

CONSOLIDATION COMPROMISE PLAN

Hollingsworth Offers Amendment
To Park's Bill Affecting Two Big Schools.

FOR ONE BOARD OF CONTROL

But Identity of Agricultural College is Maintained and School Remains
At Its Present Site.

The pitched battle between the senatorial forces favoring consolidation of the University of Utah and the Agricultural College of Utah, has not yet taken place. On each preliminary muster the generals in command have refused to permit a test of strength, and after marshaling their facts for a fight have backed up to the trenches to postpone for another day.

Hollingsworth of Ogden seems to have gravitated to the position of interlocutor for the end men representing extremes of consolidation and anti-consolidation. Yesterday afternoon he fired one shot into the battle, and everyone else took to cover. It was in the nature of an amendment to S. B. 171, by Park, which reduces the consolidation feature to consolidation in the board of control, with an Agricultural college maintained at Logan as a branch of the University of Utah. The amendment after the amendment had been introduced, the tension in the senate became serious, as if there was fear of a final vote and neither side cared to test its strength.

"I now move that further consideration of this bill be postponed until Thursday at 10:30 o'clock," continued Hollingsworth. "Without the least opposition the motion carried, and the senate went light heartedly on with its work of clearing the calendar."

JOY FOR MILLER.

The first turn of the wheels brought joy to Senator Miller, and incidentally to one of the most welcome lobbies that has invested in the senate chamber this session. Instead of coming to plead for the special interests that have lately come to be popularly considered as inimical to the common people and their opportunities to keep alive through a lobby, this lobby came to plead for a bridge.

It was a lobby composed of hardened men of the desert, who see visions and tell stories of fruits and flowers that will one day grow in Washington county, also of coal-oil beds along the Rio Virgin, and of the new town of Hurricane springing up on the river. They don't talk in the figures of Salt Lake. There are now a hundred families there. They expect in five or six years to have possibly 500 or 1,000 people.

The talk with which they won the senators was that they could use $3,000 more people, and would soon be ready to assimilate them. "We have the soil," they said, "we have the climate. All we need is roads, and people to come in on them. Now then a road comes down country from Cedar. It passes through Kanara, Harmony, Toquerville, La Verkin, and then it stops in the rippling waters of the Virgin. To attempt to ford is dangerous, for the river runs swift between walls of lava, and one of the best men of the country went to his death last year in attempting to swim it on horseback."

ACROSS THE VIRGIN.

Across the Virgin there is Hurricane, a new town waiting for an opportunity to cross to the northward, and westward people coming in. Then the road splits one branch going down to Canaan ranch and Kanab, and another running over to St. George. To bridge the river is the next necessary move to prepare for a greater prosperity, and therefore the hardy people have been up to the legislature, and have had conferences with the governor.

Yesterday afternoon when their bill, introduced by Miller came up, it passed, without even a fight from Senator Lawrence, the universal foe of appropriations for promiscuous road and bridge building.

The committee visited Gov. Cutler and explained their case to him. It also spoke to members of the house, and has now gone south again feeling confident that their object has been attained.

"We have spent $125,000 on a new canal down that way," said David Hirsch, of the Washington county committee, and now we have $35,000 on a new road. Now we need the bridge, and the people down there can't afford to build it. The trees have been in bloom for three weeks. With the prospect of railroad facilities, we look for the country soon to be redeemed, for the canal gives us nearly 3,000 acres of the soil to put under cultivation. With a cut through a short distance, we can run the canal into an old lake bottom and afford irrigation facilities for several thousand acres."

The Washington county people left the chamber after the bill passed yesterday afternoon, and went back home this morning.

The other bills passed were as follows:

S. B. 138 (Miller)—Appropriation for roads and bridges in Washington county.

H. B. 118 (Marks)—Replies in pleading.

S. B. 11 (Hulanicki)—Observance of Memorial Day.

H. B. 149 (Holt)—Protection of ancient relics.

S. B. 160, 161, 162, 164, 165 and 166 (committee on judiciary)—laws relating to court procedure.

S. B. 147 (Gardner)—Water and irrigation rights and duties of state engineer.

Representative Critchlow is absent at his ranch in Twin Falls, Idaho, but will return in time to engineer the discussion on the Galveston bills tomorrow.

Representative Sutton "got in and drilled" at the blacksmith forge at the University yesterday. The forgerman had a red-hot piece of iron shaping it on the anvil when Mr. Sutton asked permission to wield the sledge, showing by the well placed, lusty blows that he had "been there" before.

One of the "eye-openers" for the legislature was the operation of the mills and workings of the mining school at the University yesterday. The treatment of ore was followed from the crusher to the cleaning of the concentrating plates, very much to the interest of those familiar with the process.

GRADUATION APPLICANTS.

List of University of Utah Students Who Are Eligible.

The list of applications for graduation at the university this year has been given out by Registrar George Coray. The names, which are appended, have been passed on by the faculty and will be ready for graduation when they complete the work prescribed in their respective courses. Mr. Coray said there were five more whose names are not on the list, but who will likely graduate. Two of them failed to set their names in to the faculty on time, and the others were not with their work at the time the list was prepared, but will likely catch up later. The classes are very large this year, especially that of the normal department. Following is the list of graduates:

GEORGE SHEETS, MARTYR.

Speakers at "American" Club Meeting Declare Him Victim of Conspiracy.

The "American" club held a meeting last night in the Atlas block, at which speakers were made by Ben Heywood, George M. Sullivan, George R. Hancock, J. E. Darnier, Ben Rives and J. M. Cohen. In the absence of the club's president, J. W. Houston, Mr. Hancock presided over the meeting. The chairman defended Chief of Police George Sheets and declared that that official is the victim of "a foul conspiracy."

George M. Sullivan and S. P. Armstrong also spoke for Sheets, Armstrong declaring that the chief's "character is sacred and his reputation without blemish."

Ben Heywood wanted it distinctly understood that the formation of the "American" party was not due to the "personal political antagonisms" of Ben Kearse, E. J. Cannon and himself, and then he excused himself for presuming to associate his own name with "such distinguished company" as the two first mentioned. A committee was named to confer with the "American" ladies or ex-senators for a card party and social, and the club will meet again on March 16.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

A quiet but exceedingly pretty wedding took place last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Young when their daughter Louise was married to Thomas Carrigan, the ceremony being performed at 8 o'clock by Father Curran in the presence of the family and intimate friends of the bride and groom. The rooms were bright with flowers, palms and ferns, the parlor in pink and white roses and palms and the diningroom in violets and white carnations with ferns, the table having a centerpiece of violets, white vases of white carnations and ferns were at each corner. The hall was in red carnations.

The bride wore a beautiful costume of white marquisette over tulle, with trimmings of Duchesse lace and her bridesmaid Miss Hal Cummings was gowned in pale blue batiste over silk. The brides bouquet was bridesroses and Miss Cummings' red carnations. Mr. Fred Houlet was best man and a number of intimate friends assisted in receiving. Mr. and Mrs. Carrigan have gone to Goldfield to reside.

Baseball in Brazil.

Lloyd Griscom, the new ambassador to Italy, described at a dinner in Washington a diplomatic game of baseball in Brazil.

"An Englishman," he said, in the course of this description "caught for his side, though the poor fellow was strange to the catcher's box. The Englishman grew confused in the second inning, missed a ball, and it struck him on the nose, knocking him over."

"What was it?" he said feebly, as he came up.

"A foul—only a foul," said the umpire. "Man alive," said the Englishman, "I thought it was a mule."

Comforting the Condemned.

KEITH O'BRIEN

Getting Ready for Easter

Special Showing of Superb Headwear Medium Priced

Hustle and stir in Keith-O'Brien's Millinery section this month.

Because of early Easter.

With the return of Miss Kane and our first trimmer from New York, come large shipments of beautiful millinery.

Then there is great activity in the large workroom.

The unpacking reveals creations of the most exquisite conception.

But the finer headwear will care for itself.

Particularly to the medium-priced effects is attention directed—the prettiest the store has ever carried at $5.00, $7.00, $8.50 and $10.00.

When shown an $8.50 snappy, stylish invention yesterday, one lady exclaimed—"It's as stunning as your $12.50 styles last year."

"I never saw so much style before in a hat at that price," another enthusiast exclaimed.
