

NEW YORK THEATRICALS

Copyright, 1893
BY THE EDITORIAL BOARD OF THE DESERET EVENING NEWS.
It is the opinion of the Board that this is the best newspaper in the country.

In my humble opinion there is no such newspaper in the country. The wings management is better than anything ever seen in this country in its dimensions, and while the production is more elaborate, more magnificently decorated, and more sumptuous than any other theater in the city, it is not so well managed as the wings.

Of the many other scenes, one of the most interesting is the Alpine scene, which depicts the characters in all kinds of native dress, and the comedy is carried on by means of the almost unpronounceable German names of the forest's hill of fame.

The story is almost incomprehensible, and it would be difficult to intelligible put it into print. Briefly, it deals with the adventures of a boy waiter at the White Horse Tavern, the Alpine scene which is in love with the girl, who is in love with a gypsy, who is in love with the daughter of a lamp manufacturer, whose father desires her to marry the son of the man who has beaten him in a duel. The young man in turn is in love with the daughter of an old professor,
who turns out to be an old time friend of the unsuccessful knight. This man, Giselle by name, induces Professor Bieder to marry his daughter, and while enroute to attempt to persuade his daughter off to marry Arthur Bierer, Bieder promises on condition that the old man will give him opportunities for exercising his professional services.

Of course he makes love to himself instead of to Bierer, and much fun is evoked by the conversation of Giselle when he learns that Bierer is to be married to the professor's daughter and that his own daughter is to become
Mrs. Bieder.

Out of this tangled harmony is brought about the plot, but it will probably be evident that it would be impossible to make a comprehensively interesting play out of such a story, except, as has been said, when one is familiar with the local surroundings and conditions. To make up for the defect from the many pretty little character touches which are not lost upon an American audience. As a result, the play at the White Horse is incomparably good, and full of very pretty episodes, which are affectionately independent of the plot, to make them even parts of it. The after effect, however, is not at all satisfactory. It is impossible to conceive that "The White Horse Tavern" can make a great success.

The interesting cast is made up of excellent players, most of whom appear to be in their prime. The principal roles assigned to them. The chief honor of the performance are carried off by Anita Blingham as the hostess of the tavern, and Arthur Bierer, the bold but good and youthful suitor for the hand of the professor's daughter. The cast is as follows:

William Glavin.	Harry Hartwell.
Charles.	Eva Vincent.
Frederick Butler.	Mary Morrissey.
Arthur Bierer.	Lowell Nichols.
Oliver Bates.	Felix Marion.
Josephine.	Walter H. Hines.
Leopold Brand.	Fredrick Hunt.
John.	Dave Dinkins.
Dr. Bieder.	Frank Wood.
Old Lady & Friends.	Frederick Griffith.
Melanie.	Bella Lancer.
Mr. Cricket.	David Elmer.
A Miss Tewell.	Charles Lupton.
Traveller No. 1.	James P. O'Farrell.
Traveller No. 2.	James P. O'Farrell.
Frank.	Albert H. Barnes.
Pamela.	Louis Allston.
Lord.	Adrian Swanson.
Mark.	John Maurice.
Martin.	William Marples.

"The Great Ruby," by Gold Haigh and Harry Hamilton, originally produced at the Drury Lane Theater, London, is the current attraction of Daly's theater in the city. It is an exceptionally good play, with some excellent exercises with the wings, and the scenes are well contrived. The Miss Blanche Bates, who followed her for the first half hour after the second performance.

Lady Gertrude. Miss Ada Rehan
Duke of Saxe Charlot. Miss Eva Curtiss. Mrs. Elvina. Miss G. D. Coffey
Miss Rosina Edwards. Miss Virginia
Patterson. Miss Helen. Miss Alice
Hawkins. Miss Kathleen Donal.

Lord. Miss Charlotte. Miss Ethelreda
Mills. Miss Phoebe. Miss Elizabeth
Mills. Miss Paul. Virginia Knott.
Miss Rita. Anna Cather.

Marquis. Miss Katherine Allerton.
Princess. Miss Alice.

Prince. Miss Kathleen Donal.

Queen. Miss Charlotte. Miss Ethelreda
Mills. Miss Phoebe. Miss Elizabeth
Mills. Miss Paul. Virginia Knott.
Miss Rita. Anna Cather.

King. Miss Kathleen Donal.

Lord. Miss Charlotte. Miss Ethelreda
Mills. Miss Phoebe. Miss Elizabeth
Mills. Miss Paul. Virginia Knott.
Miss Rita. Anna Cather.

King. Miss Kathleen Donal.

King. Miss Kathleen Donal.