SINGULAR PHILANTHROPY.

THE present drift of sentiment. and action in reference to the Indian in the United States is that he must either be subjected to absorption by the white population, or be corralled as cattle in a pen. Either process, if perperusted would result in extinction. Under existing conditions he cannot be properly civilized without constant contact or amalgamation with the more advanced race, and that process would cause him to drop out of sight. The system of isolating him on reservations keeps him in savagery, with a certain prospect, unless a revolege. lution of circumstances, should transpire, of his reserved lands being seized by his white brother, who eagerly desires to possess them. If this were done he would not even have the bare privilege of being a wanderer, but would have no place whereon to lay his head.

For a long time the white man's eyes have been longingly turned toward the only spot where the red man has had a chance to spread himself with a semblance of liberty-Indian Territory. Were it not that the latter has been mide more or less a prey to designing whites he might have made a better record. If the light colored part of the population had been of a more intelligent, scrupulous and honest calibre, the owners of the land would have made greater progress in the ways of civilization They have been kept back to a large extent by the evil examples of white popular scum.

Now the efforts to extinguish the Indiantitle to the lauds embraced by the Territory are being revived. The usual plea-a hypocritical one-is being put forth; the welfare of the Indians themselves. Why not say right out that w ite speculators and grabbers want that country, and give that as the exciting cause of the movement? To say so would not make the ' true inwarduess" of the scheme møre conspicuous than it is now. But in addition to the greed and thirst for gold that permeates tue present generation, the lucre-seekers must add to mammon w rship the disgusting sin of hypocrisy, by injecting into their schemes the gauzy subterione of "philanthropy.
