CLUB CHAT.

The annual election of officers for the Ladies' Literary club takes place next Friday.

The current events and current literature section of the Ladies' Literary club will hold its last meeting on May 17, and an interesting program will be given. The program will consist of a paper entitled "The Consistency of Fiction" by Mrs. F. J. Fabian, and "Wireless Telegraphy" by Prof. A. R. Hagar will be given.

The last regular meeting of the home and education section of the Ladies' Literary club took place on Monday. Mrs. Wm. Iglehart was elected chairman, and Mrs. Ledyard M. Bailly, secretary.

The French section of the Ladies' Literary club will give a card-party May 15th.

On Wednesday morning the Shakespearian section met and elected officers for the coming year, those chosen being: Mrs. J. M. Dart, chairman, Mrs. Hicks, secretary; Mrs. J. C. E. King, Mrs. E. W. Whitney, Mrs. Henry Wallace and Mrs. C. E. Richards, assistant chairmen. Next year the club will study "Much Ado About Nothing," "Taming of the Shrew," "The Tempest" and "Cymbeline." The assistant chairmen appointed will each have charge of one of these plays, which will be of great assistance to the chairman of the section.

In the afternoon on Wednesday the music section of the Ladies' Literary club held its last regular meeting for the season, and Mrs. Neiden was re-elected.

MID-SUMMER WAIST.

Nothing could be daintier than this mid-summer waist of pink French muslin, tucked and trimmed with lace insertion. The bolero effect is extremely novel and becoming.

PRINCESS CHIMAY IN DIRE STRAITS.

Princess Chimay, whose name has created a sensation in this country and in Europe, is now in London with her lover, the poor Hungarian musician, Rigo. The couple are in dire straits and Rigo is trying to secure an engagement in a metropolitan theater.

purchase money. A tablet has been put upon the front of the house bearing the inscription: "This house was built 1639 A. D. by the Rev. Henry Whitfield, D.D., first minister and the founder of the founders of Guilford, in honor of whom this tablet is here placed on the oldest stone house in New England, by the Connecticut Society of Colonial Dames of America."

FEMINE FLOTSAM.

The long tab ends seen now on many gowns can be utilized, it would appear, for handkerchiefs. A small pocket is fitted on the under side of one of the tabs into which the bit of linen cambric may be tucked.

Spring Novelties in Woman's Wear.

The newest thing in neckwear is the grass linen tie with dainty colored hemstitched border, which is very narrow, and edges the tie completely. Pink, blue and white are the prettiest colors for this border. The tie is three or four inches wide and about a yard long, and it is intended to go around the neck once and be arranged Ascot fashion. Lawn ties are also shown in the same style. The white ones with daintily colored border are pretty, and so are the colored ones with white borders. Some have polka dots of contrasting shades.

Very pretty square collars intended for wear with décolleté gowns are made of point d'esprit, with dainty frills over the shoulders. Narrow ribbon rosettes and streamers usually adorn one side of them with chic effect.

Batiste collars and reverses will be worn to a great extent with spring jackets of cloth or silk. Some are finely tucked, others inset or appliqued with lace or batiste embroidery, and some very handsome ones are edged with the new trimming in cretonne colors and designs. With the black taffeta Etons these collars are especially effective and stylish.

Belt buckles and ends to match are shown as the latest Paris novelty. The buckle is more of an ornament than anything else, and may be placed in the back, while the two ends, which match the buckle in design are attached, tag fashion, to ribbon or velvet ends as long as one likes.

Another belt novelty is a band of stitched black satin, studded with medallions in art nouveau style. Blue and pink are the favorite shades for this jeweled decoration.

Fancy belts are necessary than ever this season, for the short bolero and Eton make them plainly visible, and the glimpse of gold or color at the waist is a pretty note in the spring costume.

White taffeta ties, with Persian applique trimming or embroidery on the ends, are dainty and appropriate for wear with the open spring jackets.

Embroidered altobrosts are one of the popular spring fabrics, and it comes in all colors and combinations. Light gray is embroidered in white, black with red or white, red with black or white. Embroidery in the same shade as the goods is pretty, too.

The newest gowns in light spring shades are embroidered on the backs and wrists in delicate colors, tan, pink, cream and blue predominating. This is a novelty which the conservative woman will be slow to take up, and self-stitching is really the most tasteful shown, too, the demand being created by the extra long sleeves now in vogue.

Evening slippers are decorated with sparkled rosettes of tulle, the same shade as the satin. Rhinestone and gold buckles are the prettiest for patent leather slippers.

Child-Culture.

The world is gradually becoming aware of a few practical facts that it has persistently ignored. One of these is that there is such a thing as individuality in childhood. This idea is being carried out in a few experimental schools, notably that of Dr. John Dewey of Chicago, which aims to prepare children for college in twelve years, beginning with the kindergarten. The course of study is as unique as it is practical. When taking the subject of lectures the raw material is brought in, and the children are shown how to wash the wool, card spin and weave it.

In somewhat the same spirit a new departure has been attempted in France. At the age of fifteen French girls begin a course on morals, developing from practical talks on conduct and moral philosophy to psychology. Such subjects as the family, society, one's country and personal duties are discussed. These subjects cover a realm of suggestions which in America the teachers leave to the parents, who frequently ignore them. It is therefore interesting to note these lessons as being taught to girls of fifteen. Acting on the words of Madame Necker that "woman is intended to perfect life, to animate, beautify and sanctify it," these girls are taught that woman is the center of the family, the soul of the household, and that on all superior men the influence of an intelligent mother is apparent—Katherine Louise Smith in the Woman's Home Companion.

Belts and Sashes.

Belts and sashes will be important factors in the spring and summer fashions. Ribbons with fringed ends for sashes are to be seen on many of the new gowns. The broadened ribbons, the cloth of gold and cloth of silver are finished with elaborate silk fringes never less than four or five inches in depth. The ribbon should be cut in a round point, not a square, and the fringe then falls very gracefully.

Sashes wide and sashes narrow will be worn with the summer frock. When made of narrow ribbons they will have many ends, each tipped with gold or silver. Another method of arrangement will be to knot ribbon of medium width first at the waist in a small bow, then in another small bow or knot a short distance down on the skirt, and then in still a third near the knee, short ends depending from the latter bow. Tiny buckles or fancy clasps may be caught in the center of each knot. Wide sashes will be tied at the back or a little to one side of the back in quite small bows, the ends being long enough to reach nearly to the skirt edge.

As to the ribbons which form the sashes, there is a varied wealth of novelty new designs from which to choose. Fine ribbons interwoven with a gold or silver thread are one very charming variety, but there is everything striped, spotted and flowered, beautiful Persian designs and a large white polka dot. This is used this season, as it was last, to make smart bows and rosettes on the sailor-shaped hats.

The Dip Front.

All dress skirts will be made with the dip front. This is variously called by the different modistes, but it refers to the sharp V-shaped incision which is made in the middle of the front of the skirt. This is nicely bound with silk braid, and when put on is designed to fit over the big silver hook which adorns the front of all corsets. If not there, the modish woman will add it. This makes the skirt long and keeps it long, for it cannot slip up.

Chances for Women.

The ways in which New York women are dependent upon their own efforts make both ends meet are varied. A woman who has been forced to look for work made memorandums of what she found others doing. She did not try for ordinary clerical work, or stenography, typewriting or employment in stores.

"I found one woman," she said to the Sun, "who is making a comfortable living for herself and supporting an invalid husband by selling gloves which have been thrown aside at the glove counters for apparently trivial reasons. For example, in fitting a glove the saleswoman may break off a button on a seam or sell it so as to spoil a pair. This woman has a contract with several stores to take all such gloves at a reduced figure."

"She skillfully repairs whatever damage has been done and sells the gloves at less, of course, than the store price. The name and the address of each person receiving the samples are furnished to the house sending out the samples, and in case of a sale the woman is notified by the house, which pays her a commission."

"This sort of business, she told me, pays better than a direct purchase by an agent if the woman who sends the samples has a good list of customers, for the reason that many customers in the country rather like the idea of dealing with the house direct in purchases. The stores, she added, are not so apt to send samples as a woman who makes a business of it."

"I found a woman in a drug store in a fashionable part of the city who is a graduate in pharmacy. She fills only such prescriptions as are brought in by women. She receives a salary, but she gets a commission on all the trade she secures from women."

"And so it goes in this great city where so many women have to make their own living. If a woman can only find something novel she will find plenty of people to help her out."

The Womanly Woman a Joy Forever.

The womanly woman is predestined to be a joy forever. She is the endless chain attaching and keeping up communication between earth and heaven. By reason of this contract woman is fated to live forever and survive all vicissitudes.

She adapts herself to times and conditions with consummate skill and the ability of manifest destiny. She is all things to all men, in all places and in all times.

To definitely fix and classify the womanly woman is even more difficult than to determine the manly man. Circumstances require different qualities and times produce different needs. The womanly woman will always do the needful acts and perform the duties which rightly belong to her. One of the needful acts, and likewise a duty, pressing upon woman in this age is to make and keep herself in unison with the age.

It is distinctly not womanly, but on the contrary childish, for adults of the feminine gender in these days to prate of their helplessness, and cling to the old prerogatives which belong to dependent women hundreds of years ago, and at the same time boldly embrace every opportunity of freedom and privilege which the twentieth century offers to womanhood.

EDUCATIONAL.

BRANCH NORMAL.

Cedar City, May 3.—The attendance at the normal is remarkably good considering that the students come chiefly from farming communities. Several new students are joining for work the rest of the year.

The summer school circular will be issued some time this week. Courses will be offered in English, history, mathematics, psychology, geology, botany, zoology and music. Arrangements are being made with some of the county superintendents of schools by which the teachers in their counties are enabled to do work in the Branch Normal in place of taking county examinations for teaching.

The "co-eds" of the school are giving a grand ball in the school building on May 2nd. The affair includes the usual refreshments, elaborate preparations are being made for the entertainment. Anderson's orchestra will furnish the music. The proceeds are to go to the athletic association, which just now is under very heavy expenses.

A challenge has been sent to the students of the B. Y. A at Provo.

President David Cannon of St. George again visited the school last week. He addressed the students in chapel.

Many of the classes are coming in sight of the end of their work. As the end of the session approaches the usual number of anxious faces are noted.

SALT LAKE HIGH SCHOOL.

The cadets have received their uniforms and now make a splendid appearance.

The seniors accuse the juniors of having appropriated part of their contemplated class-day program. The juniors make no denial of the charge.

James Dunn and Phil. Grames have been out of school for the past ten days on account of sickness.

Examinations in most of the branches have been held this week.

On Monday Mr. Travis' political economy class debated the following question: "Resolved, That there should be an income tax on all incomes above three thousand dollars." Frank Kearnes and Owings Shekel presented the arguments in favor of the tax, while Amy Adams and Bessie Ames opposed it.

The plaster casts of masterpieces of art have arrived and will soon be in place. The carpenters are at work on the bases.

Miss Peterson's Latin class takes up the last book of Caesar next Monday.

Visitors will be welcome at the armory Monday and thereafter to see the cadets drill. Regular drill begins at 3 o'clock.

Carl Scheld entertained the school highly Wednesday morning with several vocal solos. He was loudly applauded.

There has been a dearth of visitors this week. The following have registered: Ethel Richardson, Ogden; Mabel Knauss, Mrs. Rathbone and Percy Berkeley, city.

BRIGHAM YOUNG ACADEMY.

Provo, Utah, May 1.—Provo now wears a coat of green, and the students are not slow to appreciate the beautiful spring scenery.

Work, work, work. The students scarcely have time to talk. School life is busy on, but it will soon be over, and then tired minds will have a recreation.

Dr. James E. Talmage will lecture before the Parents' Class tonight on "Children and Youth." An extra good time is expected.

The members of the academy band were excused from classes today, as their services were required for the Dewey day exercises.

Prof. Brimhall went to Salt Lake on Friday to lecture before the normal society of the University.

James G. Duffin, president of the Southwestern States mission, visited the academy on Friday and spoke to the teachers in their Priesthood meeting.

Students of the normal drawing classes placed drawings from memory on the blackboard in a number of rooms, for the Utah county teachers to inspect while attending institute.

The library committee of the class of 1904 has just sent off an order for $40 worth of books to add to the pedagogical library, founded by the class. The books will be sent to Salt Lake City, where they will be in the hands of the teachers in the department of the academy.

There will be six young men graduate from wood work II this semester. This is the highest course given in shop practice, and Prof. Higgs says we may look for some fine buildings to be erected as a result of their training.

F. B. Hammond, president of the 1905 class, was called home by his father, the first of this month. He was a good student and his school-mates were sorry to see him go.

Miss Nalke's classes in elocution will give an entertainment in the opera house May 17th. There will be drills, recitations and favorite scenes from well known plays. The words dropped here and there would lead one to expect something very interesting.

Freeman Tanner, a prominent student in oratory class, has recently received a letter from Box B. He was given a farewell in the third ward on Wednesday evening. He leaves for England May 1st. The students wish him success.

College hall was crowded Saturday night, and Miss Oliver received a hearty welcome. For nearly two hours the audience paid breathless attention, and when the recital closed, nearly every student portrayed the artist's hand. The school hopes for many more such treats, and a hearty welcome will always await Miss Oliver.
