NEWS OF THE WEST.

Hydrophobia the Result of a Skunk's Bite.

MECHANIC'S WIFE FATALLY SHOT.

No Democratic Federal officials in Arizona—Battle Between Bank and Snake—Bank Closed.

The Merchants and Miners' National bank at Philipsburg, Montana, closed its doors Monday. It is said that depositors will be paid in full.

United States District Attorney Brunswood, the only remaining Democratic official in Arizona, today handed his resignation to President McKinley on the journey.

Ung Fook, a Chinese setor, was found hanging to a rafter in the basement of a Chinese theater at Fresno, Cal., Saturday afternoon. At the subsequent the evening a verdict of suicide was returned.

Mrs. J. Greenwald, formerly of Provo, Utah, but later of Evanston, Wyoming, was fatally shot at the lot named place on Monday. Her husband went to the town and found his wife in a bunch, whereupon he shot her.

E. W. Stewart, who disappeared from Phoenix, A. T., seven years ago, has been declared legally dead and letters granted on his estate. It is thought that he wandered away in the desert while temporarily demented and perished.

A novel battle occurred near Colfax, Cal., recently between a rattlesnake and hawk. The latter, by means of a series of plunges, almost succeeded in cutting the snake in twain at a point near the head, and escaped seemingly uninjured.

A horse attached to a cart containing Miss Lottie Brimson and her sister, Mrs. Marcum, ran away Saturday and plunged over the levee at Burlingame creek, Cal., falling twenty-five feet into the bed of the creek. Miss Brimson received a badly lacerated scalp wound and many bruises. Mrs. Marcum also received many superficial injuries. The physicians say their recovery is only a matter of a few days.

A large meeting of raisin growers, representing over 9,000 acres in vineyards in Fresno county, Cal., passed a resolution Saturday afternoon agreeing to stand Braig on the proposition that no raisins shall be sold for less than 2½ cents a pound in the sweatbox. The meeting also adopted a resolution declaring a San Francisco fruit packing company for its recent social cards, which contained among buyers of raisins, in which the prices were set at a figure claimed to be ruinous to growers.

Phoenix, Ariz., Gazette: A young man named Mark McDonald died at Flagstaff a couple of days ago from consumption. The young man was bitten up a skunk three months ago and was taken to Chicago for treatment. He returned to Flagstaff apparently recovered, but had not been home but a few days before he developed all the symptoms of hydrophobia and died in a few minutes after the attack in the greatest agony. There are several instances of the kind in the territory in the past few years and nearly all of the victims have died. It has been demonstrated that the bite of a skunk is even more dangerous than the bite of a dog suffering with the rabies.

CREAMERY PATRONS.

Rules That Must Be Observed in the Production of Milk.

Milk is to be delivered four times a week in winter and daily in summer except Sunday.

On the road to the creamery the cans must be protected from heat in summer and freezing in winter by covering with green blankets.

Patrons must on no account use any kind of preservatives to prevent milk from souring.

All milk delivered shall be sweet and in good condition. If any be found otherwise, the operator should reject the same.

As tending to this end the following directions should be observed:

If the cows are stabled, they should be kept as clean as possible.

Before milking, the udder and flank should be carefully brushed and then wiped with a damp cloth, even if the cow is apparently clean.

Patrons should be especially careful about musty hay or litter. Almost any hay or fodder that has been stored in bulk contains dust which if allowed to get into buckets or milk will have a bad effect on the product.

Musty or ill smelling bedding for cows should never be allowed under any circumstances.

At milking time the air in the stable should be as clear and sweet as possible.

As soon as milk is drawn from the cow it should be strained through wire and through cloth and it should be aired and cooled before it be shut up in cans to be hauled.

Warm, new milk should not be put in the can with the previous milking that has been cooled.

In winter, when milk is not delivered every day, it should be stirred up at least once in 12 hours to prevent the cream from getting too thick and to prevent cream rising. Otherwise it will be impossible to take a correct sample for testing. This is for the patron's benefit.

Milk should be delivered promptly at the same hour for each patron.

As soon as the cans come home with skimmilk they should be emptied (rinsed out with cold water) and each can washed with warm water containing a little sal soda, then scalded with boiling water and turned up on racks in the sun, with their caps off until wanted.

The rule in relation to scalding the milk cans with boiling water should also apply to the milk pails and strainer. Steam would be better, but where that cannot be had, have a good, large amount of boiling water, not a little dab of a few quarts.

Patrons should be exceedingly careful not to milk a cow too near her time of calving, either before or after.

The practice of allowing the male to run with the herd should never be allowed, and a careful record should be kept of each cow's time.—Heard's Dairyman.

Cooling Milk Without a Cooler.

My way of cooling milk is simple. I have a vat of cold well water and a large tin pan a little smaller than the vat. Place the pan in the water, pour the milk in as milked and by the time I milk another cow it has cooled 30 to 40 degrees. Pour this in the milk can and cool the next cow's milk in the same manner. When my can is full I drop it in a cistern 12 feet deep, with enough water in it to cover the can, tie to the top.

By this method I have been able to keep my milk two days, with as near milk except when a thunderstorm comes, and the way neighbors go every day. This is a great help when one lives five miles from the factory. I hope in the future to have a milk cooler.

I am still weighing each cow's milk and testing the same.—Cor. Heard's Dairyman.

Dairy and Creamery.

By use of buttermilk vinegar is expected that the cream a account gets the finest in table use.

Never scald a churn the first thing after you have removed the butter. This will only take and scald the buttermilk fast to the sides of the churn. Rinse it first with cold water to get the milk out. Then pour boiling water into it and churn the hot water thoroughly against the wood. See to it that there are no particles of buttermilk in any crease of the churn. These will decay and taint the next batch of butter.

Some people make money out of skimmilk and buttermilk by feeding it all back to the cows, although it can be used profitably among the chickens and pigs. When you begin giving corn milk to the cows, feed rather sparingly of it at first, till you see how they take to it. If they like it kindly, increase the ration till the cows will take all the milk they can get. A correspondent of The Country Gentleman mentions a butter maker who regards the skimmilk and buttermilk as feeds as worth $25 a year to each cow. He gives it to the animals in large tobacco pails, to which it is mixed with the cow's grain ration. Thus mixed the animals devour greedily all they can get. The pails must be fixed between slats in the mangers as the cows cannot upset them. The cows in this skimmilk and buttermilk fed herd average each 465 pounds of butter a year.

Don't let the air get to butter. Keep it covered with parchment paper soaked in brine. Have the paper all around the sides and bottom too.

Barnyards do not make half enough use of lime plaster as an absorbent in their stables. If this plaster is liberally sprinkled through the stables and especially over manure heaps it will prevent the loss by fermentation of ammonia.

The kerosene emulsion kills bees flies at once wherever it is sprayed upon them. This is how it is made: Put a pint of kerosene and a pint of soft soap, or half a pint of hard soap dissolved in boiling water, into 2½ gallons of water, and churn them by forcing through a force pump rapidly, then spray the mixture upon the cattle with a hand spray.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many glowing statements which have been proven false by the test of time, the importance of perfect harmony with physical laws is rightly dictated. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly overcomes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

The greatest praise other emulsions can take to themselves is that they are
