

BLUE SILK WAIST STARTS DIVORCE

When Mrs. Moeller Paid $2.50
For the Article Hubby Objected.

"HE HIT ME IN THE NOSE."

This Allegation and Others Made
When Case Comes to Trial in District Court Today.

"The Tale of a Waist" might appropriately be the title to the Moeller divorce case, being heard today before Judge Armstrong. It was the purchase of a blue silk waist, costing $2.50, which caused the trouble bringing about the action for divorce between Johanna Moeller and Nicholas Moeller, her cabinet-maker husband. Mrs. Moeller is a pleasant-faced German woman, simply garbed in black hat and somber hued coat and gown. She told the court that she purchased a blue silk waist for $2.50, and her spouse thereafter became so enraged that he hit her "right in the nose."

"He told me I would better stay home and read the Bible than buy a waist like that," Mrs. Moeller said to the court.

The action was brought by the woman and she charged her husband with cruelty. The waist incident was given as one of many in which he had struck her. After he struck her that time, she said, he locked her in the house, put the key in his pocket and went away. She took her child and jumped through the window and never went back to the house any more, according to her testimony this morning. Several neighbors corroborated her statement on the stand that they had seen Moeller raise his hand to his wife, and that he had been lowering it, but had never actually delivered the blow. They had also examined plaintiff's face after she claimed he had struck her in the nose. This scene occurred on Feb. 28, 1908, at 43 1/2 East Seventh South street.

Moeller took the stand in his own behalf and denied the statements of his wife. He could not speak English and his testimony was secured through an interpreter. He said his wife's affections had been alienated by a young man named Alfred Jensen, whom he said he had invited to the house because he came anyhow. Moeller averred that his wife and Jensen at different times sat on opposite sides of the table and would make signals with their feet when the husband approached. They were also familiar with their hands, according to Moeller's story, and he objected to Jensen's being at the house, but he came anyway when he was not at home.

The husband was still on the stand when the noon recess was called.

JENKINS GETS DECREE.

Hubert A. Jenkins was this morning awarded a decree of divorce in Judge Armstrong's court from his wife, Mabel Fennemore Jenkins. The couple were married on Nov. 22, 1907, and Jenkins complains that since Dec. 16, 1907, at a hotel in Bingham canyon, his wife left him and at present she is living with one Fred R. Bailey, alias Fred R. Walcott. Jenkins testified on the stand that on the date named, Dec. 16, while walking with his wife in the town of Bingham, Bailey, or Walcott, appeared on the scene and charged him with having appropriated her. Jenkins asserted that he had married the woman at Farmington on the 22nd day of November, but Walcott strenuously maintained she was his wife. The woman went away with Walcott, and has not returned to Jenkins.

UNFAITHFULNESS ALLEGED.

William J. Watson complains of Wife And Names Co-Respondent.

William J. Watson seeks to be released from his wife, Mary Corser Watson, complaining that his said wife has committed adultery with divers persons, specifically naming Samuel Ferris as one of her consorts. He therefore asks the court to annul the bonds of matrimony existing between himself and defendant, and award him the custody of their 6-year-old daughter.

ADMITTED TO PRACTICE.

Luther M. Walter of the supreme court of Kentucky was admitted to practice in this state this morning. Mr. Walter is to be special assistant to Attorney General Bonaparte and as such will assist local government prosecutors in trying the railroad-safety appliance acts which come up during the April term of court here.

BULL CASE RESERVED.

The case of N. A. Nelson of Sandy, against Charles Ringwood and his two sons, in which the latter are charged with wilfully killing a prize bull belonging to the former, was heard in Justice Lundberg's court yesterday afternoon. After the evidence was all in, the justice took the matter under advisement.

HEATH GOES TO COURT.

J. W. Mellen, owner of a skating rink in State street, below Ninth South, yesterday filed suit in the district court against Salt Lake City and Heath Brothers, for a decree declaring the plaintiff entitled to certain waters flowing from artesian wells situated in Liberty park. Some time ago Mellen filed application with the state engineer for 2 1/2 second feet of water from this stream, with which to flood his ten-acre lot for the purpose of making ice for his rink. Heath brothers and the city objected, and the application was rejected. Mellen now files the suit to have his rights in the matter determined.

BRUCE JURY STILL OUT.

(Special to the "News.")
Evanston, April 14.—The jury in the Bruce murder case has been out since 9:15 last night, and have not returned a verdict. It is rumored that 10 are for murder in the second degree and two for manslaughter. In all probability it will be a case of a hung jury.

PATIENT JUMPS FROM WINDOW

Miner Delirious With Pain Tries to End His Life.

While in a delirious state from pain and suffering, Harry Hoodless, a Park City miner, jumped from a window of the Holy Cross hospital early yesterday morning, and while not seriously hurt by the fall, received a severe shaking up. The man had been at the hospital two weeks, undergoing treatment for cuts and burns received in an explosion. He seemed to be recovering fast, until Sunday night it was noticed that he acted strangely. The nurses and attendants were alert, and when Hoodless jumped from his bed with a scream early Monday morning and made for the nearest window, attempts were made by several persons to stop him.

Reaching the window, Hoodless smashed the glass with his hands and endeavored to jump out. By that time several nurses and attendants had hold of him, but as the patient is a large and powerful man and might desperately, the united strength of the rescuers was not sufficient to pull him back into the room. When Hoodless did fall, however, it was only a short distance, as he had been lowered as far as the attendance could reach. The man's greatest injuries were the cuts upon his hands from the broken glass.

WOOD AT KNUTSFORD.

Fred Wood has resigned a responsible position with the Wilson Hotel, to accept the assistant management of the Knutsford Hotel, Manager Wesley Anderson has been leading the strenuous life, in being omnipresent all day, and sleeping with one eye open at night; so the accession comes as a decided relief. Mr. Wood's resignation is away on his vacation, and afterwards will alternate with Mr. Austin on the day watch.

WILL PLAY TRAIN.

Special Government Prosecutor Has Miniature Ry. for Jury's Benefit.

The first of the series of cases arising from alleged violations of the safety appliance law was commenced before Judge Marshall of the federal court this morning. This was the U. S. vs the Southern Pacific. The railroad is charged with holding livestock in transit longer than a period of time prescribed by law. It will put up a defense that the fireman on the train became sick, necessitating a delay of nearly three hours and that the train, while crossing the cut-off out of Ogden was caught by a bad storm, requiring additional delay. It will contend that the law provides for cases where unavoidable and unexpected troubles arise. The O. S. L. this morning admitted a charge and will pay no fine, and those for the railroad, Luther M. Walter, special assistant to the attorney general is here to assist in the prosecution of the case. One of the features of the hearings will be demonstrations of railroad operation according to law. Mr. Walter has a miniature railroad system which he carries about in a motor truck by this he will show the jury just what is meant by every bit of evidence, etc.

KARL SCHIED SERVED.

Karl Schied, manager of the board of Pacific underwriters and an officer of the Orpheum Amusement company, was one of the men subpoenaed to appear this afternoon before the grand jury as a witness. Howard Garrett, another witness and a business associate of Mr. Schied, has figured quite prominently in the Utah National bank affair.

TO PLANT TREES IN CAPITOL PLAT

Formal Observance of Arbor Day
Will Follow Time Honored Custom.

SCHOOLS WILL OBSERVE DAY.

University and Other Students Will be Out to Aid Promise of Beauty In Days to Come.

State officials, public schoolchildren, clerks from many stores, and the people in general will observe Arbor day tomorrow. It will be an occasion of general renovation of the city's back yards, front yards, shrubbery, and shade trees.

The formal celebration will be limited as usual to the Capitol hill excursion of the state's chief executive and his official family, each of whom will plant a tree to grace the avenues where the state's capitol building is some day to be placed. The "governor's trees" in the Capitol hill series date back to the days of the first Arbor day after statehood, and they grow along side of trees planted by many distinguished citizens.

The governor's party will assemble at Capitol hill tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, and will be composed of the following officials and former officials: Gov. John C. Cutler, C. S. Tingey, secretary of state, A. C. Nelson, state superintendent of schools, M. A. Breeden, attorney general, J. A. Edwards, state auditor, James Christensen, state treasurer, William M. McCarty, supreme judge, D. N. Straup, associate justice, J. E. Frick, associate justice, Ex-Gov. Heber M. Wells, ex-Secy. of State, J. T. Hammond, ex-Gov. Arthur L. Thomas, ex-Gov. George A. Black, President of the Senate, Philip H. Love, Speaker of the House, H. S. Joseph, Herman Harms, H. B. Cro-mar, John Peterson, Caleb Tanner, C. A. Glazier, John Sharp, Alfred S. Cutler, W. J. Lynch, T. C. Callister, J. C. Thomas, J. Edward Taylor, J. E. Austin, T. B. Beatty, J. G. McDonald, A. L. Larsen.

IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Preparatory to releasing the public school children of the city to work about their homes tomorrow, they are spending this afternoon in exercises at the buildings. Appropriately, the children are being instructed in the children instructed in planting shrubs so that they may make their work tomorrow effective. Reports will be made to the teachers from which totals will be figured showing the exact amount of planting done by the school children. Last year the reports showed that 12,660 trees were planted, and 4,900 yards cleaned up.

CIVIC LEAGUE ACTIVE.

W. Mont Ferry, president of the Civic league has made no efforts this year to have the leading stores close and the city garbage wagons haul away the refuse from back yards, gathered up by the owners. These concessions were secured by the league last year and it is taken for granted that they will be carried out this year.

GENEALOGICAL OFFICERS.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theater—The tag end of the season and the approach of Francis Wilson, or possibly the combination of both, hurt the attendance at the theater last night. Below stairs especially, a slim gathering saw the "District Leader." It is a conglomeration of the very best of the very best in acting, the very funny in spots, and the rather coarse in certain places. Especially tuneful and pretty was the light work of the soprano and the tenor, while the chorus sang better and worked harder than that in much more ambitious presentations. The little sourette was specially cute, but while her suggestions of propriety may go with eastern audiences, they only jar people in this part of the land; her semi-profanity allusions should by all means be cut out. The two tipsy men were well portrayed and the leaders in the cast were efficient, though hardly the same can be said of the young lady who did the part of the heroine.

The same bill goes again tonight.

The advance sale for Francis Wilson begins today, and Manager Pyper looks for the kind of a rush that only Frohman headlines know how to draw.

Orpheum—At the Orpheum, "It is to laugh" from the asbestos curtain to the kinodrome. The bill is so full of good things that every act would do for a heading. Not overvalued by the excellence of the vaudeville offerings is the orchestra. With two unusually attractive numbers, Willard Welbe was compelled to bow twice to his audience last night. The musical comedy of terpsichorean art, G. Herbert Mitchell has a bundle of good jokes to tell and even as hoarse as he was last night, he delighted his audience with his baritone numbers. Keane and Briscoe in their "Trial Marriage" farce have an attractive vehicle for the display of talent above the ordinary. For more delight and amusement, every minute of the act. The work of the elephant, the cats, the dog, the Teddy bear and the parrot is surpassing in its skillful. The kinodrome is not to be overlooked as the concluding part of the best show the Orpheum has had in weeks.

Grand—The Theodore Lorch company continues to please the patrons of the Grand, and a crowded house last evening witnessed the stirring melodrama "Kidnapped for Revenge." The play is certainly more satisfactory to all classes of theater-goers than any yet presented by the company, containing as it does the elements of sensationalism, pathos and romance, and not a few moments lacking in the humorous. The scenery is the most elaborate seen upon the Grand stage in a long time. Mr. Lorch assumes the leading role, and the prince and the princess are lacking in the manner in which he plays the part. Next in point of excellence come Miss Bainbridge, Miss Todd, Miss Aubrey, Mr. Rutledge and Mr. Lorch. Only one or two more weeks of the Lorch engagements still remain, the popular young actor then going to very much larger fields for a period of at least a year, playing for the most part in the big cities from Chicago to the Gulf of Mexico.

Lyric—The Zinn Travesty company did well to bring its successful engagement at the Lyric towards a close with "A Night in Morocco," for there is nothing like "leaving them laughing when you say good-bye," and that's what the Zinn company is going to do. "A Night in Morocco" is hilariously funny, and it is in every way "100 per cent pure." It is a hopeless tangle of color, movement, burlesque and mirth, and is a suitable offering for this time of the year. The girls dance on and off the stage as if life was nothing but fun; they sing with a vim that is refreshing, and when the man up in the gallery and the men back on the stage get their electrical machines to working, effects are obtained, which are nothing less than beautiful. There is a host of song hits but perhaps the number getting the most vociferous applause and the most encores was the song and dance of Baby Madine St. Clair, a bit of a midget who is accomplished comedienne. As this is the last week of musical comedy at the Lyric, indications point to a record week.

Dickens' Reading—Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" the subject chosen by Montville Flowers for his interesting recital at the First Congregational church next Friday evening, is one of the sweetest stories in the English language. In selecting this subject for his recital, Mr. Flowers has been most happy. Lovers of the best in literature in Salt Lake City are familiar with the works of Dickens, and have learned to pass hours of relaxation and peace in company with his writings. It is to such people, to all who like the best in literature and to those who are looking for an evening of keen enjoyment that the appearance of Mr. Flowers will appeal.

Hawaiian Club—The Hawaiian Troubadour Glee club will give a ball and concert in the Fifteenth ward amusement hall on Thursday evening, at 8 p. m., and another at Waterloo ward on Friday.

The Hawaiian boys are winning much favor for their beautiful singing and playing.

The club, for the most part, consists of real native singers and instrumentalists from the South Sea islands, and the people hearing them receive a treat that cannot be duplicated in any other entertainment this side of Honolulu.
