MISS MAY BRUCE BRENNAN

FIANCEE OF MEMBER OF WASHINGTON FAMILY.

The engagement of Miss May Bruce Brennan, the Kentucky beauty, and William Lanier Washington has been announced. Miss Brennan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brennan, of Louisville, and has lived in New York for several years. In Kentucky she was famous for her beauty, and when she went to New York she was immediately taken up by several women of prominence in that city. Miss Brennan is very tall and slender, with black hair, high color and brown eyes.

Mr. Washington is a member of many clubs throughout the country and formerly lived in Pittsburg. He comes of the old Virginia family, and his father was Major James Carroll Washington.

The wedding will take place in New York City on June 6.

PRINCIPALS OF DIVORCE CASE

The separate divorce committee of the Canadian parliament, has recommended refusal of the petition of Commander Osirey George Valentine Spain for an act of parliament dissolving his marriage with Mary Beatrice Spain. The committee's report will be considered by the senate on May 30.

The action of the divorce committee is based upon a belief that collusion exists between Commander Spain and his wife.

The committee reports that it heard evidence under oath, and examined a document dated Hotel Bartholdi, New York, March 21, 1905, and signed M. B. Spain, in which the wife admits misconduct with one Reginald Salmon, and desires that for the sake of her son there be as little publicity as possible in connection with a divorce. The committee says that in its opinion the document produced on behalf of the petitioner, taken in conjunction with the testimony of the petitioner of St. Charles B. Gwyn, one of the petitioner's witnesses, of the respondent, and of Reginald Salmon, the co-respondent, is evidence of such collusion as to bring the proceedings under rule 152 of the Canadian senate, which provides for rejection of a petition.

In Woman's World.

A reasonable salad is offered for those who like mayonnaise with fruit. Cut ripe strawberries and arrange in cups of white lettuce procurable. Make a mayonnaise, using lemon juice instead of vinegar, and forbearing to add mustard. Some cooks add whipped cream to mayonnaise, and if this is ever desirable it is when the sauce is used with fruit. Put a tablespoonful of the sauce on each lettuce cup, and serve very cold.

Every spring some one starts a discussion of strawberry shortcake, whether or not a cake foundation is ever permissible, whether the berries should be crushed or left whole, etc. There is only one real strawberry shortcake, and that has a foundation of baking powder, biscuit dough, baked in a round pie-pan, split and buttered. The berries should be lightly crushed, sweetened and piled lavishly between the layers and over the top. The sauce is made with more berries, crushed quite fine and made juicy. Pour this over the shortcake and serve hot.

Strawberry cream-cake is another thing. It is usually called shortcake, but the name is misapplied. The cake is very good, nevertheless, and perhaps more wholesome than the real shortcake. Sponge cake is used in two or three layers, and whipped cream is an invariable accompaniment. Garnish with the largest and finest whole strawberries.

The fashion of small safes concealed in unlikely places such as a popular one that any piece of furniture may now be used to baffle burglars. The latest is a linen-chest, a substantial thing of oak or cedar, which contrives to hide a safe. The safe is fire as well as burglar proof.

Do not spoil the effect of daffodils, tulips, narcissi, and other spring blossoms by arranging them in glass vases. These flowers never show to better advantage than in the florists' windows, where they stand in straight earthenware jars. Take the hint and provide the simplest of flower jars, cylindrical in shape and quiet in color. A great many American potteries are to be had in lovely greens, yellows, and browns. They are dull in finish and very good in design. The best of these depend on color for their attractiveness and are bare of ornament by decoration.

A rather pretty novelty for the country house hall is a miniature bell, with a thatched roof and a brass or copper cowbell. A heavy strip of leather aways the bell, which may be used for dinner calls or the rising summons.

The House Beautiful once published a list of things nobody ought to buy for the house. It is good enough to remind. "What we do not want: Parlor furniture, carpets, lace curtains, ready-made curtains, hat rack, umbrella holder, made draperies, gilt picture frames, small gilt chairs, grile-work, ornaments, colored lamps, ready-made china cupboards, sideboards, book-cases, gas-lugs, sofas, upholstered chairs, jardiniere of glazed china." Built-in china closets and book shelves were preferred to ready-made pieces, and a piano was wanted only if the family was musically inclined.

A deliciously cool salad is made with small pieces of grape fruit, pitted white grapes, and blanched lettuce hearts. Arrange the lettuce in cups, fill with grape fruit and grapes, and sprinkle with rolled nuts. Serve with a French dressing.

Never wash chamomile skins in hot water. Use cold water and avoid soap, if possible. The skins clean very easily, as a matter of fact. This applies also to chamomile-skin gloves, which are so popular in summer.

What-to-Eat gives a recipe for

"Mock prairie chicken," a glorified fricassee. Steam one or more large fowls several hours until tender. In a large skillet place a tablespoonful of butter, several slices of bacon, half-a-dozen peppercorns, and some whole cloves. Cut up the chicken, it is steamed whole, roll the pieces in salted flour and fry until brown. Just before serving, pour in a cupful of cream. Allow it to boil up once and serve immediately.
