

SPENCER CASE UP FOR HEARING

Testimony of Dr. Calderwood
Does Not Establish That Crime Was Committed

MOTHER TELLS SUSPICIONS.

Some Conflict in Two Stories Told by Hannah Iva Wallace, the Girl in the Case.

The case of Samuel G. Spencer, charged with a statutory offense, was up for hearing before Judge C. B. Diehl, in the criminal division of the city court today. During the forenoon session of court three witnesses for the prosecution were examined, namely Dr. W. R. Calderwood, Hannah Iva Wallace, the girl upon whom the attempt at assault is alleged to have been committed, and Ann Elizabeth Wallace, the girl's mother. At the conclusion of the latter's direct examination court took a recess until 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Asst. County Atty. Aaron Meyers had charge of the case for the state, assisted by Atty. H. A. Smith, the latter having been retained by the family of the girl. Atty. Adam A. Duncan is chief counsel for the defense, and Atty. E. A. Wedgwood appears as associate counsel, instead of Judge S. R. Thurman.

STUBBORNLY FOUGHT.
The case is being stubbornly fought on both sides. The first clash between opposing counsel came when Mr. Duncan asked that all witnesses, except the one on the stand, be excluded from the courtroom. The other side requested that Hannah Iva Wallace be permitted to remain, to be conferred with from time to time. The ruling of the court was that all witnesses should be excluded.

TESTIMONY OF DOCTOR.
Dr. Calderwood was the first witness called. He testified that on Aug. 26, 1907, he had, by request of her mother, made an examination of Hannah Iva Wallace. While conditions were not found to be normal, they were not such as to show conclusively that a crime had been committed. Upon cross-examination, the witness said that the same situation might have been brought about by other causes than the one alleged.

THE GIRL'S STORY.

Hannah Iva Wallace was then called to the stand. In answer to Attorney Smith's question, she said that she would be 15 years old on March 8 next, and that she lived with her widowed mother at Granger. She then told that from Jan. 7, to Aug. 26, 1907, she worked at the knitting works, of which Samuel G. Spencer, her mother's cousin, was the manager. For four months, beginning in April, she stayed at the Spencer home on Canyon Road, part of the time in a two-story house and part of the time in a one-story house next door, both belonging to Mr. Spencer. The crime with which the defendant is charged, she testified, was committed on the nights of Aug. 13 and 14, 1907, while she occupied the bed of Mr. Spencer and one of his daughters.

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

The girl's story was in part the same as told by her when the defendant had a hearing on a somewhat similar, but more serious charge, in September last. In cross-examination, Mr. Duncan endeavored to bring out that the story told by the girl today conflicted with her statements at the former hearing. At the examination in September she testified, she reminded her from the transcript, that she was entirely alone with the defendant in the room when the offense is alleged to have been committed; today she swore that one and another bed, two or three feet away, another daughter was sleeping. On the former occasion she stated, counsel reminded her, that next morning Mr. Spencer had spoken of his annoying her during the night. Today she said that the conversation next morning was of an entirely different character. Contradictions as to the alleged acts of defendant at the time the crime was alleged to have been committed, were also pointed out to witness.

MOTHER'S TESTIMONY.

Mrs. Ann Elizabeth Wallace, mother of Hannah Iva Wallace, then took the stand and narrated the incidents leading up to the employment of her daughter at the knitting works, and of the girl's staying at Mr. Spencer's home. Mrs. Wallace then stated that her suspicions were aroused on the morning of Aug. 26, last, upon laying aside clothes intended for the family wash. She came immediately to the city, accompanied by her brother, George Bertoch, had asked the girl whether she had been subjected to any wrongdoing and had received an affirmative reply.

The hearing of the case was resumed late this afternoon.

Sample of Fine Financiering

Shown in Auditor's Net Results

Here's one way the "American" administration put the city's money to good use: The finance committee of the council employ at a cost that will easily reach $20,000 a corps of special auditors to go over the city's account books and to suggest a better method of keeping the books; when through, it is found that all the way through their work the auditors have put the books into a condition where the treasurer's deputies and the auditor's deputies cannot comply with the ordinance in respect to determining the condition of the city's funds at the close of business for each day, printing down the suggestion of the auditor has to be done over for the reason that the stubs of receipt books and such items not provided with proper lines for entries. It was the purpose of the auditors to discover some system in the city's account books, but as far as the record shows up to the present time none has been discovered.

The auditors have been working for over a year and their agreement called for the completion of the work by Jan. 1. They may finish their work by Feb. 1—and then again, they may not. Complaints are being made almost hourly by deputies in the offices of the treasurer and auditor and errors of the high priced auditors are being corrected by the officers and their deputies.

The ordinance passed Dec. 23, makes it incumbent upon the treasurer and auditor to make daily balances at the close of business each day. This they have been unable to do and they are fearing that unless their excuses are made they are facing a fine every day they fail to do this.

The finance committee of the council, which employed the special auditors, has spent almost the entire year and with it a sum that they say will reach $20,000, to find out what it has yielded in the way of benefit for the city and its taxpayers is fairly well shown by the above.

No intimation was made as to how the jury stood. The jury had a good night's rest and resumed deliberations at 8:45 o'clock today.

New York, Jan. 3.—That Mrs. Van Ness Roberts, well known in New York society, is dying, as a result of an overdose of strychnine, self-administered, was reported to the office of Coroner Acitelli today. From the physicians and members of the household, he learned that Mrs. Roberts had been suffering from heart trouble for some time and had been taking minute doses of strychnine as a heart stimulant.

Last evening, one of her physicians was notified that she had collapsed and when he reached her apartments she was in a critical condition. One of the maids said Mrs. Roberts had taken several of the strychnine tablets. When the overdose was taken with intent to commit suicide, the doctors could not say. She placed a life belt around her and clung to a plank in the water for five hours before she was rescued. She had tried to take her into the life boats, but she refused, saying they were overcrowded and the addition of her weight would lessen the chances of those already in the boats. The sailors said she was the pluckiest girl they had ever seen. She was one of 11 passengers saved out of 97.

BUNGLING EXECUTION.

Neck Not Broken and Murderer Strangled to Death.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 3.—Clarence Sturgeon, 19 years old, was executed in the jail yard here today. His extreme youth was basis of many unavailable efforts to procure his pardon.

The execution was delayed and rendered extremely painful for those present by reason of the fact that the machinery to work the guillotine failed several minutes, while the condemned man stood rigidly awaiting the end. Sturgeon was so light that the drop did not reach his neck, and the machinery to work the guillotine failed for 17 minutes.

Sturgeon murdered Ira Bruner, James Blackley and Wilfred McMichael, one year ago. Sturgeon, who was only 19 years old, went to the scaffold with a calm truthfulness showing on his boyish countenance. Even the last interview with his father and mother and farewells to his seven brothers and two sisters, failed to affect him.

ORIGIN OF THE OPERA.

The way Stravinsky, author of "The Rite of Spring," traces the development of opera through centuries to a most original source, and leaves you with the impression that upon the matter of history, at any rate, he is master of his subject. Opera, it is shown, was the result of an attempt made by some Florentine amateurs to revive the lost art of Greek tragedy. They failed to get back to the conditions of Athenian drama, but in failing they gave birth to the modern opera. A new art form which soon worked itself into the affections of the people. The history of the opera is traced back to the year 1600, when a public performance was given in Florence of "Euryclea," a most original and original work of Maria de Medici and Henry IV of France. This work consists almost entirely of recitative, which was the invention of those Florentine reformers, and the voices were accompanied by a chorus of instruments. It is interesting to know that in this very primitive work the composer tried to follow as closely as possible in the manner of the ordinary intonations of the speaking voice. Monteverdi, who was a contemporary of Peri, but whose first opera was produced some seven years after "Euryclea," made a similar effort to reconcile music with speech, but was not so successful. He still later Wagner, tried to do so; and it is amusing, when one knows how far in other directions the art of art and opera as a convention have progressed since 1600, to think that old Peri was probably closer to the truth than the moderns. Hahn's of our day than all the great men who have come between.—The New Age of London.
