NEW BEET PLANTER INVENTED

Will Effect Great Saving to Sugar Industry—Serious Accident.

Special Correspondence.

Logan, Cache Co., July 17.—Andrew Alkele, Jr., a young man of this city, has patented a beet planter that is destined to revolutionize the beet planting of the country. The young man has been working on the device for about three years, and has it perfected and on exhibition on Main street where it is attracting considerable interest. The machine is a simple device and can be attached to any of the best drills now in use. It plants the seed in hills instead of sowing it in rows and can be regulated to plant the seeds any distance apart desired. Prof. F. A. Yoder, director of the Utah experiment station, and Joseph Quinney, Jr., manager of the Logan sugar factory, have inspected the planter and also a field of beets that was planted by the

WOODMEN SUE.

Abbot R. Heywood has commenced suit in the Second district court against the supreme lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, to recover $7,856.99 alleged to be due on eight policies held by him against the said order. The complaint alleges that the defendant prior to Dec. 6, 1886, organized the Grand Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, whose jurisdiction extended to and included all territory within what is now the states of Nevada, Utah, Montana, Wyoming and Idaho. That the said lodge issued insurance certificates to John J. Corby and seven others in the sum of $2,000 each, that the insured paid all assessments on the said policies up to the time of their death, and that at the death of each one, the person named as beneficiary in the policy duly prepared the proofs of death and filed same with the Grand Lodge. That in the said Grand Lodge of the jurisdiction of Utah, Idaho and Wyoming failed and a receiver was duly appointed and the sum of $19,740.31 was paid into the court and duly distributed by him among the beneficiaries. That after the money was distributed, there remained due to the eight defendants the sum of $7,856.99, the claims for which have been turned over to A. R. Heywood who now brings suit against the supreme lodge to recover the amount.

BIG DAMAGE SUIT.

Birdie E. Butler, a minor, by Mary N. Butler, her guardian ad litem, has filed suit against the Rio Grande Western Railway company and the Ogden Rapid Transit company, and Ogden city, to recover $10,100. The complaint sets forth that on May 29, 1907, the plaintiff, Birdie E. Butler, was riding a bicycle along Washington avenue between Twentieth and Twenty-fifth street; that the said street car and railroad company permitted its track to stand up above the street over three inches, and the girl in riding along on the bicycle did not notice the danger and her foot was caught on the rail, breaking the right leg and otherwise injuring her, all to her damage in the sum mentioned. The Utah Association of Credit Men has filed a suit in the Second district court against C. P. Utter et al. to recover $274.21. The complaint alleges that the Nelson-Judson Drug company of Salt Lake sold to the defendants in the Palace roominghouse, including therefrom a quantity of jewelry and other articles, was heard by the court, who held that the evidence was insufficient against Utter to hold him guilty and he was discharged, but the court held the decision against Plough in abeyance.

J. W. Cooper and Fred Rogers, charged with receiving stolen goods in the Montana roominghouse and securing therefrom a quantity of clothing and other articles, were given a hearing and bound over to answer to the charge to the district court. In default of $500 bonds each they were turned over to the custody of the sheriff to await trial in the higher court.

same and they speak very highly of the machine. The average amount of beet seed sown per acre in this state is about 13 pounds, and the acreage of 35,000 acres at 12c per pound of seed makes an expenditure of over $70,000 per annum in Utah alone. By the use of the "Alkele beet planter" it is claimed that an average of four pounds per acre is all that will be required, which will make a saving of about $50,000 to the farmers of this state alone, and this is not all of the saving, for an equal amount will be saved in the labor of the thinning, the greater part of which will be done away with. It is not decided whether the planter will be put out for sale or allowed to be put out by an eastern firm on a royalty. The patentee is in correspondence with a number of eastern firms at present.

MRS. SPENCE INJURED.

She went to the station with her son and family who were going away and got on the train to bid them good-bye. Before she left the car the train began to move and she jumped from the car. Mrs. Spence was thrown violently to the ground and her ankle and shoulder were broken and she received other injuries, the seriousness of which has not yet been determined. She was taken to the hospital for treatment.

PILGRIMAGE OF THE UTAH PIONEERS SIXTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

SATURDAY, JULY 17, 1847.

Orson Pratt's advance company traveled about five miles over a wrong mountainous road and encamped for the night on the left bank of East Canyon creek. Orson Pratt writes: "We had a severe frost last night. Early this morning I started out alone, and on foot, to examine the country back to see if there was not a more practicable route for the companies in the rear than the one we had come. I was soon satisfied that we had taken the best and only practicable route; met a large grey wolf about four rods from me. I returned to camp and counseled the company not to go any further until they had spent several hours' labor on the road over which we passed yesterday afternoon; and all who were able to work labored about two-thirds of the day upon the same. Leaving orders for the camp towards night to move on, mountains upon each side rise abruptly 600 to 3,000 feet above the bed of the stream. Leaving our horses at the foot, we ascended to the summit of one of which appeared to be about 2,000 feet high. We had a prospect limited in most directions by still higher peaks; the country exhibited a broken succession of hills piled on hills, and mountains on mountains, in every direction. We returned and met our camp about 4 1/2 miles from where they were encamped in the morning. They were encamped about two miles above the canyon on the left bank of East Canyon Creek. At this place there is a small rivulet which runs down from the mountains; the water is pure and cold."

In the main camp a forge was set up, and some of the wagons were subjected to the process of repairing. "The cat-William Clayton, and continue towing and braving all the morning. I suppose it is in consequence of the singular echo resounding in the mountains, they no doubt thinking they are answered by our animals in the distance. At 9:40 a. m. we resumed our journey, and after traveling a mile we arrived at the junction of Red Fork (Echo Creek) with the Weber river, after which we turned to the right, traveling in a northwesterly direction. We have traveled through this narrow ravine (Echo Canyon) for a distance of 23 miles. President Young, who is still very sick, could not endure traveling further. Accordingly an encampment was formed on the banks of the river, only 2 1/2 miles from the encampment of the previous night. In the afternoon Elders Heber C. Kimball, Willard Richards, Ezra T. Benson, George A. Smith, John Pack, Howard Egan, Thomas Bullock, Erastus Snow, Lorenzo D. Young and Albert Carrington went on to a neighboring mountain and prayed for the recovery of President Young and others who were sick in camp.

SUNDAY, JULY 18, 1847.

The morning was cold and the ground whitened with snow in the respective pioneer camps. President Young was very sick. Meetings were held in both camps. In the main camp the brethren were called together and addressed by Heber C. Kimball, who proposed to the brethren that instead of their scattering off—some hunting, others fishing and others climbing mountains—they should meet together to pray and exhort each other, asking the Lord to turn away and especially heal the president, and the company might proceed on their journey. It was decided that the brethren should assemble at the sound of the bugle at 10 o'clock a. m. in a little grove of shrubbery which had been prepared for the purpose opposite the wagons. During the meeting Elder Kimball proposed to the brethren that the whole camp, except President Young and eight or ten wagons with brethren enough to take care of him, proceed on the following day over the mountains, and after finding a suitable place begin to plant potatoes, etc., as there was but little time to spare. This proposition was accepted by unanimous vote. In the afternoon another meeting was held, and Elder Kimball proposed good things concerning the camp and reported that President Young was much better, which caused great rejoicing in camp. The sacrament was also administered and a good spirit prevailed. The weather was very hot.
