

REV. GOSHEN AT GORDON ACADEMY

Preached the Baccalaureate Sermon in First Congregational Church.

"REMEMBER THY CREATOR."

Was Theme Upon Which Speaker Dwelt—How We Slip From Youth To Manhood.

Rev. E. I. Goshen preached the Gordon Academy baccalaureate sermon last evening, in the First Congregational church, from the text, "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them." The speaker said in part: "I remember the St. Lawrence river, where the waters of Lake Ontario begin their flow to the sea, and the change from flow to river comes so imperceptibly that one can not tell where lake ends and river begins until he is fairly on his way to the Atlantic. This gives us an example of the way in which we slip out of youth to manhood, or from slip out of womanhood, with no marked dividing line between. You who are really on the threshold of life should consider with conscientious care the importance of the step you are about to take. The course you choose to assume in the next three months of your life may tend to decide your future worth to the world in the grand plan of life."

NO WISE EDUCATED.

"I don't come to flatter you with meaningless praise, so I say you are no wise educated—you have only made your beginning. I remember seeing the foundation laid recently for a stone was laid, the workmen dug deep into the earth for weeks, just seeking a firm foundation for the magnificent structure to be erected later. Just as with you, for the work you have been doing in the last three years has been only that on which the magnificent structure of life is to be built. In the near future some of you will have to choose a clearly defined course in life. Some of the members of this class are about to choose a definite way for the future, and to this end will select some institution of higher learning in which to complete their preparation for the battle of life. Right here let me advise you that when you go to some higher institution of learning, go to one which has as its leaders some great souls, and make it the best one you can find."

There may be colleges or universities that have superior equipment in the way of laboratories or libraries, but it is the institution that has the great and grand personality of its leaders and will best prepare you for the battle of life, whether the institution be in one of the great centers of population and culture or whether it be in the wilderness. They all cost about the same, and in every one of the best institutions of learning, you find many who are making their own way."

"I think the boy or girl who is sent to college rarely makes his mark in the world, but the one who goes to the one who is heard from in after life."

TOO MUCH HURRY.

"In this life we are living, we are all in too much of a hurry and to hasten our education, and are like trying to tear apart a rosebud to get at the superior beauty of the blossom. Education, I ask you to consider, is not a bundle of acts, but it is rather an accumulation of faculties. Take an encyclopedia and it is the best of all the facts one can ask for in ordinary life, but the development of the faculties brings a fullness of knowledge that it should be our high aim to attain. The wonderful progress of education in the use of steam and electricity to take the place of labor presents a serious problem. Either the innovations being made will bring about a condition where schools will be fewer and smaller and it will bring about a condition where the few will live in great affluence and wealth while the masses will be brought to obliteration. I want you to say to those who are hurrying, that they may continue the work of preparation for life. 'We are trying to make the most of life and to get an education, and by the eternal God who lives, you will succeed.'"

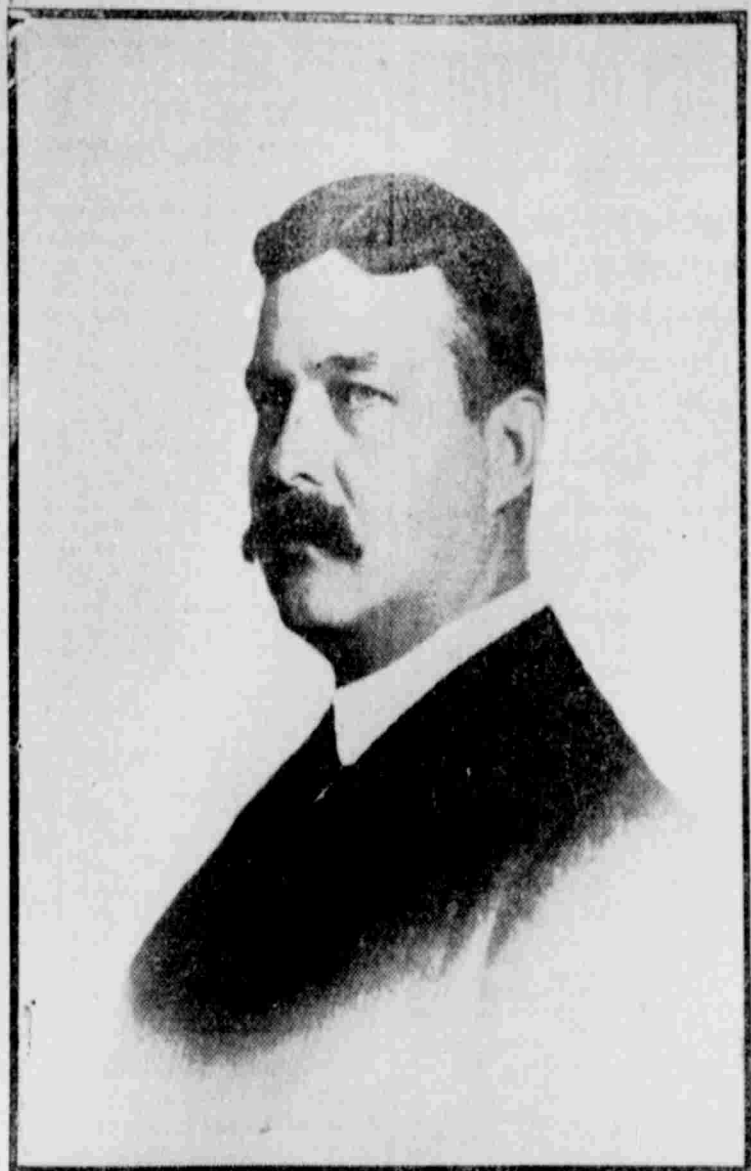

RACE WHITNEY'S ADDRESS.

Lectured on Trisco Earthquake to Large Audience Last Evening.

At the young people's meeting in the Elgin ward chapel last night, Race Whitney, recently of the San Francisco Chronicle, was the speaker. A large audience listened intently to Mr. Whitney's narrative of his personal experiences and at the conclusion he was given a hearty vote of thanks for his effort. Prior to the lecture the ward choir rendered Kipling's "Lost We Forget" and "The Cloud Capt Towers," a musical arrangement of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and a number of other songs, all of which added to the interest of the evening. Mr. Whitney spoke of the earthquake of 1906, which he described as "like a great hand of a giant reaching down from the sky and shaking the earth to its foundations." He said that the earthquake was a "great lesson to the world, and that it was a warning to the people of the world to prepare themselves for the day of the Lord."

Mr. Whitney said it would be two years before the debris could be cleared away, and about 15 years before the city would be anything like a metropolis again. "And worst of all, it will be only a commercial metropolis. There will be no more million-dollar mansions; no more art palaces, no more carnivals; none of those marvelous features which made San Francisco the most interesting city in the United States. That it will still be the greatest of the Pacific coast ports due to the fact that commerce must use its deep harbor. But that which inspired millionaires to build their magnificent structures in an earthquake country will henceforth be lacking. The spirit of '49 is not dead, but it has been frightfully crippled."

The speaker said Gen. Funston, Major Schmitt and E. E. Calvin were the three heroes of the disaster. Funston for his promptness in preventing the spread of disease by exercising the fullest powers of martial law; Schmitt for his determination and indomitable zeal in bringing order out of chaos; and Calvin for his unprecedented exhibit-

CHARLES W. SCOVEL, President Insurance Man Visiting Salt Lake—Will Speak Tonight.

President Charles W. Scovel of the National Association of Life Underwriters, at New York, arrived at 11 a. m. today, and was met at the depot by the officials of the Utah association, who tendered the distinguished visitor as their guest a warm welcome. President Scovel is a man in the prime of life, and whose abilities as a life insurance man are enhanced by a pleasing personality that at once produces favorable impressions. He was taken to Saltair this afternoon, and shown the attractions of that resort, which pleased him very much. President Scovel was also shown about the city in an automobile, and this evening he will be tendered a reception at the Commercial club, where he is to deliver an address. All local insurance men are urged to be present and meet the noted visitor.

tion of railroad management, as shown in the expeditious landing of supplies and shipping of refugees. Calvin, he said, was the most composed and cool-headed person in authority in any division.

ISSUED BAD CHECKS.

And Now Harry McCloud Is Under Arrest and in Jail.

Harry McCloud has been arrested on a complaint charging him with issuing worthless checks. The accusations were made by persons residing in the vicinity of the O. S. L. depot. When searched at police headquarters, a check and a draft were found upon the person of McCloud. The check was for the sum of $15, signed by L. Harris & Co., and bearing the endorsement of H. C. Lewis. The draft was dated April 20, 1906, drawn by the bank of Hamilton, B. C., upon the Western Bank of New York, for $85. Both papers are said to be worthless. It is said that McCloud and a woman robbed a man about a year ago near the Saltair depot, but failed of conviction. It is also stated that a charge of larceny hangs over him, and advantage will doubtless be taken at this time to prosecute him on that charge as well as the one for which he was arrested yesterday.

JAPANESE GOODS BURNED.

Articles From Portland Fair Destroyed By Fire Yesterday.

A portion of the Japanese goods that were brought from the Portland exposition and which have been on sale at auction for some time past, at 37 South Main street, were destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. An alarm was sent in about 2 o'clock and departments 1, 2 and 3 responded. The blaze was in the rear of the building, and by the time the firemen arrived upon the scene much of the goods had been carried out by the proprietors. The blaze was extinguished by means of chemicals, and the loss will reach some hundreds of dollars. The damage is mainly to silk curtains and draperies. A man carrying a cartload of costly Japanese goods stumbled and fell just as he reached the sidewalk, and the valuables were smashed to pieces. The blaze attracted the attention of many passer-by, and for a time there was considerable excitement.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

Touching Tribute Paid to the Late Abraham J. Gold.

Memorial services were held last evening in the Cannon ward meetinghouse in honor of Elder Abraham J. Gold, who died May 14, 1906, at Groningen, Holland. The services were largely attended by relatives and friends. The assembly room was draped in white and decorated with many flowers. A portrait of the young missionary hung above the speakers' stand. The ward choir rendered the singing in a touching manner, giving as the second solo Elder Gold's favorite, "Little Children, Love the Savior." The opening prayer was offered by Elder Charles H. Hyde, Elders Otto Offens, Peter Asseberg and Park Koenner, who had labored with him in the mission field, related many incidents and circumstances in his labors illustrating his zeal and energy as a missionary. Elder George Reynolds extended sympathy to the family on behalf of the general authorities and missionary committee of the Church. Elder Charles E. Dacey represented the ward, told of Elder Gold's active labors in the ward priesthood and auxiliary organization prior to his departure for Holland. Elder Sylvester Q. Cannon highlighted the young man's short career, which, he said, judging from the reports of his co-laborers, characterized him as a "man without fear and without reproach." He stated that the Church had secured title to a plot of ground in which Elder Gold was buried by the side of his companion, Elder Welcker, whom he had nursed, thus contracting the same disease. President William McLachlan, in expressing his sympathy, said only the comforter could console the family in their bereavement. He spoke of Elder Gold's virtuous and pure life while at home and his faithful and earnest labors in proclaiming the Gospel. Bishop Lewis M. Cannon said the ward with the family sorrowed in the bereavement of losing such a promising young man, whose whole life had been most exemplary. The benediction was pronounced by President David McKenzie.

COMMENCEMENT NEXT THURSDAY

Dr. Paden Preached Baccalaureate Sermon for Collegiate Institute

IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Westminster College Men's Quartet Furnished Excellent Music for The Occasion.

Rev. Dr. W. M. Paden preached the baccalaureate sermon before the Salt Lake Collegiate Institute in the First Presbyterian church last evening. The members of the school marched in two by two from the Sunday school auditorium and occupied the front seats. Special music was furnished by the Westminster college men's quartet. Dr. Paden preached from the text, Chron. xii. 13 and 23, "All these could keep rank and were not of a double heart." The speaker described the scenes at the crowning of David as king of Hebrew, which he called commencement days. The speaker said in part: "Notice that among these loyal soldiers referring to the legions in attendance at David's coronation, scarcely three score of the 300,000 are mentioned by name. It must always be so in the campaigns of life. The mightiest forces in the world must ever be and will ever be the nameless living and the nameless dead. The rank and file must bear life's burdens and fight life's battles. Our Civil war was not between Grant and Lee, but between the north and the south, or as they used to say, the boys of the north and the boys of the south. The word 'boys' as so used includes all who are under training; all who to win credit for themselves, must keep rank and that with undivided hearts."

"What was wrong with the boy I sent you?" one asks of a business man. "Wrong? Well I'll tell you. He knew too much. He thought he could run our business better than we could. He wanted to be law unto himself. He would not keep his place." A boy's obedience and teachableness is worth more than all his treasures of wisdom and knowledge. "Was not the boy I sent you a better than the one who sent him?" "Oh, yes," is the reply. "He worked hard enough, but he was not steady. He was as we say, too rapid. He bungled his work and abused my horses. I would have a boy of less pure mind."

If you want to get a place in the regular army of life you must keep rank. Obedience is better than slashing around; faithfulness is worth more than genius and a life-long experience. In the vocabulary of morals fast means bad. Fast spending, rash speaking and all kinds of fast living are wicked and wasteful. The errand boy who is too rapid breaks the chain and loses his position. The fastidious breaks the commandments and loses his character. Don't straggle. Keep up with the body of the army. Keep in line. Keep in rank. Who wants to lead a band of stragglers? If you are rambling off into the by-ways you will be captured by the enemy. When Peter fell out of line and strayed off to warm himself with his master's enemies he was caught in a trap. When David fell out of the ranks and loitered along at ease he was thrown upon his face by the assaults of the flesh. Young people, if you want to keep safe do not straggle. Keep in line. Keep under discipline. Keep in rank.

MUST KEEP IN LINE.

"In the military campaign of the text you must keep rank and eagerly march right onward. Keep rank and be not of a double heart. You must keep rank, you will never win honor for yourselves, nor honor your calling by going your own wilful way or at any time leaving the ranks. You must not straggle out of line, race ahead of your leaders or fall off in the rear. You must keep step and rank. Cordial co-operation with one's comrades is essential in the more serious contests of life. Not too fast is one of the regulations. You are ordered out for a long march. If you want to hold out to the end you must make haste slowly. Young men, if you want to get there quickly go slowly. Let those who know how to make the long marches set the pace."

"He is a foolish fellow who begins the day's work in the harvest field by cutting around and ahead of the experienced men who labor around him. For though he may slash ahead for a few hours the steady hands will lay him under the shade trees before sundown. It is not wise to quit at the end of the day and to regulate your speed, then let ability, force ahead, but while leaving keep in rank."

A BRAVE BEGINNER.

In conclusion, Dr. Paden said: "Members of the graduating class, your presence here is an evidence of your ability to keep in rank, as well as of your singleness of heart. The Collegiate Institute does not offer its students a go as you please course of study, and that only that which begins well and keeps on well till it ends well."

deserves the crown. If you would have honorable recognition of the great commencement, the commencement of the life that is life indeed as you have begun to follow, follow Him, whithersoever He leads. Keep His commandments and keep them with all your heart."

It was announced that the school commencement would be held next Thursday evening, in the Sunday school auditorium of the church. The Alumni meeting and banquet will be held tomorrow evening in the parlors of the church.

KEYTING HANDCUFFED.

Young Man Resisted an Officer and Was Taken to Jail.

Because he used abusive language when an officer attempted to attach a horse and wagon in his possession, Scott Keyting was handcuffed and taken to the county jail on Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Booth and will have to face a charge of using abusive language before Justice of the Peace Douglass T. Smith. The horse and wagon belonged to Tobin & Keyting, plumbers, and attachment proceedings had been instituted against the firm to recover on a heavy bill. When the deputy sheriff told young Keyting, who is a brother of a member of the firm, that he had attachment papers to serve upon him the latter defied the deputy and vilified him. He is claimed. He was finally subdued and handcuffed and taken to the county jail. Later he was released but the warrants of arrest was served upon him and he will have to appear in court to answer the charge against him.
