UTAH AND HER PEOPLE.

A physician, Dr. Kjerry, now a resident of Salt Lake City, has written a series of correspondences to one of the leading papers published in Copenhagen, Denmark, in which he endeavors to place Utah, its people and conditions in the true light, as from personal observations they appear to him. The writer is the possessor of a highly finished education and commands a facile pen. Of a number of the Danish paper referred to, Politiken, we give the following paragraphs in translation:

How very little we, beyond the ocean, know about the man (Brigham Young) and how wrongfully has his work all this time been judged—this man, who transformed the desert of Utah into a garden and who with his all-conquering genius kept the people from looking for the flesh pots of California and held them in the desert, where in the sweat of their brow they drew their food from the barren soil! With his eagle eye he saw that the more toil a man spends on the soil, the more strongly he becomes attached to it, and the better would the community be protected against the nomadic tendencies that characterize most immigrants.

Concerning the Mormons the Correspondent remarks:

It is impossible to take an impartial view of them without—if justice is to be done—lowering the flag for this denomination that wears away almost more religious shades by their magnanimous liberality as regards other religionists.

The correspondent closes by a suggestion that prominent leaders of the religious movement in Denmark take a lesson in the application of the principle of religious liberty of the Saints in Utah, in order that certain conditions in that little European kingdom may become more tolerable.

THE CUBAN INSURGENTS.

There now appear strong possibilities of an early recognition by this country of belligerent rights of the Cuban insurgents. Notwithstanding the fact that there is a marked objection in some quarters to such recognition, there is a still stronger sentiment in this country which demands it, and to which the President is likely to hearken. It makes little difference that the Cuban leaders are not the typical patriots that we look upon the founders of this Republic as being; the common feeling is that they are struggling to throw off a foreign yoke, and that is sufficient to enlist sympathy for them in this country.

One point of objection to recognizing the belligerent rights of Cubans is that the principal leaders of the movement are either citizens of the United States or of other countries than Cuba; and that for the President to recognize the belligerency of a party of our own citizens engaged in an attempt to destroy the government of a colony of Spain would be just about as bad as to declare war against Spain itself. To this the reply is made that as Americans are not inhibited from settling elsewhere, if they become so numerous that they can work out a successful revolution in Cuba, their American birth or citizenship should not be a bar to that recognition which would be given persons who never saw American soil; and while the President might not feel justified in recognizing the Cuban representative, T. E. Palma, while he enjoys the protection of this country both by residence and citizenship, the rule in his case is not applicable to those who are doing the actual fighting in Cuba.

It is a fact that most of the Cuban leaders are not citizens of Spain, or of Cuba under Spanish rule; at the same time, they are nearly all of Spanish or Cuban extraction, or of long residence on the island, and their American citizenship was acquired at a time of their enforced exile from the country they are endeavoring to free from Spanish domination. On this point the following statement of the citizenship of the Cuban leaders is of interest:

Salvador Cisneros Betancourt, who was formerly known as the marquis of Santa Lucia, has dropped his title when he became president of the Cuban republic, has been a naturalized citizen of the United States since 1870, and has never renounced his allegiance.

Rafael Portuondo, the minister of foreign affairs, who is seeking the recognition of the President for the provisional republic, was naturalized in New York about the same time and his family have collected $60,000 indemnity from Spain through our government for injuries inflicted upon them as citizens of the United States by the Spanish authorities.

Carlos Roloff, the secretary of war, was a subject of the czar of Russia, and a native of Poland. He is a soldier of the most pronounced type. He resided in the United States for a number of years, and became a citizen. It is said he had to leave Russia because of complicity in nihilist conspiracies.

Maximo Gomez, the general-in-chief of the revolutionary army, is a citizen of Santo Domingo and is employed upon a salary by the Cuban patriots to command their armies.

Jose Maceo, the second in command, is a negro exile from Porto Rico, and being expelled from that country some years ago, took refuge in Cuba, where he has been a sort of black terror—a bandit king. It was he who plotted the capture of John Sherman, while that gentleman was making a tour through Cuba some years ago. It was intended to seize him, carry him off into the mountains and hold him for ransom, with the expectation that the government of the United States would pay a large sum of money for his release.

Thomas Estrada Palma, the envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary from the Cuban republic to this government, is also a citizen of the United States, and has resided in this country continuously for nearly twenty years.

Mr. Quesada, Palma's secretary, and the active leader of the Cuban propaganda in the United States, has been a citizen for nine years.

But after all, these men are more strictly Cubans than they are Americans, both by association and sympathy. The recognition of their rights as belligerents would be a parallel with that of Texas in 1836, as far as mere recognition goes, for many of the leaders there were or had been citizens of the United States; and it is not unlikely that the success of the Cuban revolutionists means that the island soon would be largely peopled by citizens of this country and in time would become a part of this nation.

SHOULD RECOGNIZE TRUTH.

There is published in Pennsylvania a paper called the Christian Statesman, whose editor-in-chief is Rev. David McAllister, D. D., LL. D.; the publication has for its motto "Christ and Country." But notwithstanding the series of initials to indicate the editor's erudition, and the idea expressed in the motto, the columns of the paper indicate that its writers have not yet learned to recognize the facts of ancient American history as they are being constantly demonstrated by archaeological research, or the great truth that Christ manifested any particular interest in the inhabitants of this half of the world at the period of His appearance in the meridian of time; nor does its assumption of patriotism approach that recognized in the Book of Mormon by a European writer who remarked concerning it, that "it has one distinctively American feature in claiming for Christ a better reception on that continent than was accorded Him on the Eastern hemisphere; for when He visited America, He was received and worshipped as the risen Lord instead of being sentenced to hang upon the cross."

In its issue for January 11th the Christian Statesman makes some comments upon the admission of Utah as a State, and refers to the publication in the DESERET NEWS of a discourse, delivered by a Mormon Elder in this city, in which "the claim is made that the Book of Mormon is the Bible of the American continent." Then our Pennsylvania contemporary proceeds:

The preposterous claim rests on this myth which it seems strange that any set of men and women can be induced to credit: "When our Savior had performed His mission in the land of Judea, He came over to this land of America. He told the people of Jerusalem that He had other sheep that were not of that fold, and that He must visit them also, that they might hear His voice and He would bring them and they should become one people. So He came here and held several notable conferences with the people. He taught them the same Gospel that He had taught in the land of Jerusalem. He appointed twelve disciples here, and gave them instructions, endowed them with the Priesthood, etc. In the course of time, when the people became wicked again, after having had a long period of the greatest happiness of any people on earth, a celebrated Prophet, by the name of Mormon, a righteous man, distinguished among his people for his virtues, his intelligence and his power of Priesthood, received instructions from the Lord to write the history of his people in an abridged form, before destruction should come upon them. He did so, and wrote it upon plates of pure gold, and in the language called the reformed Egyptian—a language which the people knew very well, and he being a Prophet and having the Urim and Thummim, hid it up with those plates, so that in due time those plates should come forth and the means to interpret the record on them." The discourse is full of the same kind of credulous trash which goes to make up the system of Mormonism.

Just why a Christian should denounce as a myth the fulfillment of a prediction of the Lord that He would visit "other sheep;" that He taught them the same Gospel He declared was essential to the salvation of those in Judea; that He called disciples to follow Him; that he instructed a record to be kept of His teachings; or that when the people became wicked destruction came upon them, does not appear clear—certainly it is not consistent. And as to the "credulous trash which goes to make up Mormonism," it is in believing that Christ did exactly what He said He would do, and also that the principles and ordinances He taught as necessary in the first century of the Christian era are equally essential for the salvation of those who live in the nineteenth century. Mormonism does not conjure up such myths as the supposed wrecking of some Christian preacher of early centuries to account for the evidences of a former knowledge of Christianity on this continent. It takes the consistent, plausible record, authenticated by the Divine witness not less fully than is the New Testament account of Christ's ministry; it is "on speaking terms" with the Lord, insisting that He still possesses the power which revealed Him to Paul and gave to the beloved John the Revelation on the isle of Patmos. Our professed Christian friend might be greatly benefited through a sincere and thorough investigation that would open his mind to Christian revelation and a recognition of the great truths which the Lord is revealing in this dispensation of His providence. Bitterness, bigotry and abuse are not Christian.

UTAH will send a Mormon and a Gentile to the United States Senate. The Mormons are in the majority in the new State on a popular vote and will largely dominate the laws which the new Legislature will enact. It is pretty well understood that plural marriages are out of the question, as the State Constitution forbids polygamy. Cannon, who will be the Mormon Senator, is discovered to be a Republican. It was presumed until quite recently that he was on the other side.—Wilkesbarre, Pa., Union-Leader.

Senator Frank J. Cannon, who was the Republican nominee for delegate to Congress in every Territorial campaign by that party in Utah, ought to appreciate that last sentence. But, then, the Union-Leader is a Democratic paper.

THE FLYING squadron will make Gibraltar its first stopping place after leaving British shores—at least that is the latest indication. It may then make a cruise to all the chief British naval stations in the world, including the Esquimault, B. C. That would be far nearer American soil than the Bermudas, yet would occasion no uneasiness whatever.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND tons of starch have been made from potatoes this season in Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota. This enormous output necessitated the use of nearly three and one half million bushels of potatoes. And yet Utah "spuds" have no starch factory to utilize them.

UTAH LETTUCE, raised at Bountiful, is now in the Salt Lake market, and is as cheap and pronounced to be of better flavor than that shipped from the coast. This growing of winter vegetables offers a profitable field which the Utah gardener is just figuring upon entering.

SOME OF the Utah militia boys were anxious to know, yesterday, whether there was any war-call for them. If they can't see trouble before England and the United States get to fighting except with their vocal organs, they may enjoy a long period of tranquility.

THOSE WHO have worked themselves up to a state of excessive anger in the Utah senatorial contest may now rest a while from hostile demonstrations and contemplate the great truth that "peace hath its victories more renowned than war."

THE RECENT developments toward railway connection between this city and San Diego, Cal., ought to cause a re-awakening of interest in this locality in such form as to effect important results.

THE GREAT length of several of the bills introduced into the State Legislature suggests the need of some good knives for a long boiling-down process.

ISN'T IT about time for some of our home industry advocates to make a fresh attempt at starting new local manufacturing industries?

THE SPANISH troops in Cuba have defeated the insurgent forces again—that is the Spaniards didn't allow the rebels to kill them all.

An Old Soldier's Recommendation.

In the late war I was a soldier in the First Maryland Volunteers, Company G. During my term of service I contracted chronic diarrhoea. Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief it would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results followed. I take pleasure in recommending this preparation to all of my old comrades, who, while giving their services to their country, contracted this dreadful disease as I did, from eating unwholesome and uncooked food. Yours truly, A. E. BENDING, Halsey, Oregon. For sale by druggists.

Some time ago Mr. Simon Goldbaum of San Luis Rey, Cal., was troubled with a lame back and rheumatism. He used Chamberlain's Pain Balm and a prompt cure was effected. He says he has since advised many of his friends to try it and all who have done so have spoken highly of it. It is for sale by druggists.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures of bad colds. It opens the secretions, relieves the lungs and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. If freely used as soon as the cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it greatly lessens the severity of the attack and has often cured in a single day what would have been a severe cold. For sale by druggists.
