.

Mr. Bryan, he said, had been criticized because of his knowledge of the decalogue. In his opinion it was amazing that Mr. Bryan should be openly opposed on the floor of the house because he showed an acquaintance with the Ten Commandments. It was refreshing, he said, to find a man who not only boasted and possessed an acquaintance with the Ten Commandments, but who through the entire course of his public career consistently put the precepts of the commandments into practice.

Shouts of Democratic approval greeted Mr. Hamill's announcement that while he agreed with the statement that Mr. Bryan's knowledge of the commandments would fit him to occupy a pulpit with prominence, "I also assure the house, reflecting at the same time their own conviction, that that same acquaintance will enable him to occupy with equal the post of president of the United States."

APPROPRIATED HIS VIEWS.

The principles Mr. Bryan espoused, he said, were so undeniably sound, "that his victorious opponents have appropriated of them and made them the popular features of their policies." "If, said Mr. Hamill, it was true as charged by his colleague, that Mr. Bryan was engaged in the practice of corraling delegates to the Denver convention, it was the very same practice indulged in by the illustrious gentleman whom my friends on the other side of the chamber boast of as their political champion."

All eyes then turned towards Mr. Leake, who, amid Republican applause, said that he had been misunderstood and that the Congressional Record would bear him out that he had cast no aspersions on "the peerless one." His tone in referring to Mr. Bryan was so sarcastic that he was again applauded by the Republicans. Mr. Leake said it was his honest opinion that his views reflected the sentiment of his district, his state, and the country. There were, he said, certain principles of the Democratic party which had been departed from since 1896 and in this year, when we were then sent to Mayaguez, we are still trusting our fortunes to the distinguished gentleman from Nebraska."

BELIEVES BRYAN SINCERE.

Mr. Leake spoke of the doctrine of Thomas Jefferson and reverting to Mr. Bryan provoked Republican applause and general laughter when he said: "I believe that Mr. Bryan is sincere, honest, and I believe that he is truthful, and I believe further that he can not represent the principles of Democracy before the American people—I believe that he cannot preach the doctrine of home rule in the states, I don't believe he can preach the doctrine of American individuality, for when he rises as our leader, he is wound around by his heresies of free silver, by his doctrines of governmental ownership and by his guaranteeing of the bank deposits by the United States and by all those other Socialistic tendencies." "The country," he declared, "needs the establishment of the principles of Democracy into our national legislation and needs to get away from the principles which Mr. Bryan stands for."

SHARP WILLIAMS IS HEARD.

Mr. Leake, after asserting that the Republicans were a party of expediency and the Democrats a party of principle, said that he had been accused of being a Republican. He declared, however, that he did not believe that party was based on sound principles of Democracy as enunciated by Jefferson.

General applause and laughter greeted Mr. Leake as he took his seat and after a momentary silence it broke out with increased vigor. Mr. John Sharp Williams, leader of the minority, brought the colloquy to a climax and a close. "I have observed," he said, "that the risibilities of the other side were considerably stirred by the clash of the two individual opinions on this side. The Republicans seem to rejoice in the fact that there is no rod of iron on the Democratic side to assure of absolute Republican opinion. I recognize as in contrast, that the Republicans are generally united notwithstanding the fact that now and then, when one of them rises, it is warned by another of them to get out of the way or be run down."

POISON IN CANDY.

Believed to Have Caused Agonizing
Death of Little Ruth Miller.

Kansas City, Feb. 12.—Ruth Miller, 4-year-old daughter of Charles Miller of Kansas City, Kan., today died from the effects of eating candy from a box of cheap bonbons sent through the mail to Ella Miller, an older sister. The following inscription was on the candy box:

"Sweetest to Ella Miller. From girls of the S. & S."

The candy is believed to have contained strychnine, and Ruth Miller died in agony 10 minutes after eating some of the bonbons. Four other children of the family were affected by the candy, but they suffered only temporary distress.

Ella Miller, who is 14 years old, worked for the Schwartzschild & Sulzberger Packing company until a month ago. She does not believe she has any enemies at the packinghouse. She never had a sweetheart and the motive for sending her poisoned candy is a mystery.

HYBRID MURDERER ESCAPES.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 12.—Advices from the north tonight state that Mosney, the fugitive half-breed, whom the officers are looking for in connection with the murder of Robert Holmes, has completely outwitted the officers under Sheriff Shoemaker of Helena and has effected his getaway. The posse men have lost every clue of the Indian outlaw, who is believed to have made his way into civilization. There is a suspicion that a man seen riding on the cowcatcher of an engine into Cascade was Mosney.

DID NOT SPECIFY JOHN DEE.

But Higgen Had a Pretty Good Idea
About His Fire.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 12.—In his cross-examination of Thomas L. Higgen in the hearing today in connection with the action brought to dissolve the Standard Oil company, J. G. Milburn questioned the witness tonight regarding his campaign speeches in Massachusetts last fall and concerning a fire which partly destroyed the Higgen plant in Albany some time ago. Although he admitted that his firm competed with the Standard Oil company for years and that he furnished Massachusetts newspapers with articles and pictures, he denied the assertion that he attempted to create a prejudice against the Standard.

It had been said that the fire at the Higgen plant was of an incendiary origin. Mr. Milburn produced a newspaper report of one of Mr. Higgen's speeches in which he was quoted as saying: "I am making no accusations, but there is one in Albany who has not placed the crime where it properly belongs."

Mr. Higgen declined to say to whom he referred in the speech. Mr. Higgen was asked by Mr. Milburn if he did not conduct his political campaign in Massachusetts on an anti-Standard Oil platform. Witness replied that he was a candidate for auditor and governor on an "anti-trust" platform.
