

BIGAMY AND THE BARNETT BILL

Needless Alarm Over Measure Proposed for Enactment in The State of Utah.

RECOMMENDED BY BREEDEN.

Attorney General Makes it Clear That It Can in no Wise Affect Crime Of Polygamy.

It seems that considerable needless alarm has been created in the minds of some people and two or three newspapers, by the introduction of Mr. Barnett's bill in the house, known as H. B. 20, defining the crime of bigamy, and providing for the punishment.

It is pretended, should this measure become law, that immunity from punishment would be made possible by the substitution of the word "bigamy" for "polygamy" in the statute. In fact, he says, the crime of bigamy, but is prohibited by the constitution, and is entirely unenforced, and the bill is entirely unenforced, and the bill is entirely unenforced.

everything she plays is thoroughly committed. Her repertoire last night, was very choice. The other members of the company, Charles E. Clark, the baritone, Florence M. Pace, soprano, and Ralph Plummer, pianist, did excellently. The evening was a success, practically doubling the program.

MORAN'S CLAIM.

Contractor Now Formally Requests That Bonus on Contract be Paid.

A formal claim for the bonus of $9,150 asked by Contractor P. J. Moran, for completing the Big Cottonwood road, ahead of contract time was filed yesterday with the city recorder by Henderson, Pierce, Critchlow & Barrette, attorneys for Moran. The city recorder has already rejected Moran's claim so the one filed yesterday will be submitted to the council Monday night and rejected and then the way will be open for a suit against the city to recover the amount of the bonus and the court will have to determine whether or not Moran is entitled to any bonus.

NOT PROPERLY FILLED.

Contractor Failed to Cover Trenches So Final Estimate is Held Up.

The streets committee of the city council last night held up the final estimate of $2,307.07 due Contractor P. J. Ford on his sewer contracts of last year. It appears that the trenches dug by Ford were not properly filled and many complaints were received from citizens in regard to the matter. The street department finally filled the trenches at an expense of $1,538.25 and the committee is of the opinion that that amount should be deducted from the contractor's final estimate, hence the matter was laid over for one week pending an investigation.

AZTECS OF MEXICO.

First Public Lecture Under Auspices Of Utah Archaeological Society.

The first public lecture delivered under the auspices of the Utah Archaeological Institute, since it was organized a year ago among the University faculty and others interested in research in American antiquities, was given last night in the lecture hall of the University.

The lecture dealt with Mexico, and the generations which built cities there in the past. The speaker, Prof. E. L. Hewitt of the National Archaeological Institute, of which the Utah association is a branch, discussed the ruins of the ancient Aztecs.

Screens showing some of the wonderful ruins of ancient America were used to good effect. Buildings, idols, altars, bits of carved wood, and other objects were shown. The speaker explained that these people were very religious, that their architecture was more for display than for use, and that all their achievements in art and architecture were devoted to the glorification of the gods they worshiped. These people had many gods. There was the sun god, the rain god, the earthquake god and many others. From the evidences of their pieces of sculpture preserved these gods were held in the highest reverence.

The ancient temples of Mexico as they now lie in ruins, are equal in grandeur to the temples of Greece. The temples have been restored and a picture shown on the screen last night suggested that the temple of the Aztecs was a masterpiece of architecture. In a comparison of the Aztecs with the cliff dwellers of southern Utah, the speaker pointed out the difference between the two. The cliff dwellers have left many agricultural implements. From this the conclusion was drawn that they were a domestic people, and not essentially religious or artistic people.

Prof. Hewitt will return to Utah next spring for the purpose of exploring the ruins of the Aztecs with the backing of the Utah Society and Col. E. A. Wall, its president.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theater—By many people the coming of the Crane-Jeffreys Co. was rightly regarded as the distinctive event of a notable theatrical season. It was regrettable, therefore, that all the fates could not work in harmony to smooth the way for an ideal presentation; but the never ending evils of late arrival in the city, tardy delivery of scenery, trunks, etc., held the curtain down last night until past 9 o'clock. Mr. Crane, himself, appeared before the play began and made an apology; the big and brilliant audience, therefore, which began to assemble at 8 o'clock, was not in the ideal humor that it ought to have been.

Mr. Crane and Miss Jeffreys, as well as their managers, deserve the highest commendation for the artistic spirit and the liberality with which "Reveries in a Rattle" has been revived. It might be said, re-created. It is undeniable that in assuming roles like those of Squire Hardcastle and Kate, both artists make something of a sacrifice in coming down from the plane of the usually occupied by dramatic stars. In Goldsmith's comedy, they simply become parts of a beautiful ensemble, with the chance that something of their luster may be dimmed by the luminosity of such figures as "Tony Lumpkin." But if Mr. Crane and Miss Jeffreys had any feelings on this score, they were probably saved by their generous managers, and it is altogether likely that they are such conscientious players that they feel sufficient pride in heading a cast so nearly deserving the name of "All Stars" to overcome all other considerations.

Mr. Crane's rendition of the old alibi was the perfection of humor, ripe experience, and nature. The big and brilliant audience, therefore, which began to assemble at 8 o'clock, was not in the ideal humor that it ought to have been.

Let us hope that the career which has given us the "Two Grapes" Elevator in "Our Boarding House," the THEATRICAL TRUST.

New York Grand Jury Making an Investigation.

New York, Jan. 25.—David Belasco, Leslie Carter, H. W. Livingston of Klaw & Erlanger, H. R. Jacobs, manager of the Manhattan Theatre, and William F. Conner of the Lyceum Theatre, and L. C. Campbell, a brother of May Irwin, treasurer of the Bijou theatre, were the principal witnesses today in the investigation of the so-called theatrical trust by the grand jury. The assistant district attorney, Mr. Kessel, submitted to the grand jury a copy of a "trust agreement" entered into by prominent men in the theatrical field, to be operative from Aug. 1, 1906. A subpoena was served, however, in July, 1906, by Al Hayman, Charles Frohman, Nixon and Zimmerman and Klaw & Erlanger, and it is alleged that this, covering 500 theaters in the country, is in restraint of trade.

ADVICE TO READERS.

Newspaper Held Liable Where It Advised Wrongly in Financial Matter.

London, Jan. 25.—An interesting decision holding a newspaper responsible for wrongly advising a reader, who asked for financial advice, was given by Lord Chief Justice Alverstone today. The defendant was C. A. Pearson, editor of the "Daily Mail," who advised a reader to apply to the city editor for financial advice. The plaintiff accepted the advice, and was entrapped into a stock purchase, to whom the money was never repaid, and the Lord Chief Justice in his decision ordered Mr. Pearson to repay the full amount to the plaintiff.

WESTERN MARKET LETTER.

Special Correspondence.

Kansas City Stock Yards, Jan. 21, 1907.—The cattle run at all the markets is small today, supply here 10,000 head, and prices are 5 to 15 cents higher all around. Last week closed dull on all kinds, heavy supplies of fed cattle first of the week enabling killer buyers to fill up pretty full, and storms late in the week keeping country buyers at home. Today's run was below the expectations of packer buyers, which expected keen competition among them, while the bright sunshine and the satisfactory way fat cattle are now being marketed country demand today, and the loss of last week is being recovered. Offerings from the range are small now, confined to a few stockers at $3.75 to $4.50, and panhandle cows at $2.00 to $3.15. The feature in the offerings from the range country today is a shipment of 20 cars of Idaho hay fed cattle, bulk of which weighed 1,275 pounds and sold at $5.00, about three loads of light steers selling at $4.00 to $4.25. Corn fed steers sold up to $6.40 today, with numerous sales at $5.70 to $6.30, bulk of sales $4.90 to $5.75. The moderate supply of fed cattle at all the markets today indicates that future receipts of this class may not be as heavy as has been counted on, in which event better prices may be expected, as demand from killers is first class.

The supply of sheep and lambs was 38,000 head last week, and the market closed the week about steady on all kinds, as compared with close of previous week, ewes and wethers possibly a shade higher. The supply today is only 3,000 head, market strong to 10c higher. Some of the Standard Meat company's stuff sold to arrive today, the wethers at $5.75, and ewes at $5.25, considered a strong price as compared with eastern markets. The top lambs recently in $7.50, and best yearlings received lately sold at $6.50, although neither price represents the limit of the market. The light weight pea fed lambs are not killing out as good as it had been hoped they would, although averaging rather better than last year. Light weight lambs, below 70 lbs, bring $7.00 to $7.20, while those from 70 to 77 lbs, bring up to $7.50. The market on lambs 80 lbs or better has not been tested recently. From this time forward for about a month the market was weakest last winter, but this is likely to be reversed this season, account of the short number available for this market.
