Plans of Project With Rail-

DEATH FROM INSECT BITE.

John Kassins and Miss Roylance
Answer Final Summons—Three Couples Wed.

Ogden, Nov. 20.—The visit yesterday to Ogden of Vice President W. H. Bangs, Chief Engineer William Ashton, and Atty. P. L. Williams, to consult with a committee of the Weber club composed of F. J. Kiesel, Joseph Scofield, George J. Kelley, William Van Allen, J. E. Bagley and L. L. Reynolds resulted in a general discussion of the proposed plans for the construction of the viaduct on lower Twenty-fourth street, but the entire committee and railroad officials could not come to a definite decision on the east approach to the viaduct.

The railroad company desires to erect the viaduct commencing with the east approach a little more than a half block east of Wall avenue on Twenty-fourth street, which would be very detrimental to the Rio Grande Western interests, as this company proposes erecting a new depot on Twenty-fourth between Wall and Lincoln avenues. Members of the committee favored the shortening of the approach or even starting the viaduct at Wall avenue. This the railroad representatives explained would be demolishing to their trackage plans and other improvements contemplated. The franchise and plans will now be presented to the city council to pass upon, and when it is ready to pass upon the matter all those so deeply interested in the viaduct will present their views and then the council will finally decide on the east approach, etc. The matter is of vital importance to the people of Ogden and especially the warehouse owners along Wall avenue. The viaduct is an absolute necessity, but the approaches to it are very important matters to be decided upon.

It is only a few months since his father died. The funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 o'clock at the home. Burial will be made in Ogden City cemetery.

Closing Down of Railroad Contracts—Missionary Farewell.

Special Correspondence.

Springville, Utah Co., Nov. 19.—Sunday evening at the First ward meetinghouse a goodly number gathered to listen to a farewell program and say good bye to J. L. Maycock, who leaves for a mission to the northern states Nov. 20. A handsome purse was made up to assist Elder Maycock on his journey.

People here do not like the paper money now in circulation, some even refuse to receive it, and many fear it will be counterfeited.

Most of the railroad contractors are coming in with their outfits, some from work that has been closed down, others from work just finished, with no other work in sight. This will work a great hardship on Springville railroad men, as they have a vast amount of money invested, especially in high-priced horses. Springville railroad contractors have about 600 horses of the choicest kind, which must be fed and cared for at a great expense, whether they work or not. At least 200 men have been working these outfits in various sections, who will be thrown out of employment.
