EVENING NEWS.

Tuesday, January 6, 1880.

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Fraternat.—John C. Graham, Esq., the genial editor of the Territorial Enquirer, paid our sanctum a visit this afternoon.

Slushy.—An ugly but expressive word, which fully describes the condition of the streets and walks, from which the snow has not yet melted.

Deseret University.—The second semester of the academic year at the Deseret University opens on Monday next, the 12th inst. Those who propose attending the school should commence at that time as new studies are taken up.

Not this Morning.—It has been erroneously stated that the box office would open this morning, for the sale of tickets to the Wilhelmj concert. We are authorized by the management, to state that no tickets will be disposed of before Thursday morning.

For the East.—Mr. James Dunn the successful and efficient superintendent of the Provo Woolen Factory, is in town, and will leave in the morning for the East, on a tour of inspection, in the interest of the institution he so ably represents. Pleasant and profitable trip.

The "Whyfore."—The DESERT NEWS has come to hand only once on the day of issue for nine days. That press needs repairing.—Junction.

Ab! This accounts for your taking our items and crediting them to contemporaries. Think you not some repairs are needed at home?

Lecture.—Charles W. Stayner, Esq., will deliver his lecture on "The Pyramids of Power," in the Third Ward School-house, on Wednesday evening, January 7th, under the auspices of the Mutual Improvement Association of that Ward. Lecture commences at 7 o'clock. The public are invited.

Nothing Doing.—Nothing in the Police Court to-day. The case of W. R. Starnes, vs. John H. Hougou, is, in regard to a misappropriation of funds, did not come up yesterday afternoon, as expected.

Neither of the parties put in an appearance, and it is supposed the affair has been amicably settled outside.

Seventies' Notice.—A general meeting of the Seventies will be held in the Council House, to-morrow evening, Wednesday, the 7th inst., at half-past 6 o'clock.

Addresses will be delivered by six Elders selected for the occasion. JOSEPH YOUNG, Sen., JOHN VAN COTT.

ROBERT CAMPBELL, Clerk. Salt Lake City, Jan. 6th, 1880.

The Second of the Series.—The second of the Careless Orchestral Concerts, will be given in three weeks from last night, on Monday evening, the 26th inst. We look for a greater demonstration than ever, on that occasion, as it is now known what the orchestra can do, and everybody will be anxious to hear them. There will be an entire change of programme.

The Scandinavian Paper.—Skandisavens Tidende, published in Copenhagen, Denmark, semi-monthly, will in the future be sent to the Utah subscribers for $1 per annum, prepaid. It is expected that this considerable reduction in its price will greatly increase its circulation among the Scandinavian Saints in the valley, who are interested in the progress of the good work in their native countries, and our leading men in various parts of the Territory will please use their influence in this direction. All orders and means should be forwarded to Mr. N. Wilhelmj, Lorentzen-gade, 14 1ste Sal, Copenhagen, Denmark.

A Musical Evening.—One of the most delightful entertainments ever witnessed in this city, was given last evening, in the Theatre, to an intelligent audience.

The first of the Careless Orchestral concerts, was a grand success. Not only was the audience large and appreciative, but the performance was, in every way, worthy of the praise and patronage bestowed upon it. During the evening, the orchestra, composed of 16 performers, played six selections, the most popular of which was the "Turkish Review," which was repeated in order to satisfy the furore it had excited.

For this piece, the band was enlarged to 19. The solos were all artistic and beautiful. Mr. Croxall added new laurels to his already enviable reputation, as a cornet player of superior skill and taste, and received an encore on his first selection; Mr. Welhe won golden opinions by his masterly execution of the difficult piece he had chosen, and was likewise called out the second time; Miss Belle Anderson played a difficult selection from "Lola" in a very pleasing and effective manner, and surprised and delighted everybody with her skillful manipulation of the keyboard, as well as by the sweet and powerful tones she produced from the instrument.

She was deservedly encored also. This young lady, with practice, will attain eminence as a pianist. Mrs. Jos. Seigel sang "It was a Dream," in a most charming manner, and being called out, rendered a verse of "Sing Sweet Bird." We have never heard this lady do so well before. The quintette from the "Bohemian Girl," and the duet "May Bells and Flowers," the former by Messrs. Foster, Whitney, Chandler, and Misses Clawson and Horne, and the latter piece by the two ladies just mentioned, were rendered in a very pleasing style and well received. A slight difference was manifest, no so much in the manner as in the singing of the younger vocalists, but it was quite natural under the circumstances, and will readily disappear with practice and experience.

The closing of the programme, and one of the most enjoyable features of the entertainment was the grand variety selection by the Croxall Brass Band. This band is now the finest of its kind in the Territory.

The stage was enlarged so as to cover the orchestra enclosure, and was occupied by the musicians. The curtain rested upon a flat, close against the proscenium arch, thus shutting out the stage entirely and throwing the sound with greater force into the auditorium, which ingenious arrangement, due to the sagacity of Professor Careless, greatly enhanced the excellence of the performance.

The Careless Orchestra have reason to be proud of their initial effort, and we shall anticipate with pleasure, the second concert of their season's series.

"Junction" Jots.—Ogden is to have a "Marble Heart." Quite a dramatic venture, boys.

The C. P. pay car is expected at the Junction city on Wednesday.

Colonel Woolcott, engineer of the Utah and Northern Railroad, arrived from the west on Saturday morning, and went north on Sunday night, to meet his party, which is expected at Blackfoot about the 10th inst. The Colonel has completed his survey as far as John Day's river, Oregon, to connect with the Oregon and Dalles road to the Pacific coast.

A row occurred at a ball in Marsh Basin, Idaho, on New Year's Eve. A notorious character known as Mexican Joe, purchased a ticket for a dance which was being held there, and after entering the room his presence was objected to by Mr. Parkinson, whereupon the committee refunded "Mexican Joe" his money, and he left, insulted. After going out he met another Mexican named Antonio, and they both laid in wait till the dance broke up. The first person to leave the room was a young man named Harris, upon whom they opened fire, shooting him probably fatally. A general fusillade then commenced in which Antonio, one of the Mexicans, received a slight wound. Sheriff Harrington, who was on duty, appeared on the scene and took the Mexicans into custody. They were brought before the Marsh Basin magistrate and bound over to the next court. Harris, the young man who was shot, was a herder for Taylor & Co., and it is feared that he cannot recover.

Correspondence.

SALT LAKE CITY, January 5, 1880. Editors Deseret News: Dear Sirs.—While the Educational Board is considering the propriety of changing the laws in relation to school matters, would it not be well to read up the movements of the Local School Board, and others, in relation to the introduction of phonotypy in the primary schools, which shows that students educated on phonotypic principles are greatly ahead of those taught on the old style. It seems that on an average only one youth was turned out yearly able to read an article in a common newspaper intelligently, to teach teacher employed in the National Schools.

But the reader may ask: What system of phonotypes would you suggest, when there are so many in existence? Well, I would say that all the strictly phonetic alphabets are impracticable at the present day, as the common mind is not prepared to receive them; nor is the common semi-phonotypy hardly any better; they all mutilate the language without any positive advantage; if there is a change made at all, it should be of a permanent nature as it is possible to make.

But one little matter as a first step could probably be made without disgracing the educated eye; that is, to have the Legislature pass some act to have the names of certain letters of the alphabet changed; as, instead of saying "trip" say "ye"; instead of "double-you" change to "we"; "go to ga," etc.

The English orthography has certain laws or rules governing it, which to abandon would be to change to a considerable degree the face of a great many English words. One of these rules is so plain and so general that it can hardly be changed, that is—When a vowel has its long sound it is attended by an assistant vowel, as in care, late, boy, etc. There are so few exceptions to this rule in each of the vowels that the exceptional words could be much easier changed to a uniform mode of spelling than to entirely change the representation of the long-vowel signs by giving them a single-letter representation.

While engaged in the school business I compiled a little work in which all the words of the English language of one or two syllables were classified and the exceptional words given below. From this little work can give facts and figures, which do not hold out the extravagant and ridiculous statements given by the philologists societies of the United States and England, which are enough to frighten a nervous man, and make him believe that the language is so hopelessly bad that nothing but an entire change in the English orthography would have any good effect.

We have, as every one knows, in the vowel characters, two distinct powers called the conventional long and short sounds. Besides these, of course, there are other modes of representing these sounds, but they are very few compared to the mass of the English words. And at the same time we have two written signs for most of the vowels, as Roman and Italic (a and a); Roman and script e (e and e); and by making a slight change in the form of the others, two pairs of vowels might be arranged to represent the conventional long and short vowels, but without any regard to the making or phoning operation, over which phonologists seem to have gone mad.

And to put these into practice, let the old system of representing the long vowels be adhered to, but with a slight change in the vowel where it has the long power, and the sign for the short vowel when it has the power of a short vowel.

By this means the mass of the non-phonetic words in the language is unaltered, for, as using a small character instead of the capital I, etc., as is used in Pitman's system, is not approved, disturbing the general characteristics of our language.

Yours, etc. W. M. C.

Gold Weather—Twins—Death.

Mr. J. G. Young, a correspondent at Beaver Cañon, Idaho, the terminus of the U. & N. R. R., informs us that on the 24th of December, the snow, at that place, was two feet deep, and at 7 o'clock in the morning, the thermometer registered 40 degrees below zero.

About two weeks previous to date of writing, (the 31st ult.), a lady named Sacketts gave birth to twins, a fine son and daughter, each weighing 7½ pounds. One of them had two teeth. They were born in a box-car.

Mr. and Mrs. Hulanekie lost their youngest child, aged six months, on the morning of December 31st.
