The Longfellow memorial at Cambridge will take the shape of a garden of flowers. As a tribute to Longfellow nothing could be finer or more appropriate.

Mrs. M. E. De Greer, the woman lawyer of Topeka, is gaining considerable reputation as a competent and forcible speaker. Her practice at the bar is said to be increasing.

Boulanger is not all French. His father was English, his father French. Therefore it is, they say, the vivacity of the French and the tenacity of the English—an admirable combination.

King William, of Holland, is reported to be dying by slow approach. He is doing by that in a process of dying at the very first—the most distressing form of death that can come to mortal beings.

Joe Guiteau, who has just returned to his own home at Mount Clemens, Mich., after serving twenty-one years in the British army, proposes to stuff himself with the waxes of the world for the remainder of his days on his pension of $50 a year.

The largest belt ever made in New England will be exhibited at the mechanical fair in Boston. It is three feet wide, 120 feet long, weighs 1,500 pounds, and 100 miles were used in making it.

The "peny walk" is a new expedient for killing time. The walker, standing at a street corner, flips up a cent. If it falls "heads" up, he starts toward the right, and if it is "tails" the direction is toward the left. At the next corner he flips again.

The skeletons of 13 Indians have been examined at Ord, Iowa, during the last 13 days my workmen engaged in excavating for the reservoir for the city water works. The indications are that at one time the location was an Indian burying ground.

An old question that hadn't been decided since the Mexican war, was placed on exhibition at Mount Clemens the other evening by Tommy Keep, his friend, Eugene, and a crowd of interested audience. The pistol went off, but luckily the ball only went through the back of the arm and kept's hand.

The Watson (Neb.) Wisp notes with alarm that the railroads are catering to the democratic politicians in Saratoga (Neb.), and sadly remarking that when "a railroad company gets so accommodating as to stop out in the middle of the night, it is a sign that it is evident that something is at stake."

Recent explorations show that the island of Terra del Fuoco contains valuable farming lands, forests, and mineral deposits. It is peopled by two distinct races of savages, the Fuegians and the Yagans, who are well formed and remarkably strong, subsisting chiefly by the chase; the latter are a coarse, people, physically inferior, but not in intelligence.

J. A. Stewart, a former partner at a Wichita (Kan.) drug-store, has been sentenced to the penitentiary on 218 counts for selling opium in that city. The sentence was for thirty days' imprisonment and a fine of $100 on each count, aggregating seventeen years' imprisonment and a fine of $20,800. He has no money and it is said the governor is to pardon him immediately.

Several years ago Willis P. Chisolm of Atlanta, Ga., decided to his wife about $100,000 worth of property. The under-taking was, he says, that she was to have it in trust. Now she is dead, having a will by which she gives nearly the whole of the property to her son, the widow. The widow has allowed the will to be proved, but she is going to attack it in the supreme court.

Dr. Pauson of the treasure-seeking company has returned to Philadelphia and abandoned the search for the 25,000,000 of treasure which was known to the privateer De Brook off Cape Henlopen a century ago. The work will resume next spring, Dr. Pauson being confident that the amount over which they have been working all summer contains the missing treasure.

In tearing down an old farmhouse, five miles from Monticello, Ga., workmen found an on-time slave, who had been the weather-boarding and the log walls. It is made of a leather strap two inches wide and about a foot and a half long, fastened in polished hickory and some two feet long, with a string in the rod by which it might be attached to the wrist. It remained one of old times.

Mrs. Gould, a rich widow of California, recently resolved to disinherit her daughter because of her elopement. Soon afterwards she learned that the parents of the groom had closed their doors against the young couple. She became angry at the decision and as any woman on earth, and was joined by leaving and presenting the bride and groom with a comfortable share of her home and fortune.

Freeman Goodie, a Detroit negro, was caught butting down John Hall's woodshed. Hall tried to stop him by hitting him on the head with an ax. When he had done this, the woodshed Goodie had arrested. The judge discharged the man who used the ax, because angry at the decision, and Goodie's head was the more dangerous weapon of the two. Goodie has a cult following in the world, a battling match for the championship.

A calf was recently born at Prairie's old ranch, near Ploche, Col., without eyes or tail. Although blind, it will run into anything. It is kept in a corral alone, and will start to run toward one of the fences, and when within a few feet will stop, turn another direction, and go through the same performance. It will set the same toward a stream of water. The skin which covered the eye was lanced, but no signs of the eye were visible.

In the mountain counties of Kentucky, the homes of the feudal characteristic of that region, the average pay of a county judge is $500 a year, of a county attorney $200, of a county clerk $750, and of a sheriff $800, yet most of the rows originate in strife for these places. The perquisites, however, are prized, as in the case of the late Judge Craig Toliver, of Rowan County, whose office enabled him to considerably prolong his career of lawlessness.

Somebody has inquired as to the ancestry of Nowlan, now awaiting the gallows for the murder of his employer at Sonoma, Mass., and has told him that he comes honestly by his criminal propensities as did the historic "Jakes." Nowlan's brother recently been arrested for theft; another brother is in the reformatory at Concord for burglary, and a third brother of the family committed suicide while serving a term in a Canadian prison.

There is a printer in New York who traces his lineage back to William IV. This should not be taken as anything detrimental to him. If he is a good printer and an honest man he has just as much right to hold up his head as though he were a Vanderbilt whose grandfather peddled claims.

This country is liberal. There is no disposition to put anybody down because his ancestors were not what they should have been. The printer should keep right on reaching for pinat, and let his mind be at rest.

The Fair Play says if you want your children to have pretty teeth you must begin with the second dentition to press back with the finger every morning the teeth which have a tendency to project forward and to push forward those which tend backward. As a wash, boil in a strong solution of water a pinch of quassia wood with a pinch of pulverized cacao. It strengthens the gums and whitens the teeth without injuring the enamel which covers the bone. Wash the mouth after each meal with lukewarm boiled water.

KEELY'S MOTOR EXPOSED.

THE CHANCES OF ITS EVER BEING UTILIZED ARE EXCEEDINGLY SLIM.

I have seen Mr. Keely's motor in operation and I am obliged to say, as an engineer, that in my judgment there is nothing particularly new in the entire subject. It is a reproduction of force by well-known means.

The shrouding of this Keely motor business in words and sentences void of rational meaning in order to surround the simplest facts with an air of mystery has been during the entire life of the undertaking one of the most amusing features of the scheme.

Boscovich's hypothesis of the constitution of matter, which may also be considered the foundation of analytical mechanics, is a fact of the very essence of the so-called Keely motor.

This motor is clearly nothing more nor less than the generation of an elastic condition of air, gas, or vapor produced by causing the molecules of the gas acted upon to vibrate violently in a containing vessel, and from thence it is allowed to escape in this strained condition in order to produce a development of power in any way that may be thought desirable.

The production of steam is a similar development of power—viz:

1. The vibration of water by means of a form of motion known as heat causes it to assume an elastic condition of vapor, and

2. The vibration of air, gas, or vapor by means of a form of motion known as sound causes it to assume an elastic condition.

There is no slightest difference, scientifically speaking, in the two actions. Similar causes produce similar results.

The etheric vapor or ether, which is so much spoken of as a great discovery by Mr. Keely, was known and acknowledged before he was born. Unquestionably it pervades all space and all substances, and without its presence in space and matter, the transmission of heat, light, sound, and electricity cannot be accounted for.

The old law of action and reaction being equal, contrary, and simultaneous is shown in the actual movement of Mr. Keely's motor, and were the law untrue his machine, as he saw it, would remain perfectly stationary; neither does he produce something out of nothing, as stated by some of those interested with him, for the very force employed to produce the sound which starts the action of his machine requires the consumption of some description of fuel, either animal, vegetable, or mineral, for its generation, and the resulting action of the engine is dependent upon an original expenditure of power.

Whether Mr. Keely can ever make a machine, upon the principle in question, which will be a practical and economical motor I have the gravest doubts, but it is time that those interested in his schemes should make themselves acquainted with the fundamental laws and facts of accepted physics, and they will then find that what they consider mysteries of insubstantial power are in plain English nothing more nor less than interesting experiments in acoustics and mechanics.

MR. FAIRCHILD'S BOND POLICY.

HE TELLS WHAT HE INTENDS TO DO TO RELIEVE THE MONEY STRINGENCY.

Secretary Fairchild arrived in the city yesterday and visited the Washington Hotel. He met Assistant Treasurer Canada and went to the sub-treasury in Wall Street early in the afternoon. There the Secretary discussed financial matters with Mr. Canada and Mr. Sherer, the cashier of the office, and a private talk with President John A. Stewart, of the United States Trust Company, formerly assistant treasurer. About 4 o'clock the Secretary left the sub-treasury and called on Collector Magone. He will be in the city until tomorrow afternoon. To-day he will watch the yacht race from the deck of Commodore Gerry's yacht Electric.

The Secretary says that he is in the city on no important new business, but to call on several persons and official friends.

"Do you think the purchase of the $14,000,000 and six bond will relieve the money stringency?" asked the reporter as the Secretary left the sub-treasury.

"The bankers have told me that it will."

"Have you received any complaints of a money stringency from bankers and merchants?"

"The articles in the World and other papers containing interviews with prominent financiers have stated that there was a tight money market and these accounts have been substantiated by letters from and personal interviews with bankers and merchants."

"How about extending the purchase to currency?"

"That has not been considered. I think the price of the six is too high for that policy to be pursued."

"Will there be any change in your financial policy?"

"None, at least until the privilege under the $14,000,000 bond circular has expired—Oct. 8."

"Have you considered the possibility of a heavy bond issue like Van Hook coming in and offering to sell the entire lot of bonds called for in one block?"

"I have hardly considered it, but of course such a thing is possible."—N. Y. World.

MRS. LANGTRY IS SWINDLED.

SHE FALLS A VICTIM TO THE ROGUS EXPRESS PACKAGE TRICK.

Mrs. Langtry was recently victimized to the extent of $10 by the nearly always successful express package swindle. Just after the actress returned to her home in Twenty-third Street from Long Branch, about two weeks ago, a man called at the house with a express package addressed to her. The package was sealed and tagged and bore the express labels of the Baltimore & Ohio Company. The actress seemed to be genuine, and when the man asked for $5 charges, she, without the least suspicion, handed him a ten-dollar bill, which he said he would get changed and return in a few minutes.

After waiting for a long time for the fellow to return, Mrs. Langtry sent a servant to the office of the Baltimore & Ohio Company in Canal Street with the package, and to demand her money. The servant was told that her mistress had been swindled, and the package, upon being opened, was found to contain a paving-stone done up in an old piece of rag. Such swindles are perpetrated daily, and it was said at the express office yesterday that frequent complaints have been made to Inspector Byrnes about the matter.—N. Y. World.

His Mother.

"If I could only see my mother!" Again and again was the yearning cry repeated. "If I could only see my mother!" The vessel rocked, and the waters, chased by a fresh wind, played musically against the side of the ship.

Toward a second mate, quite and full, lay in his narrow bed, his eyes gazing, his limbs stiffening, his breath halting. It was not pleasant to die thus, in this shaking, plunging ship; but he seemed not to mind bodily discomfort. His eyes looked far away, and ever and anon broke forth the yearning cry: "If I could only see my mother!"

An old sailor by, a Bible in his hand, from which he was reading. He bent above the young man and asked him why he was so anxious to see his mother, whom he had wilfully left. "O, that's the reason," he cried in anguish. "I've nearly broken my heart, and I can't die in peace. She was a good mother to me—oh, so good a mother! She bore everything from her, and once she said to me: 'My son, when you come to die, you will remember this! Oh, if I could only see my mother!' He never saw his mother. He died with the yearning upon his lips, as many a one has died who sinned the mother who loved him. Boys, be good to your mother."
