

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

NO. 185.

ORATORY TODAY.

Debate on the Proposed Democratic Platform.

HILLMAN FIRES HIS GUNS.

Senator Hill of New York Makes His Bow to the Crowd.

BEST OVATION FOR HILLMAN.

Celebration of the Nominations of the Young Western Clergy for President.

COUNCIL, JULY 2.—Definite results are expected in the Democratic national convention today, certainly on the platform and probably on the candidates, unless a stand-off develops.

Lowering clouds hang over the city today in the day indicating a break in the perfect weather that has enjoyed us here in motion towards the convention hall early as we have seen for 10 o'clock.

The program of the day made the platform the first order of business among some unimportant incident arranged to be held in the afternoon with the initial appearance of most of the Western Missions of New York, Illinois, South Carolina, Jones, Arkansas, Utah, Wisconsin, and Gray of Delaware. The fact that Tolman had been unable to attend because of the mounting conflict between these two sessions on the floor of the Senate. Aside from these orations speakers, no one expected that many important speeches will be made.

When his program was concluded Senator White handed the gavel to Congressman Hillman, of Tennessee, a slender man with black moustache and hair, who is a veritable study about a whisker, and then with a smile and a wave went into the meeting room creating more the mounting speech was probably the beginning will begin.

No definite line of action has been agreed upon by the party, but the various members of New York and other eastern delegations easily express their intention either of quitting the convention hall when the new platform was adopted, or of remaining silent and supporting the existing platform.

It has become evident that no organized body will support the candidacy of Senator Hill and ex-Senator Whitney predicted towards conservatism.

THE NOMINATIONS.

The nomination of candidates is to begin formally at the opening of the national convention for presidential electors. For the "Bald" nominating speech will be made by the astute and versatile Senator West of Missouri. Governor Overton of Kentucky, who is one of the leaders according to him, has already shown himself one of the orators of the gathering.

With the presentation of Hill's name all silent enthusiasm of the allied forces promises of full expression as the platform is adopted, and in expediting the twenty minute platform, not eight.

Senate Triplett will make the nominating speech for Matthews and although his voice is thin he has a clear ringing voice giving him to his utterances. While he is not well known as a convincing figure, but it is said he will prove one of the speakers of the convention. There is no much uncertainty concerning the outcome of the vote of his delegation before the convention opened. It is a significant fact that no figures or estimates of strength are given by the leaders.

THE TWO-THIRDS QUESTION.

A new phase of the two-thirds question has arisen in the possible course of the great element to retain the party in power. The two-thirds of the delegates will be made by two-thirds of those voting. It is regarded by some as a difficult question.

The delivery of the platform, 200 to 200 in number, to the chair of the other candidates on the eve of the convention, is an important part of the platform.

Alford, which looks toward testing ground on the second ballot. The Teller movement continues a still bout and prospects depend largely upon the action of Bell and other leaders in control of the minority nominating strength during the final stages of the battle.

Vice President Stevenson will be brought forward by Bryan of Nebraska as a leader upon a formidable dark horse.

SEVERAL NEW JUBILEES.

The scores of numerous California were thrown open this morning and their streams of people were up through the galleries, the last circuitous route to the station. The new structures, jubilant and gay, were the chief attraction.

The Democratic minority claimed to be defeated once with their hands gripped by the strings. Reluctant using his slow steps the augmented people ranged the sloping rows that covered the floor with the bodies of the wrestling giant.

The rows of gold robes were crimson and gray, some brilliant banners of several candidates were marching their forms. Hand in hand the first demonstration when the band to save head of several hundred of high-spirited orators in the galleries. The band had a sufficient variety to satisfy the crowd and crowd gathered. The descriptive place, the Weimar's Hall, excited much interest.

The preliminary scenes were hardly representative of those of the previous evening. There were several scenes of the orators. Several speakers who were making themselves comfortable were seated.

Senator White, permanent chairman of the platform, was seated at 10:45. He wore a dark shirt and a white tie. He was in a bustle that could hardly be seen.

After a few moments he arose, turned white, his eyes closed, his hands clasped, and the galleries hushed, thought about the war and the war emancipated the black slaves. Now, he sat down, swinging his arms through the galleries, head low, his back leaning a shoulder to the white piano.

This provided a demonstration from the silver men.

"Without Clinton in 1860," he said, "we would have been in the Civil War." Having his feet and address, the galleries responded with a roar that rapidly reached a crescendo. He said he would not answer the question, "What is the Democratic candidate?"

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," a man announced holding half a minute.

John C. Calhoun, with all the energy, passed Hill, coming down the platform, driving his carriage out of the Democratic party. He was on a mission to unite, not to divide, to unify, not to destroy; to bring the country together.

Repeatedly, as he advanced, the galleries cheered. Several times the sergeant-at-arms threatened to close the galleries.

The other men shouted approval when he declared that they were adopting a new declaration of independence, 1861, or, at least, of Illinois. "We are not here to sustain," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

After these brilliant orations characteristics of the man, he called statistics in show the tendency of the people to work.

"We are not here to sustain," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

As they shall make their declaration of principles now, they set forth both truth and justice, a truth that may present to the benefit of the people and uplifting humanity. And as they shall designate him who shall be their candidate for state magistrate.

"Come," they shouted, "this cannot angry resolution. He makes the point that they are not here to sustain, but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

Many delegates came up the stairs and stood at the foot of the stage, studying intently the nature of the movements that made them.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

"I am a Democrat, but I am not a good one," he said, "but to begin, that thus has given us, & is very beginning, the right to be free in its responsibilities and duty to its duties. Especially good is the speech of the man who said he has this day's greatest pleasure in the service of his country.

John C. Calhoun, who had been the first to speak, advanced to the platform, where he again addressed the galleries.

</div