TALKS OF THE PANTHER.

NORTH WOODS HUNTERS CALL HER THE SCRATCH CAT.

North Woods, N. Y., March 14.—At regular intervals during the winter and spring a merchant from Utica makes journeys through the Adirondack region buying pelts. When he stopped at the store in this hamlet one day this week the top one of a pile of deer skins showed long deep scars on both hips.

"Had a scratch cat after him," said Charley Thomas. Scratch cat is a local name for panther.

"I wish I had been there to see him jump when he felt her claws," said Johnny Jones, the village blacksmith.

According to Charley Thomas, the common notion that panthers lie in wait along the runways of the deer and climb in trees to watch for their prey to pass along beneath, is all wrong.

"Panthers do not climb trees at all," he said, "unless a pack of dogs is after them. The panther hunts deer just like a man, only she is a great deal quieter at it than any man and travels twice as far in a day to do it. When she sees a deer she sneaks around down on the lee side just as a man would do, and if she can hide behind a ridge and so creep nearer she will go back on her own trail perhaps twenty rods so as to take advantage of the ground. Then she crawls behind clumps of bushes, tree tops, logs, etc., stopping every time the deer raises its head and creeping forward when it goes on feeding. In this way she crawls within about five yards of her game; then she gets the buck fever just like a man, and no matter how much nearer she might crawl she can stand it no longer. With her tail shaking and her whole body in a shiver from excitement she crouches a trifle, gives two short bounds to get under headway, and then makes a leap that fairly takes one's breath to think of. Forty feet on the level is no uncommon distance, and I have known one to clear three rods on a down grade. Four times out of five she leaps as a man shoots—she misses her mark. Either she leaps too soon and falls short, or she makes so much noise on her first jump that the deer gets a chance to jump too.

JACK SHEPPARD'S HUNTING.

"You ought to talk to Jack Sheppard over on the Fulton chain if you want to hear panther stories," said Ed. Carpenter. "I was down to Cold Brook when he came there with thirteen panther skins one day. He wanted to see the supervisor to get the bounty on three he had killed in this town. The rest he took up to Willmurt and over to Hamilton County. His way of hunting was to start into the woods with a peck basket full of bread and his dogs at his heels as soon as good snowshoeing came on. The first panther he saw he'd shoot. Ripping it up, he'd smear the bottoms of his snowshoes all over with its insides and then feed the meat to his dogs. Panthers are very fond of porcupines. Of course, he had to hunt for the most of those he killed, instead of their hunting him. The panther is the greatest traveler to be found in the woods when she's looking for game; and you may follow one fifty miles and then not get her."

"Talking about making a trail for a panther to follow, did you ever try to call one?" said Johny Jones. "Well I've tried it twice. The first time was when Charley Thomas and I had a job of peeling up back of Little Deer Lake. They told us when we took it that a panther had a runway there and would call on us some day, but we didn't believe it. We'd been there three weeks or so when one day Charley stopped work and, leaning on his axe a minute, said:"

"'Did you hear some one call?'"

"'Yes,' I said, 'I believe I did hear something.'

"'It's the women, I guess; something's happened, and we'd better go see.'

"'Wait till they shout again,' said I, having an idea what it was.

"Then we heard it again. 'It's a scratching cat," says I.

"'We'll scratch it, then,' says he. We only had our axes, but we started through the brush for it, answering it the best we could, but that wasn't good enough, and she made off. We found her nest and plenty of sign covered with leaves under an old tree top, though.

"'Herb Conklin's father and I were fishin' up near Jones' lake when we heard a panther.'

"'Call it down,' says I, 'and I'll go the shanty and get the rifle.'

"'Call it yourself,' says he.

A FINE SPECIMEN.

"'All right,' says I, and I did, while he started after the gun. When it would scream I would answer it, and it kept coming right along until I began to think Conklin was a mighty long time going after that gun, and I pretty soon concluded I wouldn't call any more. I was fishing and wading along down the stream all this time. About the time that I stopped answering the brute Conklin was coming up with the rifle and answered it himself. The next thing I heard the panther gave a scream almost opposite to where I was. There were a few alders at the edge of the water, so that by stepping on a root I could get my head above the bank. So I took a look. The woods were tolerably open and I could see her plainly. She was walking down stream not four rods away. She was easy seven feet long, tail and all, and was walking along with her tail swaying just like a cat. Just then Conklin gave a cry and directly after she answered it. When she screamed she stopped, opened her jaws a trifle and curled up the corners of her mouth until her face looked like those pictures you may have seen of a tiger that is laughing at something, or rather her mouth looked like that. As luck would have it my foot slipped off the root I was standing on and in clawing at a sapling to keep my head above the bank I made such a noise that she turned towards me in an instant. The moment she saw my face she was off up the creek like a flash. I'll bet a dollar she covered 100 feet in the three jumps after the first."

"Tell them about the panther the Albany chappies saw," said Charley Thomas.

"I was going fishing on a little lake only a few were acquainted with that lies in beyond Jones's lake. When I wanted big ones I went there. When I got up to Jack's lake, I fell in with a couple of young men from Albany. They were very anxious to go along with me, and as they seemed to be pretty good fellows I invited them to go. But after we got to my shanty they wanted me to play the lackey, which I was not in the habit of doing. Besides, they thought nobody knew quite so much about fishing and woodcraft generally as they did. The second afternoon I asked them how they'd like a little venison. That would just suit them. So that night, just before sundown, we went down the outlet to a little beaver meadow where the deer came out to feed on pond lilies. On the way down we had to pass under a steep ledge of rock. Pointing to a place where a red squirrel would have had trouble in getting a foothold, I told them that was the run way of a panther leading to her den, and they believed it. Then I kept them at the beaver meadow until dark, although they were growing nervous all the time.

"As luck would have it the moon rose about two hours after sunset that night, and when we got to the ledge on the way to the shanty, I told them we would have to wait for the moon or we might have a tussle with the panther in the dark. So down we sat on the rocks. After a little there was a noise in the brush on top of the ledge and one of them asked in a whisper if I thought it was the panther. I said I didn't know. He drew a big revolver and sat nursing it while the noise grew plainer and the revolver began to wobble about nervously. Then a deer looked over the ledge and we all saw its eyes shining in the dark.

"'It's the panther,' whispered I.

"'Bang!' went the revolver, the bullet striking the water in the outlet, and away went the fiery eyes.

"'It was a narrow escape,' says I, 'and we'd better go to the shanty.'

SCARED OUT OF THEIR WITS.

"While we ate supper I told such panther stories as I could remember and invent and then, having freshened up the fire, we all lay down to sleep. We had had a long day and in spite of panthers the two chappies were asleep. Then I took a piece of a fish-line and making a noose in each end of it, slipped a noose over the foot of each chappie, as they slept with their feet to the fire. Drawing the nooses taut I touched one of the tied up feet with an ember. The chappie drew up suddenly, giving the other one a jerk, and then I screamed as much like a panther as I knew how to do. Up jumped the chappies, wild with fear, and started to run in opposite directions. The line brought up taut instantly and down they tumbled.

"'Oh, mother, he's got me,' said one.

"'For God's sake where's my revolver?' said the other, as they clawed and kicked at the leaves and ground under them. I could keep still no longer, and rolling over on my back I yelled and laughed like a woman going into the hysterics. Then they rose up, saw the fish line and reached for clubs, and I had to get out. We got along better for the rest of the week they stayed with me. They were sensible enough to see a point when it was handed to them tied up with a fish-line."

THE INCURABLE CURED!

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Feb. 24, 1887.

Gentlemen—Seven years ago a sore developed on my nose from a finger nail scratch. I tried a few simple remedies, but the sore would not yield. I grew worse every year for seven years. Many thought I had a cancer. Over a year ago I commenced taking S. S. S. and two dozen bottles entirely cured me. When I began with Swift's Specific I was in very poor health, and could hardly drag about. After I had finished the course of S. S. S. I was strong and buoyant, and had a good appetite. I regard it as a most valuable medicine for ladies in weak, delicate health. It is a wonderful medicine with me. Yours respectfully,

MRS. S. W. WILSON.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 2, 1887.

Gentlemen—For twenty years I have had a sore on my left cheek. It had gradually been growing worse. The many physicians whom I had consulted were unable to do me any good. Last fall a friend induced me to begin using S. S. S. At first it inflamed the sore, and it became more virulent than ever; so much so, indeed, that my family insisted that I should leave off the medicine. I persisted in using the S. S. S. At the end of two months the sore was entirely healed. Thinking that the evil was out of my constitution, I left off the medicine; but in November, ten months after, a very slight breaking out appeared. I at once began again on S. S. S., and now that is also disappearing. I have every faith in S. S. S. It has done me more good than all the doctors and other medicines I ever took. Yours truly,

A. R. SHANDS.

WESTON, N. C., April 12, 1887.

Gentlemen—Two or three years ago a cancer came on my face. It soon grew to be quite large. It wore on me and my general health was very poor. Last September I began a course of S. S. S., which I have continued to the present time with the happiest result. The cancer has entirely disappeared, there being no evidence or symptom of a cancerous character left. My general health is good now, and my appetite better than it has been in years. I am 82 years old, and to-day I am working in the field planting corn. Yours truly, JONAS LINEBACK.

Gentlemen—I had a sore on my upper lip for eight years, seven different doctors attempted in vain to heal it. One gave me a small vial for five dollars, which was a "certain cure." It is needless to say that it did me no good. About two years ago I became quite uneasy, as people thought I had a cancer, and I took a course of eighteen bottles of S. S. S. The result has been a complete cure. The ulcer or cancer healed beautifully, leaving scarcely a perceptible scar. From that day I have been in excellent health. The Specific having purified my blood thoroughly, increased my appetite and perfected my digestion. In a word, I feel like a new woman, and, best of all, the eight year ulcer is gone entirely. Yours sincerely,

MRS. W. F. CANNON.
