SISTER A COUNTESS.

Four or five years ago the Thaw family came into unusual prominence through the announcement of the en-gagement of Harry Thaw's sister to the Earl of Yarmouth. This young English nobleman had been in America for two years or more at that time. He was entertained at Newport and at He was entertained at Newport and at the end of a successful season thero, during which he had lead the gay set in many amateur theatrical produc-tions, he decided to go upon the pro-ressional stage to earn a livelihood in this country. always in company with a beautiful young girl. Evelyn Nesbit, who had graduated from the studio to the stage. Young Thaw and Miss Nesbit were central figures of many theater and supper parties along Broadway, and there appeared in one of the local pa-pers a story to the effect that Thaw and Miss Nesbit had been secretly married while abroad. The fact of the wedding had not been disclosed, it was declared, because of the fear that a displeased mother might cut off the was declared, because of the fear that a displeased mother might cut off the support of her favorite son. The story of the wedding was taken up every-whore and the young people were kept busy with denials. Their affairs attracted so much attention that they were requested to move from the fash-ionable hotel where they respectively ionable hotel where they respectively had been occupying expensive suites This called forth more notoriety. The This called forth more notoriety. The alfairs of the young people were kept constantly before the public until it was finally announced that Mrs. Wil-liam Thaw had consented to her son's marriage to Miss Nesbit. Thereupon they were called to Pittsburg and in the mother's home a marriage cere-mony was performed. For a long time following the wed-

For a long time following the wed-ding the Thaws' affairs were prac-tically lost sight of. They spent most of their time in New York, were often seen together at the theaters and the cafes and apparently their lives ran

It was late in the evening of June 25 last that the city and soon the en-25 last that the city and soon the en-tire country was ringing with the trag-ic news that Harry Thaw had slain Stanford White. The setting for the fatal attack had been the Madison Equare Roof garden, where the first night performance of a summer music-al show, known as "Mile. Champagne" was being given. The place was gay in flowers and multi-colored electric lights and was thronged with a fash-tonably dressed audience. On the stage a man was singing "I Could Love a Thousand Girls," when suddenly above the music the pistol shots rang out. Thousand Giris," when suddenly above the music the pistol shots rang out. The music ceased, the chorus giris and actors upon the stage were terror-stricken, men and women in the au-dience dropped their glasses upon the tables before them. In the stillness a man was heard to say: "You ruined my wife, d— you, and now I've got you." Stanford White lay dead at the ta-ble where he had been sitting; Harry Thaw, in evening dress, stood with a smoking pistol in his hand. His wife who had seen him fire the fatal shot, was led screaming away from the spot and Thaw was arrested. He made no attempt to escape. STUDIO PARTIES

STUDIO PARTIES.

White was vice president of the Madison Square Garden company and Madison Square Garden company and was the architect of that famous structure in whose tower he had al-ways maintained a studio. It was in this tower that Thaw has charged time and time again since his ar-rest that White entertained young wo-men at the gayest of parties. Thaw men at the gayest of parties. marriage to Thaw, but this has been admitted by neither side and so far as they could do so, counsel for both sides have closed the mouths of the most important witnesses.

THAW'S JUSTIFICATION.

Thaw has sought his justification in the words he uttered to his victim on the hight of the tragedy. He has claimed that under the "unwritten law" no fury would convict him of hav-ing taken the life of "the man who had traduced his wife in her innocent girl-hood." To these accusations by Thaw traduced his wife in her innocent sirl-hood." To these accusations by Thaw the friends of Stanford White, many of them influential men of the com-munity, have declared that the archi-teet's interest in the girl was purely of a fatherly character. They said he had assisted many young women to make a place for themselves in the world and that he was no more deeply inter-ested in Miss Nesbit than he had been in a number of others about whom no breath of scandal has been uttered.

In a number of scandal has been uttered. It has been constantly stated that the Thaw case would never come to trial and that the mysteries of its many intricate phases would never be exposed to the light of the public's gaze, this conjecture being based on the report that a pica of insanity might be en-tered and accepted.

NO INSANITY FOR THAW.

This probability, however, it is nov This probability, however, it is now said, is past. Harry Thaw has himself stood in the way of any such plan. It is asserted that in his refusal to give assent to the insanily plea he has been steadfastly supported by his wire, who, it is also generally reported, has con-stantly urged her hughand to take some action against White. stantly urged her husband to take some action against White. Mrs. Thaw has been a daily visitor to the Tombs pris-on and Mrs. William Thaw, who was recalled from Europe when the tragedy occurred, has also been a frequent caller. There have been many family conferences and many stormy inter-views in the young man's cell, his re-sontment being shown every time the suggestion of insanity has been offered. "I prefer death in the electric chalt "I prefer death in the electric chait to a life in an insane asylum," the pris-oner is credited with exclaiming.

THAW'S COUNSEL.

Lewis Delafield of counsel to the Thaw family, was first called into the case. He engaged Judge W. M. K. Olcott of the firm of which former Gov. Frank S. Black is a member. They had hardly been in the case a month when young Thaw, after an interview in the Tombs, dismissed them. He called to his aid Clifford W. Hartridge, a lawyer Tomos, dismissed them. He called to his aid Clifford W, Hartridge, a lawyer who had been his friend for years, Now that the trial is approaching he has called into the case Delphin Michael Delmas, one of the most noted criminal lawyers of the west, who has come on from San Francisco to New York to take direction of the trial. Mr. Delmas has been quoted as admitting that the "unwritten law" may be the defense finally decided upon. Dist. Atty. Jerome will have personal charge of the prosecution. He declared he will introduce only such witnesses as are necessary to prove that Thaw had made threats against White and the eye witnesses of the shooting. It will be for the defense, he declares, to introduce any evident bearing upon the past lives of the principals. If this is gone into, however, the district at-is gone into, however, the district at-torney will offer evidence in rebuttal. While the presentation of the prosecu-tion's case will require only two or three days, it is expected there will be great difficulty in obtaining a jury and that the trial may continue over a period of four or five weeks.
