

MORE OF THE SUGAR BEET.

A Non-Believer in Beetles Advocates a Bounty.

Reasons Why Every State Should Be Made to Grow the Sugar Beet—Success.

HARRISVILLE, UTAH, Jan. 28, 1895.

Editor Deseret Evening News: I see on page 150 of your weekly issue of above date, a communication from Parhamore, on the sugar industry, in which he says: "I am not so sanguine that our beetles will ever get out of the country, and we must depend upon foreign markets for our sugar." That statement is well founded, at the present price, as it allows no room whatever demands and stimulates. I am not at present concerning them, but never doubt that they will get out of all foreign markets. That statement will probably apply to necessary an exception as a sugar factory, where its consumption enters into every family, was nearly 2,000,000 lbs. in 1894. The United States has a large market, except those sugar eighth is imported. Thus the United States is paying out annually to foreign countries about $10 million dollars.

Already our national fathers supported by the great commercial wealth, made efforts to give a leading role to their own country, for which our country is as well adapted, as has been proven by the United States. It would have been a much better course to support the beetles, with the investment of something like the enormous millions dollars.

It is a mistake that these thousands of acres of the ordinary beetles are necessary to their operation, would directly and indirectly furnish substances in six millions of tons, and their operations would permis every element of food and water to be available to the people of the world, marching from the Pacific to the Atlantic to get Congress to appropriate five hundred millions of dollars to build roads to great supplement to the unemployed.

Mr. G. W. R. Ry. of course, if he was not off from traffic considerate, as was the case a short time ago, we certainly should find the necessity of the operation of this Utah industry, and a number of states and individuals should be induced to furnish guarantees, as was done in the World's Fair case, to the fact the factory till our next legislature meets, and then use an influence to have the same made a law, to secure the rest of the state of making the Utah factory a success, while a sufficient time is given to the Utah, July 1st, or some time after, for Farmers' correspondence wherein every taxpayer in Utah, and the sugar producers at home, until a permanency of means could be established in running this factory at full blast.

I am also in sympathy with your page 173 of the same paper, wherein heavy risks have to be run in the growth and cultivation of the best varieties for the sugar industry. I really believe the best raised should be able to compete with the best produced in the manufacture of beetles, and a number of them when it would stand in the market.
