USEFUL RECEIPTS.

OIL VARNISHES.—No. 1.—Every person should know how to make these preparations for rendering objects waterproof. Linseed oil is the best to use for this purpose; but as it dries with some difficulty, and is liable to become sticky, it requires to be treated in such a manner as to partially oxidize it, after which it dries quickly, and forms a most excellent varnish. Take a gallon of pure linseed oil, and boil it over a gentle fire for about one hour, adding gradually four ounces of sugar of lead, or litharge, or the oxyd of manganese, or the sulphate of zinc—any one of these will answer—but they must be added cautiously, and the oil stirred well while the oxyd is being fed in. The clear of this is the varnish, the sediment should be mixed with paint. Silk or cotton cloth receiving several coats of this varnish becomes completely waterproof.

No. 2.—Take a gallon of pure linseed oil, and add to it two ounces of sulphuric acid; stir well, put it over a gentle fire in a proper vessel, and boil it for one hour. When cool it is fit for use. The sulphuric acid renders the oil quick drying, and removes its tacky character. This is a good recipe for painters, and manufactures of oil-cloth.

No. 3.—Take one gallon of linseed oil, and add to it about one pound of the flowers of sulphur, and boil for hour. This is, perhaps, the best oil, or any other kind of varnish of waterproof coating, for outside work, such as porous stones or bricks which imbibe moisture. It will also render statues or other works of plaster of Paris impervious to moisture, and enable them to stand exposure to the weather. It is an excellent preservative oil varnish, and one of the most simple to make.

During the time any of these varnishes are boiling, fine shreds of India rubber may be added, and will be dissolved, and render the varnish much thicker, and superior for some purposes. In boiling oil, care must be exercised not to allow the fumes to come in contact with the flame, or they will take fire. The oil is also liable to fume over when the sugar of lead is added, hence the necessity of stirring well at that particular period. Turpentine renders oil drying, but it also injures, in a great measure, its durable qualities, by imparting to it a partly saponaceous character. The smallest amount possible of turpentine should, therefore, be used in oil varnishes or paints.

COPAL VARNISH.—Take one pound of gum copal, fuse it in an iron vessel over a fire, then add one pint of hot drying oil, like No. 1 varnish, and stir all well until the gum is dissolved among the oil, and the varnish becomes stringy. When cool, it is thinned with turpentine. All varnishes improve with age when kept in close vessels. Copal varnish is employed for japanning tinware.

CRYSTAL VARNISH.—This beautiful varnish, which is used for maps, prints, and drawings on paper, is made by dissolving pure Canadian balsam in rectified spirits of turpentine. Equal parts of the balsam and turpentine are mixed together in a bottle or stoneware vessel, which is set in hot water, and kept in a warm situation for about a week. During this period it should be frequently agitated.

A BLACK JAPAN VARNISH.—Bitumen, 2 ounces; lampblack, 1 ounce; Turkey umber, 1 ounce; acetate of lead, 1 ounce; Venice turpentine, 1 ounce; boiled oil, 12 ounces. Melt the turpentine and oil together, carefully stirring in the rest of the ingredients, previously powdered. Simmer all together for ten minutes.

HAIR LOTION.—Take one pint of alcohol and two ounces of castor oil, and shake them together for fifteen minutes in a bottle. It will then be found that the alcohol has dissolved the oil, and the combination of the two makes a very excellent lotion for the hair. It can be perfumed with a few drops of the essential oils.—[Scientific American.]
